CMTC Trainee Describes Life at Camp Meade

General Unpreparedness of Army Clearly Emphasized, Says William R. Carscaden

The 237 professional and business men who attended the Citizens Military Training Camp at Fort George G. Meade July 5 to Aug. 3 proved that they "could take it," a young Cumberland attorney reported yesterday.

"Their spirit was better than their physical conditions but they were cheerful even when their feet were killing them," William R. Carscaden, of 416 Paca street, declared in reporting on the first event of this sort ever conducted at Fort Meade.

The average age of the trainees at the camp was thirty-seven. Included among the number were two members of the New York Stock Exchange, a member of the Philadelphia Supreme Court, forty-six lawyers, seventy-eight World War veterans, (seventeen of whom held commissions) plump businessmen, lean businessmen and a number of school teachers.

Started Off Nice

"It was pretty nice the first day," Carscaden recalled. "When we got there the regular enlisted men took our bags, showed us around and acted as our valets. But that didn't last long. Before we got through we were saluting most everybody we met.

"We soon learned not to do anything until we were told to do it. I made my bed up one morning before I was supposed to and got bawled out for it. I had to unmake it and then make it all over again at the proper time. Another thing we learned was never to ask 'why' when we were told to do something.

"The first day each man was issued four uniforms including a fatigue outfit for the rifle range, meneuvers when we had to crawl on the ground and for night bivouacs. We got a pair of marching shoes and a pair of dress shoes, eight pairs of sox, mess kits, canteens, a rain coat and a Springfield rifle.

"We slept in the old barracks, frame shacks, with twenty on a floor. There were two floors and no partitions.

Food Fine

"We had to get up at 5:10 a. m. and be dressed, washed up and shaved and ready to fall in line right on the dot at 6. Then we would have calisthenics for a half hour. After that we had breakfast. The food, by the way, was tops. It was good stuff. Meat was always tender and everything was very well-cooked. And there was lots of it."

After that the boys went to work. Carscaden said he was particularly impressed with the way the men handled their rifles. Many of them had never used a gun prior to their arrival at the camp. Yet, seventy-five per cent of the outfit qualified as marksmen before they got through including Carscaden.

"They showed they could shoot," Carscaden said. He explained they had three days preliminary practice before they got down to serious work. But it was hot, tiring work. One day the temperature jumped to the 114 degree mark while the recruits popped away at their targets on the rifle range.

Retired Early

Carscaden admitted most of the men would be completely fagged out after a day of army life. The boys got through work at 4:30 p. m.

"After we got through we ate supper and then went to bed," Carscaden said. "We were always in bed by 8 p. m. No, you didn't have to go to bed at that time. You just did, that was all. The line always formed the next day at 6 a. m., you know. Sometimes, we would swim, play volleyball or baseball for awhile before going to bed.

"We always had a forum session after dinner on Monday nights. Various men in the camp gave talks and also members of the regular army. The only subjects discussed were of a military nature. There wasn't any politics or anything like that."

Commenting on the work the officers in charge cut out for the trainees, Carscaden said "there wasn't any doubt but what they had it all planned before we got there. The officers were all fine men and impressed everybody.

"One night when we had to fight a battle we marched from 7 p. m. to 8:15 p. m. until we reached the battle ground. Then we fought until 11:15 p. m., before we formed to retire for the night. It was just like an actual battle.

"We were supposed to pitch tents before lying down and going to sleep. I was with another fellow. We were both so tired we just laid down and went to sleep in the middle of a field. We got up at 4 a. m.

Dig 'Fox Holes'

"One thing they showed us was how to get out of the way of a tank," Carscaden said. "To do this you dig what they call a 'fox hole.' Its just round enough to crawl into and the depth should be up to your shoulders. When you crawl in a tank can't get at you. It may throw dirt in on top of you, but it can't hurt you."

Tanks interested Carscaden particularly. Between sixty and seventy modern light tanks were exhibited at Fort Meade for the recruits. They would travel fifty miles an hour. Traveling at twenty-five miles an hour, a tank would clip off a tree eight inches in diameter.

The Cumberland recruit took a ride in a tank. Asked to describe the tank and his feelings while inside

Beetle Season Nearing an End

Dr. E. N. Cory, Entomologist, Sets August 15 as Funeral Date

Dr. Ernest N. Cory, University of Maryland entomologist, calling his shots on Japanese beetles, predicts that the majority of the pesky copper-tinted invaders will have passed from Maryland come August 15.

By September 5, Dr. Cory added, only a few stragglers will be left.

"The beetles that manage to hang on until September 1," Dr. Cory declared, "will be scattered over the state and they'll all be so old they won't be strong enough to get around to see one another. So they'll start talking to themselves, and die eventually, of loneliness."

Dr. Cory said beetle destruction reached its peak between July 25 and August 2, during the hot spell. "The hotter it is," he said, "the more the beetles eat."

He added however, that even though another long heat spell comes the beetles won't be able to last any longer than the funeral date he's arranged for them.

The beetles usually get the skids about the third or fourth day of August, but this year, because they were late in starting their feast of Maryland vegetation and flowers, they are hanging on a bit longer, Dr. Cory stated.

30 Policyholders Consult Actuary

Calvert F. Stein Says He Is Amazed at Response Shown Here

Holders of policies aggregating $65,000 visited the city hall auditorium yesterday and received advice on insurance matters free of charge from Calvert F. Stein, of Baltimore, actuary for the State Insurance Department of Maryland.

Mr. Stein, who was sent to Cumberland by John B. Gontrum, state insurance commissioner at the request of the Cumberland Life Underwriters Association, said that he interviewed holders of thirty policies between 10 a. m., and 5 p. m., and was amazed at the response shown by people in the county.

While 10,000 inquiries are made yearly in Baltimore by policyholders, Mr. Stein said that this is the first time that an actuary of the State Insurance department had come to Cumberland to give advice.

Information unavailable yesterday will be furnished policyholders Wednesday, August 21, when Mr. Stein makes his second visit here. An actuary from Baltimore also will be at the city hall September 4 and 18.

Celanese Reports Net Profits Gain

$4,522,580 Is Net for Six Months and $7,868,906 for Year

The Celanese Corporation of America and wholly owned subsidiaries, reports a net profit of $4,522,580 for the first six months ended June 30, 1940. This compares with a net profit of $3,027,774 in the corresponding period of 1939.

For the twelve months ending June 30, 1940, the net profit amounted to $7,868,906 as against $4,976,198 in 1939.

After dividend requirements on the preferred stocks, earnings for the half years are equal to $2.86 a share on 1,076,891 shares of common stock to be outstanding after issuance of the August 15 dividend. This compares with $173 on a share on 1,000,000 shares in the corresponding period of 1939.

From this amount, company officials said, must be deducted excess profits taxes and other taxes not yet ascertained.

Dr. Camille Dreyfus, president of the company, in presenting a report to the stockholders of the half-year period said "the demand for the company's products continues in excess of capacity to produce."

"Of particular interest to our stockholders at this time," he adds, "is the company's business in Celanese fabrics for evening wear."

Bodies of Detroit Youths Will Be Taken to Detroit

One of Drowning Victims Was Born at Moscow, Allegany County

The bodies of two twenty-year-old Detroit chums who drowned Thursday evening in the South Branch of the Potomac river near Romney, W. Va., yesterday were removed to Boal's funeral home in Westernport and will probably be shipped to Detroit tonight.

The victims are Francis Wiland, of 4642 Springle avenue, Detroit, and Harry Ross Pearson, of 13940 Mack avenue, Detroit.

Both Become Exhausted

The tragedy occurred around 6:45 p. m. Tuesday near the wire bridge seven miles from Romney on West Virginia Route 28. Pearson went to the rescue of his friend when Wiland floundered while attempting to swim across the river, a distance of seventy-five yards. Pearson became exhausted after frantic efforts and both sank before another member of their swimming party could reach them.

The swimming party consisted of the two victims, Joseph Eloot, also of Detroit, who was visiting Wiland's cousin, Miss Winifred Wiland, of Moscow, Miss Wiland, Miss Nellie Meese and Miss Elizabeth Yates, of Moscow, and Miss Geneva Hyde, of Barton.

The party arrived at the river just fifteen minutes before the tragedy occurred, bringing their lunch. They decided to take a swim before eating.

Wiland Born at Moscow

Wiland, who was the oldest son, is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wiland, of Detroit and was a native of Moscow this county. His parents moved to Detroit where Francis was a boy. His mother was the former Miss Madeline Green of Moscow. He was a graduate of a Detroit high school and was an attendant of a gasoline station of the Zip Oil company there.

He is survived by three brothers Bernard, Joseph and William Wiland, all of Detroit, and five sisters, Mary Madaline, Margaret, Theresa, Ellen and Barbara, all of Detroit.

Pearson was formerly employed as an apprentice tool maker with a factory which has discontinued business.

He was a son of Guy Pearson, Detroit, and is also survived by two brothers, Edward and Homer Pearson, and four sisters, Thelma, Goldie, Frances and Mrs. Frank Koppinger, all of Detroit.

His body will be taken to the Cooper Brothers Funeral parlors at Detroit and later taken to Tallahoma, Tenn., to be buried beside his mother there.

The visitors arrived at Moscow, Sunday, and expected to remain until Friday.

Allegany Fruit Growers To Attend District Meeting

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 7 (AP)—The first annual conference of fruit growers from four states in this region will be held here tomorrow beginning at 9:30 a. m. for a discussion of water conservation in orchards.

"Representatives are expected from Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland, in addition to conservation specialists from the four state experiment stations, and United States Department of Agriculture officials.

Harry Weigle of Adams county, Pennsylvania, who will act as chairman of the meeting, said farmers other than orchardists had also been invited to attend because much land not in orchards is also affected by lack of water and losses due to excessive run-off.

For many years fruit growers of the Cumberland-Shenandoah fruit belt have suffered heavy damage due to drought, soil erosion and fertility losses.

One of the principal speakers will be G. William Gardenhour, chairman of the Washington County Board of Conservation District Supervisors, who will talk on "my experiences and observations with contour planted and terraced orchards."

Harris Gives Timely Suggestions during Influx of Strangers

With the influx of a large number of strangers in the city and county, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris last evening made the following timely suggestions to residents, merchants, those renting rooms and car owners:

Don't go away from your home and leave any doors unlocked.

Don't go away from your home and leave the cellar windows unlocked even though screened.

Don't leave any first or second story windows open or unlocked.

If away from home at night leave the light burning—it's the best policeman in the world.

Don't cash any checks for strangers — they may bounce back.

Be careful of strangers who engage rooms.

Don't fail to lock up jewelry and other valuables. The proper place is in a safe deposit vault.

Don't leave auto keys in the ignition switch.

Willkie May Make Brief Talk Here In October

Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for the presidency, is expected to give a brief talk in Cumberland when he passes through by train on his campaign tour some time in October, J. Glenn Beall, coordinating chairman of the Allegany county G.O.P. campaign committee, announces.

Former State Senator Beall indicated that Mr. Willkie is expected to make a brief stop here and will talk from the platform of the train.

Beall, who served as county campaign manager for Harry W. Nice in the recent primary for the United States Senatorial nomination, also said that the former governor of Maryland will attend the Cumberland Fair Association races Friday, August 16, and will present a trophy to the owner of a winning horse in one of the feature races.

Former Governor Nice defeated William Broening, of Baltimore, for the United States Senate nomination, winning by more than a two to one margin in Allegany county. He will oppose George L. Radcliffe, Democratic incumbent, in the general election in November.

125 Properties Advertised by Tax Collector

Delinquent Taxpayers Are Warned That Old Taxes Must Be Paid

County Tax Collector Alban C. Thompson yesterday started cracking down on delinquent taxpayers as he advertised 125 properties representing a total of $12,227 in unpaid taxes.

"And there will be more to come unless people pay up," Thompson grimly announced at the court house citing the fact that approximately $85,000 in unpaid 1939 taxes are still listed on the tax books.

In all, there is approximately $125,000 in unpaid taxes on the books including some $40,000 still owing from 1935 to 1938 inclusive.

"I intend to start after the taxes still owing from '35 to '38 around Sept. 1 unless they are paid," Thompson said.

Commenting on the drive launched to collect the 1939 indebtedness to the county, Thompson stated, "I hereby serve warning to every person, corporation and company, owing 1939 taxes, that they must be paid at once or I intend to advertise according to law, all tax delinquent property. This means everyone. There will not be any exceptions and I do not intend to write any letters of warning before I advertise."

July collections amounted to $49,717.70, the tax collector announced yesterday.

"That was pretty good," Thompson said pointing out that collections for this July were slightly better than July, 1938, when $48,000 was collected.

Maryland Young GOP Favors Conscription In Some Form

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP)—The Maryland Federation of Young Republicans announced today its support of "some form of conscription," asserting the nation now is "inadequately prepared to carry out our commitments to enforce the Monroe doctrine, let alone the defense of the continental United States."

Over the signature of Charles H. Cover, federational president, and Harry L. Katz, executive committee chairman, the statement declared "this is not the time to play politics" and said "the spectacle in congress of name-calling while the future welfare of this nation is at stake is calculated to reflect upon our democratic processes in time of emergency."

The statement speculated on whether "there is time left" for men and equipment to defend the country and said:

"The lessons of history have shown that the volunteer system for military service is doomed to failure. Our potential enemies ignore such system, and some of them begin training men in their childhood for military service . . .

"There are many Rip Van Winkles in Washington who have been asleep at the switch the past few years. . . . Others are still sleeping. . . . Politics must be subordinated to the welfare of the country if we are to prepare ourselves to preserve our American way of life."

Negroes Arrested For Larceny of Fur Jackets

State and County Officers Round Up Four in $400 Shoplifting Job

A quartet of negroes who apparently were doing their Christmas "shoplifting" early were apprehended yesterday at Clarksburg, W. Va., by Cumberland and Allegany county officers and returned to this city to face charges of stealing furs valued at $400 from the display rooms of two local stores.

Three of the persons involved in the fur-shoplifting job were women and gave their names as Elsie Jones, of New York City, Sadie Parker and Mary Lee, both of Charleston, W. Va. The fourth member of the group placed in the county jail last night was Donald Hurse, who gave New York city as his home address.

Charged with Larceny

Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, stated that the quartet has been charged with grand larceny and are being held for a hearing.

Traveling in a 1939 Buick sedan which carried a New York license, the negroes came to Cumberland Saturday, August 3, on a shopping tour in the business district.

According to the state's attorney the group first visited Lazarus's store, 55 Baltimore street, and told the saleslady who waited upon them that they desired to look at some silver fox jackets. They failed to make a purchase but after they left the store, the management discovered that a silver fox jacket, valued at $200 had suddenly disappeared. Police were immediately informed.

Then, according to State's Attorney Harris, the group of shoppers visited Martin's store, 33 North Liberty street, informing a clerk that they wished to see something in silver fox fur jackets. The negroes walked out without making a purchase but after they departed it was learned that a fur coat at that establishment also had taken "wings." The management of this store notified police of their loss of a $200 fur jacket.

Arrested in Clarksburg

Investigation into the whereabouts of the shoplifters led the city and county officers to Clarksburg, W. Va., where Sheriff Lucian Radcliffe, County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and Detective B. Frank Gaffney journeyed to nab the four negroes and placed them under arrest. Both fur coats were recovered by the officers and the car in which the shoplifters were traveling was also returned to Cumberland.

When questioned by State's Attorney Harris yesterday, the negroes admitted the thefts.

Officers said the same four had extended their shoplifting activities to Grafton, W. Va.

Couple Escapes Injury in Crash On Valley Road

Big Sedan Plunges 30 Feet Down Steep Embankment

A young Cumberland couple last night miraculously escaped injury when their big sedan sideswiped another car, plowed through a guard-rail and plunged down a thirty-foot embankment into a creek.

The accident occurred shortly before midnight on the Valley road near Miller's lime kiln when the car driven by Marshall J. Barton, of Cresaptown, sideswiped the car driven by William M. Goldsborough, of R. D. 3, Cumberland.

Barton, a young Celanese employe, was coming down the hill towards Cumberland when he claims the lights of Goldsborough's car blinded him. His big sedan grazed Goldsborough's rear fender, careened through the guardrail and dropped thirty feet into the creek bed.

With Barton was Miss Anne Hobell, of 204 Fulton street. The car landed right side up and apparently was not badly damaged. No glass was broken.

When Miss Hobell climbed out of the sedan she took a look at the steep embankment and started to cry. While uninjured, she was thoroughly upset and refused to climb up the bank to the road.

Cruisermen James Kelley and James J. Condon arrived a few minutes later, persuaded Miss Hobell to leave the creek bed.

Several dozen spectators quickly gathered including Police Commissioner James Orr and Detective Robert E. Flynn. Most of the spectators kept staring at the steep bank and the car down below in the creek bed.

Barton, who received a slight bump on the head, and Miss Hobell started for home a few minutes after the accident as did Goldsborough, an employe of the B. and O. railroad who was on his way home from work.

Senate Kills Voluntary Muster of National Guard

Rejects Plan Offered As Amendment to Bill On Calling Out Militia

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP) — Leaders of the Senate anti-conscription bloc found themselves on the losing side today when they supported a plan to muster the National Guard upon a voluntary rather than a compulsory basis.

The Senate, by a vote of 47 to 36, rejected the plan, which had been offered as an amendment to a pending bill empowering the president to call out the militia and the army reserve forces for twelve-months active service anywhere in the Western hemisphere.

The chamber pushed the latter legislation to a point very near final passage. After that action, which leaders expected tomorrow, the Senate is scheduled to take up the conscription bill itself, subjecting all men between 21 and 30, inclusive, to selective compulsory military training.

Holt and Minton Clash

The issues involved in the latter were tangled again today in the discussion of the National Guard bill, and the intensity of the controversy involved led again to a bitter exchange of personalities between Senators Holt (D-W Va.) and Minton (D-Ind.).

Meanwhile, the Senate Military committee, which approved the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill 13 to three several days ago, issued a report on the measure urging its enactment "for the adequate protection of the cherished heritages of a nation." It would "be criminal," the document said, "to give the nation a false sense of security the mere possession of defensive armaments and a corresponding lack of trained men."

Voluntary Basis Asked

Senator Danaher (R-Conn.) who has not yet declared his position on the Burke - Wadsworth bill, brought up the issue of putting the mustering of the national guard upon a voluntary basis. He proposed an amendment under which all men affected would be given the option of resigning within twenty days after the bill becomes effective.

He argued that most members of the guard enlisted with the understanding that they could not be called to active service unless Congress declared a national emergency. Under the bill as it stood, he said, a national guardsman could be called out without regard to the consequent "plight of himself and his family."

He questioned, too, the effectiveness of provisions in the bill intended to assure a militiaman called to service that his job would be restored to him when his service period had ended.

On the voting, all leaders of the anti-conscription bloc — including Wheeler (D-Mont), Vandenberg (R-Mich.), Holt and others fell in with the Connecticut senator. But, ad-

Amendments to Neutrality Act Passed by House

Would Permit Ships To Bring Refugee Children to America

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—With only a few scattered "noes," the House passed neutrality act amendments today which would permit American ships to enter belligerent waters to bring back refugee children from war-torn nations.

The legislation, which now goes to the Senate, would authorize the transportation, by unarmed and uncovered American ships, of youngsters under sixteen, provided the vessels are proceeding under safe conduct assurances from belligerent nations.

The ships would be required to carry painted American flags on their sides and superstructure, along with statements that they are refugee-child rescue ships of the United States, "so that night or day there can be no mistake as to the identity of such vessels."

Although sponsors argued that the bill contained all necessary safeguards, the House at the last minute wrote in two amendments

Italians Smash Across British Somaliland

Report Bombing Attacks Preliminary to Vast Military Drive

By The Associated Press

Rome, Aug. 7—Italian infantrymen smashed across the British Somaliland frontier in East Africa at several points tonight and Fascist authorities claimed "conspicuous results" by bombers attacking British African bases preliminary to a vast military drive.

At the same time influential spokesmen charged Secretary of State Hull of the United States was "creating a phantom of German-Italian menace" to the Americas for political purposes.

(A British communique in Cairo said the Italians had entered Zeila, Gulf of Aden port in British Somaliland and captured Hargeisa with a strong force after marching thirty miles through the desert.)

Italian airmen struck at British encampments at Salum, guarding the Egyptian-Libyan frontier on the Mediterranean, raided the railway connecting Mersa-Matruh and Alexandria, and shot down a flying boat off Tobruk. Eight of the crew were rescued by an Italian warship.

Across Egypt to the east, Fascist fliers bombed the important oil port of Haifa in British-mandated Palestine, "setting fire to more gasoline tanks and hitting the port works."

(Palestine dispatches said the damage and casualties were believed slight.)

In East Africa, heavy bombers flying ahead of their advancing ground forces attacked the British port of Berbera, in British Somaliland, then crossed the Gulf of Aden to pump explosives on the British port of Aden, guarding the southern entrance to the Red Sea.

Authorities said 337 men were dead and missing in war operations during July, bringing the total since Italy entered the war to 1,916.

Virginio Gayda, Fascist editor who often reflects official opinions, belittled Secretary Hull's statement yesterday warning the American people to be ready for sacrifice and "arm to such an extent that the forces of conquest and ruin will not dare to make an attack on us or any part of this hemisphere."

He wrote in Il Giornale D'Italia that Italy and Germany had entered the war solely to solve European problems and "never thought and will never think of threatening other continents."

Socialite Kills Son and Herself

OAKLAND, Calif., Aug. 7 (AP)—In the name of mercy, a prominent clubwoman killed her grown son and herself today, freeing him of a horror of being alone and herself of an agonizing, constant watch at his side.

Police Lieut. Leon Carroll said Mrs. Estelle Silverstein, 54, used two pistols to kill Phillip Loney, her 31-year-old son by a former marriage, and herself. Two bullets entered Loney's skull. One pierced her brain.

"This is in the name of mercy," she wrote her attorney-husband, Bernard Silverstein.

"Every night Phillip gets on his knees and begs me not to leave him alone. He is so terrified it is horrible. I, his mother, cannot permit it.

"The law should relieve such helpless sufferers. The burden should not be on me."

Fifteen years ago, after losing a sensational divorce fight to Henry Nicholas Loney, "Goldfish King of the Orient," she won another court battle for the boy's custody. At that time Loney, a Java exporter and importer, set aside a $68,000 fund for the boy and provided $150 a month for his maintenance.

The divorce of the boy's parents at San Francisco in 1923 created a sensation in society circles. Loney accused his wife of many flirtations and intimacies with men from London and Singapore.

Stimson Orders Six Army Arsenals on Three Shifts

Munitions Plants To Increase Production 65 percent and Employ 25,000 More Men

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Secretary Stimson ordered six army arsenals today to go on a three-shift basis August 10 in order to increase production of munitions at least sixty-five percent.

The war department chief said the arrangement was authorized temporarily in order to obtain maximum production of needed war supplies from the six establishments.

The order was issued after conferences with Sidney Hillman, labor member of the National Defense Commission, he said, and it was approved by President Roosevelt.

Officials said the step would make possible the employment in the arsenals of more than 8,000 additional skilled mechanics and of possibly double that number of semi-skilled and unskilled personnel.

While the program is in effect laborers and mechanics will be paid time and a half for time worked over forty hours per week. The result will be three shifts of eight hours per day, six days per week. This will apply to laborers and mechanics at the following plants:

Rock Island Arsenal, Rock Island, Ill., which now has approximately 5,500 employes.

State Department May Reprimand John P. Cudahy

Welles Displeased at Address Made by Belgian Ambassador

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—John P. Cudahy, big-game hunter ambassador to Belgium, faced a possible reprimand from the State department tonight for an unauthorized interview in London in which he discussed food conditions and the conduct of German soldiers in Belgium.

Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, announced that he had cabled a complete text of Sudahy's remarks, made yesterday, which provoked sharp criticism in the British press.

Unauthorized Address

Cudahy, who stopped in London to visit Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy before coming home, gave the interview, Welles said, without notifying the State department or receiving permission from it. Welles declined to comment on Cudahy's remarks until he had seen an official text.

British Seeking War Materials In America

Want To Purchase Many Weapons from United States Manufacturers

By IRVING PERLMETER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—American manufacturers today were offered "hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of new British orders for tanks, artillery and other weapons heretofore not bought in this country.

The important expansion of British purchasing was announced almost simultaneously in London by Arthur Greenwood, Laborite minister, and in Washington by Arthur B. Purvis, chief British purchasing agent.

Flanked by three leading British military and industrial technicians, Purvis laid the proposals before Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, official coordinator of British and American war material purchases.

Afterward, Purvis told reporters that while formerly Britain bought here only airplanes and other items of vital and immediate necessity, he and other British officials were shaping a long-range program to purchase many weapons Britain formerly bought from only its own factories.

He hinted that this might be a precaution against the crippling of British plants by Nazi air raiders.

While he declined to give exact figures, Purvis' statement that the new orders would amount to "hundreds of millions of dollars" indicated that they might raise the British total in this country since the war began past $2,000,000,000.

He said that tanks and field artillery were important items in the new program. That, he said, explained the presence with him of Brigadier General D. H. Pratt and Michael Dewar, British tank experts. Also present was Admiral A. E. Evans, British naval commander only recently withdrawn from the battle fleet to advise Purvis and Canadian authorities on technical problems of naval supply.

Admiral Evans' work here, however, was said by Purvis not to involve efforts of the British to buy old destroyers of the United States Navy.

Today's announcement was the second important British purchasing declaration in a few weeks. American industry was startled recently by disclosure that the British were trying to place new contracts in this country calling for 3,000 military airplanes a month beginning next January.

Asks that American Plants Play Role of Supplementary Producers of War Materials

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 7—Great Britain must dovetail her own military effort with the American defense program to win the war, parliament was told today.

The government spokesman, Arthur Greenwood, pictured American factories — guided by war-trained technical exports from Britain—in the role of supplementary producers of war material with the British fighting forces as the consumers.

His comment raised the question of immensely increased shipments of arms from a country girding for her own defense but at the same time seeking to aid the British in all ways "short of war."

"The need to supplement our own production by drawing upon the vast and invulnerable capacity of North America has immensely increased since the fall of France," Greenwood said.

"While but a few months ago we were placing orders with American industry to supplement the deficiencies in the combined Allied production, we now need to embark on a much more extensive program which must be related to the American defense preparations."

Geared To U. S. Plans

The declaration of the minister without portfolio was taken to mean that British orders for war material —now under negotiation for tremendous increases—would be dovetailed with the United States' own orders to American plants.

Standardization of such supplies as ammunition and plane motors to permit mass production and buying by both governments already has been proposed.

In fields of combat with Germany, at sea and in the air, the British reported:

Sinkings Announced

Sinking of the 9,337-ton British freighter Accra, torpedoed in convoy off the west coast of Ireland, with 25 believed lost. Some 450 survivors were picked up and the submarine attacker was believed sunk.

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

Great Britain turned to the United States yesterday (Wednesday) for immensely-increased quantities of tanks, artillery and other war supplies to meet Germany's expected blitzkrieg and Italy's challenge to Britain's African domains.

The British government began negotiations in Washington for "hundreds of millions of dollars" of war materials in addition to planes already ordered. Coincidentally, Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio in the Churchill cabinet, told Commons that Britons must dovetail their own military effort with the accelerating American defense program.

Greenwood envisioned American factories as supplementary producers of war materials for the British fighting forces.

Premier Mussolini's campaign in Africa met initial successes in British Somaliland.

Italians marched into Zeila, a port on the Gulf of Aden across from the British protectorate of Aden, and have captured Hergeisa, British Somaliland, with a strong force after a thirty-mile desert march. A third objective in the Somaliland, the town of Oadweina, also was taken.

Italy To Attack Egypt

A British spokesman confidently said Italy's African colonies would be held "just where we want them." The British also said Italy was massing forces in Libya for an attack upon Egypt—this in the face Italian reports Tuesday that Egypt had been invaded by the Italians.

The Royal Air Force, striking at Likely jumping-off places for a German Blitzkrieg, said it had bombed Le Bourget in Paris, once France's principal airport, Tuesday and that bombs had landed near German aircraft and hangers.

The British also reported raids on an oil plant at Humburg and said that twin-motored Wellington bombers rained tons of bombs on German factories in the Ruhr valley and Nazi airports in the Netherlands.

Twenty-five Persons Lose Lives as Hurricane Sweeps Southern States

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., Aug. 7 (AP)—A death-dealing hurricane stormed inland tonight, leaving a trail of destruction and uncertainty in the Sabine area of Texas and Louisiana.

Three lives were lost, twenty-five persons marooned and six injured as the seventy-five-mile-an-hour winds overtook some of the hundreds who sought safety in flight, either inland or to public buildings.

Roaring into Texas from the East, the storm lashed Port Arthur and Orange. First of the season, it whisked roofs from houses, uprooted oak trees and sent advertising signs whirling dangerously through the air.

The fatalities all occurred in Louisiana. James Gordon, 60-year-old fisherman, drowned near Alluvial, an aged, unidentified refugee was caught trying to flee high tides, and a Chinese youth drowned in Barataria bayou.

None of the injured was reported hurt seriously. There were no reports of loss of life or serious damage in Texas thus far.

Twenty men and five women marooned at a fishing camp at Black Bayou near Orange had been warned, but elected to ride out the storm. Telephone lines were down and boatmen would not risk a trip to determine their safety.

Approximately 150 persons were marooned for a few hours in the Parish courthouse at Cameron, La., as the storm swept water two feet deep through the little fishing town.

Rich oil fields near Humble, Cleveland, and possibly Conroe, near Houston, were in the storm's path. The Gulf Oil Company dismissed

Committee Adopts Post Card System For Reporting Traffic Accidents

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP)—A post card or short form traffic accident report system was approved today by the executive committee of Governor O'Conor's Maryland Traffic Safety committee.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles W. Lee Elgin, a committee member, said the short form reports would be printed on post cards and widely distributed in Maryland "where they may always be readily available to those motorists involved in an accident.

The object, Elgin pointed out, is to gather as much statistical information as possible to be used in making traffic surveys because each minor accident "is a potential serious accident and the cause should be eliminated."

Under present law only accidents involving personal injuries need be reported, and Elgin explained that the new post card system "does not take the place of the usual reports" made to the commissioner "when personal injury and death has occurred."

The post card reports will not be used other than for the statistical information," he said.

"Governor O'Conor is asking the help of all committee members to publicize as much as possible the fact that these post card accidents reports will be available within the next week and to further stress the fact that in the interest of traffic safety they should be used.

"There is no doubt that many accidents are caused by engineering defects and the absence of a warning sign and other causes. It is hoped that with this mass information many road hazards may be eliminated."

Senate Kills Voluntary Muster of National Guard

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP) — Leaders of the Senate anti-conscription bloc found themselves on the losing side today when they supported a plan to muster the National Guard upon a voluntary rather than a compulsory basis.

The Senate, by a vote of 47 to 36, rejected the plan, which had been offered as an amendment to a pending bill empowering the president to call out the militia and the army reserve forces for twelve months active service anywhere in the Western hemisphere.

The chamber pushed the latter legislation to a point very near final passage. After that action, which leaders expected tomorrow, the Senate is scheduled to take up the conscription bill itself, subjecting all men between 21 and 30, inclusive, to selective compulsory military training.

Holt and Minton Clash

The issues involved in the latter were tangled again today in the discussion of the National Guard bill, and the intensity of the controversy involved led again to a bitter exchange of personalities between Senators Holt (D-W Va.) and Minton (D-Ind.).

Meanwhile, the Senate Military committee, which approved the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill 18 to three several days ago, issued a report on the measure urging its enactment "for the adequate protection of the cherished heritages of a nation." It would "be criminal," the document said, "to give the nation a false sense of security the mere possession of defensive armaments and a corresponding lack of trained men."

Voluntary Basis Asked

Senator Danaher (R-Conn.) who has not yet declared his position on the Burke - Wadsworth bill, brought up the issue of putting the mustering of the national guard upon a voluntary basis. He proposed an amendment under which all men affected would be given the option of resigning within twenty days after the bill becomes effective.

He argued that most members of the guard enlisted with the understanding that they could not be called to active service unless Congress declared a national emergency. Under the bill as it stood, he said, a national guardsman could be called out without regard for the consequent "plight of himself and his family."

He questioned, too, the effectiveness of provisions in the bill intended to assure a militiaman called to service that his job would be restored to him when his service period had ended.

On the voting, all leaders of the anti-conscription bloc — including Wheeler (D-Mont), Vandenberg (R-Mich.), Holt and others fell in with the Connecticut senator. But, ad-

Italy To Attack Egypt

A British spokesman confidently said Italy's African colonies would be held "just where we want them." The British also said Italy was massing forces in Libya for an attack upon Egypt—this in the face Italian reports Tuesday that Egypt had been invaded by the Italians.

The Royal Air Force, striking at Likely jumping-off places for a German Blitzkrieg, said it had bombed Le Bourget in Paris, once France's principal airport, Tuesday and that bombs had landed near German aircraft and hangers.

The British also reported raids on an oil plant at Humburg and said that twin-motored Wellington bombers rained tons of bombs on German factories in the Ruhr valley and Nazi airports in the Netherlands.

Committee Adopts Post Card System For Reporting Traffic Accidents

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7. (AP)—A post card or short form traffic accident report system was approved today by the executive committee of Governor O'Conor's Maryland Traffic Safety committee.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles W. Lee Elgin, a committee member, said the short form reports would be printed on post cards and widely distributed in Maryland "where they may always be readily available to those motorists involved in an accident.

The object, Elgin pointed out, is to gather as much statistical information as possible to be used in making traffic surveys because each minor accident "is a potential serious accident and the cause should be eliminated."

Under present law only accidents involving personal injuries need be reported, and Elgin explained that the new post card system "does not take the place of the usual reports" made to the commissioner "when personal injury and death has occurred."

The post card reports will not be used other than for the statistical information," he said.

"Governor O'Conor is asking the help of all committee members to publicize as much as possible the fact that these post card accidents reports will be available within the next week and to further stress the fact that in the interest of traffic safety they should be used.

"There is no doubt that many accidents are caused by engineering defects and the absence of a warning sign and other causes. It is hoped that with this mass information many road hazards may be eliminated."

wenty-five Persons Lose Lives as Hurricane Sweeps Southern States

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., Aug. 7 (AP) A death-dealing hurricane storm- inland tonight, leaving a trail destruction and uncertainty in e Sabine area of Texas and uisiana.

Senator Rush Holt And Minton Have Battle of Words

Expressions of 'Contempt' and Cries of 'Coward' Mark Speeches

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7. (AP)—Two Democratic Senators, Rush Holt of West Virginia and Sherman Minton of Indiana, hotly renewed their battle of oratory in the Senate today in a round of speeches bristling with cries of "coward" and expressions of "contempt."

Senator Lee (D-Okla) entered the controversy at one point to deny that during the opening conflict between the two yesterday "the Senator from Indiana was intoxicated."

Holt, Lee said, had said something unintended yesterday "in the heat of anger."

He said, the Oklahoman continued, "that the Senator from Indiana did not appear to be in shape on the floor. This would give rise to the implication that the Senator from Indiana was intoxicated.

"I had the Senator from Indiana blow his breath in my face. There was no liquor on his breath. I never saw him take a drink. That sort of thing is said in the heat of anger and might result in unfair interpretation."

Holt, who had previously finished his principal speech in the controversy, jumped up and said only that he was "glad the Senator from Oklahoma is an expert on halitosis."

Briefly interrupting discussion of a National Guard mobilization bill, the West Virginian rose first today and vehemently asserted that remarks which Minton made during defense debate yesterday about the Holt family constituted "a malicious, uncalled for and untrue attack."

Minton, who had called the family a "slacker family" and charged that the elder Holt sent a son to South America to avoid the World war draft, sat silent throughout the speech but declared upon its conclusion that "it is a little late not to expect me to accept the denial."

If Holt had documents to disprove contemporary newspaper reports of his father's activities, Minton continued, he should have published them long since.

The Indianian shouted that "parliamentary language will not permit me to express my contempt for the Senator from West Virginia."

Most Senators were in their seats and gallery crowds listened intently as the two law-makers hurled their rock-hard words at each other.

Amendments to Hatch Law Urged By Wendell Willkie

Would Have Federal Officials File Sworn Statements of Assets

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 7 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie said today he wanted the Hatch Anti-politics law amended to require that the president and all federal policy-making officials file sworn statements of their personal assets upon entering and leaving office.

"That requirement also should extend to members of their families," he added.

In response to a question, he said he would be "delighted" to file such a statement for himself and for members of his family if he were elected president, regardless of whether the suggested amendments were enacted.

Willkie added that in connection with the listing of assets of families another amendment would be desirable to "prohibit by law any member of any family of an official from receiving any compensation for any personal dealing with the federal government."

He said his suggestions regarding the Hatch act had sprung from his reading that now would be a good time to close all its loopholes.

Willkie told a press conference he thought it was very important that members of official families" file statements of their assets regardless of whether they were employed by the federal government.

In response to questions, he said he had no special examples in mind but that people had observed for years that families of officials represented private companies before government boards and commissions.

O'Conor Acts on Six Pardon Cases

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 7 (AP)—Governor O'Conor announced today that he had granted four of the remaining six pardon cases recently recommended to him by the Maryland director of the division of parole and probation, one for a convicted Harford county murderer who has been on parole seven years.

The governor denied clemency in two cases, that of John Eder, Jr., convicted on eight charges of larceny of automobiles and accessories in Baltimore county, and Reginald Walters, serving a life term for first degree murder.

William Lannon Winters, who was convicted of second degree murder for slaying of a guard during a distillery hold up in 1922, won an outright pardon. He was paroled by the late Governor Albert Ritchie in June, 1933, and O'Conor said "reports indicate that he made a very satisfactory adjustment in his home community."

A partial pardon was granted Carl Wawrzyniak who has been on parole since 1935 when he was convicted of larceny in Baltimore.

A pardon was granted Donald E. Younker, who was paroled in 1928 after conviction of housebreaking and larceny in Montgomery county.

J. Yale Gordon, convicted in Baltimore county of perjury and conspiracy to obstruct justice, was pardoned from a three-year term. The governor noted that a petition signed by sixty members of the Baltimore Bar Association requested clemency for Gordon, an attorney.

CANTON, N. Y., Aug. 7. (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, First Army commander, warned tonight against believing in the "security of two oceans"; and called for a sound defense solution "before it is too late."

Formally opening the nation's largest peace-time army maneuvers in Northern New York, Drum told more than 11,000 officers and enlisted men America must recognize immediately the problems involved in creating a modern fighting army in view of the "ever increasing danger facing us."

Italian Women Are Upbraided for Aping American Movie Stars

Summary of War

Liner Accra was torpedoed and sunk off Ireland's west coast with nineteen persons missing and 450 others rescued; the 4,360-ton Pindos, of Greek registry, was reported sunk near the Northwest Donegal coast while carrying corn from Argentina to Britain; and the British minesweeping Trawler River Clyde was sunk by a German mine was reported by the admiralty.

New York reports that English refugee children were aboard the Accra were denied by the ship's owners.

Naval Battle Reported

What might have been a battle off the South American coast between the British armed Merchantman Alcantara and a German raider which recently damaged her was reported from Rio De Janeiro. The newspaper A Noite said loud explosions had been heard at sea Tuesday night and two armed ships had been seen by men on a Brazilian ship.

Hungary served notice that she would not be satisfied with anything less than the return of seventy-five percent of the province of Trayivania, which has been ruled by Rumania for twenty years.

That was reported as the demand given to Raoul Bossy, Rumanian envoy, by Hungarian Premier Pal Teleki in a conference yesterday at Budapest. Germany, which has ordered Rumania to negotiate directly with Hungary for settlement of the Transylvania problem, was seen as prodding for a quick settlement.

Looking forward to a German peace, Das Schwarze Korps, mouthpiece of Adolf Hitler's Elite SS Guard, proclaimed that Europe would be Jewless. The paper said that when the war is won some area remote from Europe would be set apart for Jews and the continent then would be cleared of them.

Life-long Democrat Opposed to Breaking Third Term Tradition

EASTON, Md., Aug. 7 (AP)—William H. Adkins, former court of appeals judge and a life-long Democrat, asserted in a formal statement today he was opposed to a third term for President Roosevelt.

"If there were no other reason for opposing the election of Mr. Roosevelt, his casual disregard of the anti-third term tradition, going back to the beginning of our history, would be sufficient," he said.

"And the objection on that ground is emphasized by his own opinion that he is indispensable. When a man reaches that point, he becomes dangerous. I think he has all the makings of a dictator."

Judge Adkins served on the Maryland bench for more than twenty-five years.

Hungary Wants More Of Transylvania Returned to Her

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 7 (AP)—Hungary served notice tonight that in her twenty-year-long territorial dispute with Rumania she will be satisfied with nothing less than a return of seventy-five per cent of Transylvania.

This word, it was learned on high authority, was given to Raoul Bossy, a Rumanian envoy, in a half-hour talk with Hungarian Premier Pal Teleki at the foreign office.

Bossy, it was announced, will return to Bucharest tomorrow to inform his government of Hungary's position.

Signs that Germany was prodding Rumania to make a quick settlement of Hungary's claims were seen today in Bucharest.

The newspapers there ceased all claims for resistance against the Hungarian demands. Instead, they reprinted a Berlin foreign office article which criticized Rumanians "who have assumed an attitude of false heroism in settling relations with Hungary."

(The German wireless, attributing its information to the Bucharest radio, reported that Rumania was prepared to make concessions to another territorial claimant—Bulgaria—but that these must not be "one-sided.")

Three State Jobs Are Now Open

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7. (AP)—State Employment Commissioner Harry C. Jones announced today applications would be accepted for three state jobs—state patrolman, male stenographer at the state penal farm at Breathedsville, and deputy game warden for Baltimore county.

The closing date for applications for the first job is Aug. 15, for the others, Aug. 19. No date for the examinations has been set.

The state police job pays $1,500 a year, with maintenance and uniform equipment. Notice of the examination emphasized that qualifications for the test had been prescribed by the superintendent of state police, and warned applicants not to seek the post unless they could comply with the requirements.

Compensation for the stenographer's job will be $1,200 a year and maintenance, and for the deputy game warden, $1,200.

Bill Is Passed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—The House passed and sent to the White House today a bill to bring certain employes of so-called "captive" coal mines under the old age and unemployment insurance provisions of the Social Security law.

Employes of railroads engaged in mining coal or loading coal in the mine or at the tipple now come under the railroad retirement and railroad unemployment insurance acts.

Murray Advocates Conscription of Country's Wealth

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7 (AP) — Philip Murray, CIO leader, striking at what he termed the "dollar patriotism" of some "big industrialists," demanded today the federal government "take steps now to conscript the country's wealth and commandeer the productive facilities necessary to defense."

Addressing the closing convention session of the Inland Boatmen's division, CIO National Maritime Union, the right-hand lieutenant of John L. Lewis also predicted "further attacks" on organized labor would be made "by these pseudo patriots under the cover of defense."

He said one attack was likely to occur at a pending "secret meeting" of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor to discuss the Wagner act.

Murray cited Eugene G. Grace, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, as one of those he said have refused to invest "a single penny unless the government puts up the money (for plant expansions and changes), provides the facilities and guarantees profits although his concern already has received $200,000,000 in defense orders."

The labor leader said a leading manufacturer of farm machinery and another unidentified firm "right here in Pittsburgh" had made similar demands when asked by the government to produce tanks.

Suggestion Sought By George To Aid National Defense

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7. (AP)—Isaac S. George, executive officer of the Maryland Council of Defense and Resources, today asked the aid of groups and individuals in assembling information and suggestions relating to national defense.

George said Governor O'Conor had proposed that the council act as a clearing house, and added that some suggestions "of considerable merit" already had been received.

George said the council would utilize such suggestions as that from Dr. George H. Preston, commissioner of mental hygiene, that state hospital records would show "certain individuals would be distinct handicaps in any training program."

Another offer of information on Maryland food crops, consumption and surplusses has come from P. C. Turner, president of the Maryland Farm Bureau, George said.

4-H Club Prize Winners Announced

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Aug. 7 (AP) —Names of more than 100 prize winners in 4-H club canning, baking and dress making were announced today by extension service judges at the twenty-second annual club week attended by 638 boys and girls from all sections of Maryland.

Delegates spent most of today at routine matters, attending group demonstrations and discussions.

Tomorrow many of the winning entries will be placed on display.

Dr. R. G. Steinmeyer, professor of political science at the University of Maryland, will make the principal address at an assembly tomorrow on "the meaning of citizenship in a democracy."

Another highlight of tomorrow's program will be a meeting of delegates of the Maryland Council of 4-H Clubs when officers for next year will be elected.

A banquet and dance for all club members will be held tomorrow night.

Jewless Europe Is Envisioned By the Nazis

Banishment to Remote Corner of World Is German Peace Aim

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Aug. 7—A German peace will mean a Jew-less peace, Das Schwarze Korps, mouthpiece of Adolf Hitler's elite SS Guard, proclaimed today.

Once the war is won, some area remote from Europe will be set apart for Jewish colonization, the paper said, and then the continent will be cleared entirely of Jews.

Hitler's airforce and raiding warships meanwhile battered against the only obstacles to a German peace—the island fortress of England and British sea power.

The Nazi high command announced a German raider had sunk 30,000 tons of British merchant shipping "overseas" and that German bombers had raided airports near Tynemouth and St. Athan, the Vickers-Armstrong airplane factories in Chester and munitions plants in Swansea. Night-raiding British planes dropped bombs in Holland and Western Germany but failed, the high command said, to inflict any "damage worth mentioning."

Await Assault on England

As Europe waited for the long-heralded grand assault on Britain, Hitler signed decrees bringing portions of the continent closer to annexation by the Reich.

German was declared the official language of occupied Luxembourg. The civil administrations of Luxembourg, Alsace and Lorraine were taken from the military and placed under civil administrators, directly responsible to Hitler.

The Fuehrer appointed Joseph Buerckel to head the civil administration of Lorraine, and named Reich youth leader Baldur Von Schirach as governor of Austria to succeed Buerckel. Robert Wagner and Gustav Simon were named respectively chiefs of the civil administrations in Alsace and Luxembourg.

Von Schirach's place as youth leader will be filled by Chief District Leader Arthur Amann.

Hitler visited Germany's greatest arms factory—the Krupp works at Essen—and decorated the head of the firm, Dr. Gustav Von Bohlen und Halbach, on his seventieth birthday anniversary.

Say Jews Aid British

Das Schwarze Korps' discussion of a "peace without Jews" declared Jews had co-operated with Britain in an attempt to "convert all Europe into a chaotic, blood-soaked battlefield."

Therefore they must pay the bill the paper said.

The German-Italian victory, the paper explained, "will secure space far away from European labor and culture where the scum of humanity may try to lead a life of its own toil or die a death it earned."

The article implied that anti-semitic measures already put into effect in various European countries are too weak, and that solution on a continental scale is necessary.

Almost at the same time a dispatch from Washington told of British plans for purchase of "hundreds of millions of dollars" worth of tanks, artillery and other war supplies in addition to all previous Allied orders.

The chief British agent in Washington, Arthur B. Purvis, would not estimate the dollar extent of the new program but previous purchases have topped $1,000,000,000.

Greenwood said Britain's shipping was "not too bad" and that "starvation of the people of this country is impossible."

A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, told a luncheon audience that the defense of Britain, "far from being one of pessimism, is one of great encouragement," with the situation improved since Germany completed the conquest of France.

LaGuardia Pays One Cent Bet

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP) — Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York paid off a one cent bet to Rep. Randolph (D-W.Va.) today after being reminded that he owed it.

Randolph bet LaGuardia a cent on Aug. 8, 1939 that President Roosevelt would be renominated.

"Thank you very much for your reminder," LaGuardia wrote Randolph. "This is one wager I am very glad to pay."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

It will take time to disclose whether Italy's highly advertised offensives in Egypt and British Africa are the real thing, or just a minor part of the battle of Britain in the Hitler-Mussolini strategy.

There seem to be urgent reasons pressing on Germany to push the fight with Britain to a finish at the earliest possible moment, either by invasion of the island or starvation. It is a far fetched conjecture to say that the Italian offensive means there has been a shift in roles between the axis team-mates, as some London comment suggests, and that Mussolini's desert legions are to carry the brunt of the attack while Germany merely holds England under siege.

Italy Stages Side Show

There has never been any effort by the Nazi press or by Hitler himself to conceal the fact that in Nazi eyes Italy was only a useful tail to the German kite. Her function in the battle of France was obviously merely a holding function. Actually, Italian attacks along the Franco-Italian frontiers seem to have been staged more for Italian home consumption than because they contributed greatly to the defeat of France.

It is well within the range of possibility, therefore, that Italy's drive to seize the Suez canal is more or less a side show for what Mussolini knows to be impending in the battle of Britain. Certainly nature confronts him with more formidable odds in the shifting desert sands his troops must traverse than even the English channel-North Sea "moat" about England offers to Germany.

According to Nazi conceptions, this has been a German-British war from the outset. Even France was of secondary importance to Hitler. From his view-point, as reflected repeatedly in his public utterances, the war can even be personalized into a struggle between himself and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Britain.

Wants Part of Spoils

The battle of the Mediterranean outlets, whether the Suez canal or the Straits of Gibraltar, will be lost or won in all probability in England. Mussolini is well aware of that. He probably also is aware that a completely victorious Hitler would be apt to divide the spoils of victory to suit himself or in proportion to the amount of aid he had received from Italy.

Rome press forecasts of an Italian "desert blitzkrieg" that could overcome lack of water, climatic conditions and all the other natural factors that have made Egypt impregnable from the West for centuries do not sound convincing.

What, then, does Italy's widely advertised invasion of Egypt probably mean? At a guess, it is Mussolini's way of putting a few more chips on the table for use with Hitler if and when the battle of Britain has been won by the senior partner of the axis fellowship. And Mussolini clearly expects or hopes for such a victory before his forces get deeply enough involved in Egypt or anywhere elese to risk serious disaster.

manded by Secretary Hull last March for a pro-ally speech he made in Toronto while he was minister to Canada.

The London News Chronicle, criticizing Cudahy, said:

"It is generally felt that on grounds of good taste alone this is hardly the time for a foreign diplomat ostensibly in England on a purely personal visit to praise openly German conduct in their invasion of a neutral country and by implication to make it appear that Britain is responsible for famine in Belgium and other German-occupied territory."

Belgians Facing Famine

A remark attributed to Cudahy that he thought "these Germans (occupying Belgium) behaved better than United States soldiers would have done" was known to have irritated some State department officials.

Drawing a grim picture of living conditions in Belgium, he said people there would be reduced to a situation "close to famine" by mid-September unless American food supplies reached them.

Welles said he had received only fragmentary reports on the prospective food situation in Belgium this winter.

Cudahy, member of the wealthy meat packing family, went to Belgium as ambassador last January from Dublin, where he was minister to Erie.

Nazi Warplanes Renew Raids on English Towns

Nazi Airmen Suddenly Accelerate Attacks on Great Britain

A SOUTHWEST TOWN OF ENGLAND, Aug. 8 (Thursday) (AP) —Two waves of German warplanes raided this town last night and early today as German airmen suddenly accelerated their attacks on Great Britain after a brief rest.

The Germans twice dropped brilliant flares to light up the whole town. Immediately afterward, the dull boom of the bombs was heard somewhere on the outskirts and then British fighters were heard racing to intercept their enemy.

Scores of searchlights swept the sky as the engines of the bombers were distinctly heard.

Elsewhere, one enemy plane which crossed the northeast coast early today sped a short distance inland and dropped a number of bombs before rushing out to sea; one bomber seen over the northeast coast was believed to have dropped three bombs.

The Germans also harrassed Wales.

LONDON, Aug. 8 (Thursday) (AP) —Stepping up their bombing forays after a brief lull, German airmen dropped bombs in western England last night and early today and harrassed other sections of England and Wales.

First reports indicated there were one or two slight casualties and slight damage done to property in the residential district of one town in southwest England, where the Nazis dropped four or five bombs.

In one raid near a northwestern town, the Germans were said to have dropped several bombs in a field.

In northeast England, Royal Air Force fighters went up after raiders who flew over one town. Searchlights played over a wide area but no bombs appeared to have been dropped.

However, several explosions were heard in southwest England and Wales when German planes were reported in that section but first reports did not say bombs were dropped. Searchlights operated there also.

Reaction to the president's press conference statement yesterday that World war veterans probably would be called upon to take over home defense duties, if and when the National Guard is called out for federal military service, was described by persons close to the chief executive as pleasing.

The scheduling of the Wallace-Hopkins parley tomorrow indicated that the chief executive would wait until Friday to start another personal inspection of strategic setments of the $10,000,000,000 defense program.

O'Conor Acts on Six Pardon Cases

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 7 (AP)—Governor O'Conor announced today that he had granted four of the remaining six pardon cases recently recommended to him by the Maryland director of the division of parole and probation, one for a convicted Harford county murderer who has been on parole seven years.

The governor denied clemency in two cases, that of John Eder, Jr., convicted on eight charges of larceny of automobiles and accessories in Baltimore county, and Reginald Walters, serving a life term for first degree murder.

William Lannon Winters, who was convicted of second degree murder for slaying of a guard during a distillery hold up in 1922, won an outright pardon. He was paroled by the late Governor Albert Ritchie in June, 1933, and O'Conor said "reports indicate that he made a very satisfactory adjustment in his home community."

A partial pardon was granted Carl Wawrzyniak who has been on parole since 1935 when he was convicted of larceny in Baltimore.

A pardon was granted Donald E. Younker, who was paroled in 1928 after conviction of housebreaking and larceny in Montgomery county.

J. Yale Gordon, convicted in Baltimore county of perjury and conspiracy to obstruct justice, was pardoned from a three-year term. The governor noted that a petition signed by sixty members of the Baltimore Bar Association requested clemency for Gordon, an attorney.

Summary of War

Liner Accra was torpedoed and sunk off Ireland's west coast with nineteen persons missing and 450 others rescued; the 4,360-ton Pindos, of Greek registry, was reported sunk near the Northwest Donegal coast while carrying corn from Argentina to Britain; and the British mine-sweeping Trawler River Clyde was sunk by a German mine was reported by the admiralty.

New York reports that English refugee children were aboard the Accra were denied by the ship's owners.

Naval Battle Reported

What might have been a battle off the South American coast between the British armed Merchantman Alcantara and a German raider which recently damaged her was reported from Rio De Janeiro. The newspaper A Noite said loud explosions had been heard at sea Tuesday night and two armed ships had been seen by men on a Brazilian ship.

Hungary served notice that she would not be satisfied with anything less than the return of seventy-five percent of the province of Trayivania, which has been ruled by Rumania for twenty years.

That was reported as the demand given to Raoul Bossy, Rumanian envoy, by Hungarian Premier Pal Teleki in a conference yesterday at Budapest. Germany, which has ordered Rumania to negotiate directly with Hungary for settlement of the Transylvania problem, was seen as prodding for a quick settlement.

Looking forward to a German peace, Das Schwarze Korps, mouthpiece of Adolf Hitler's Elite SS Guard, proclaimed that Europe would be Jewless. The paper said that when the war is won some area remote from Europe would be set apart for Jews and the continent then would be cleared of them.

Life-long Democrat Opposed to Breaking Third Term Tradition

EASTON, Md., Aug. 7 (AP)—William H. Adkins, former court of appeals judge and a life-long Democrat, asserted in a formal statement today he was opposed to a third term for President Roosevelt.

"If there were no other reason for opposing the election of Mr. Roosevelt, his casual disregard of the anti-third term tradition, going back to the beginning of our history, would be sufficient," he said.

"And the objection on that ground is emphasized by his own opinion that he is indispensable. When a man reaches that point, he becomes dangerous. I think he has all the makings of a dictator."

Judge Adkins served on the Maryland bench for more than twenty-five years.

Two Oceans Are Not Enough Security Army Man Says

CANTON, N. Y., Aug. 7. (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, First Army commander, warned tonight against believing in the "security of two oceans"; and called for a sound defense solution "before it is too late."

Formally opening the nation's largest peace-time army maneuvers in Northern New York, Drum told more than 11,000 officers and enlisted men America must recognize immediately the problems involved in creating a modern fighting army in view of the "ever increasing danger facing us."

Italian Women Are Upbraided for Aping American Movie Stars

ROME, Aug. 7 (AP) — Italian women who wear trousers and big sunglasses were upbraided today by Premiem Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo D' Italia.

They were accused of aping American movie stars; of wearing costumes which not only were in bad taste but sacrificed the wearers' femininity.

Pioneer Motorcar Magnate Succumbs

DETROIT, Aug. 7 (AP)—Charles D. Hastings, a pioneer of the motor-car industry, died at his home here today after an illness of six months.

Hastings, born in Hillsdale, Mich., nearly eighty-two years ago, entered the automobile industry as a salesman for the Olds Motor Works in 1903. Subsequently he was with the Thomas-Detroit Company, and then joined the Hupp Motor Car Corporation of which he was successively general manager, president and chairman of the board. He retired in 1935.

CHURCHILL AND HITLER MEET

Hungary Wants More Of Transylvania Returned to Her

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 7 (AP)—Hungary served notice tonight that in her twenty-year-long territorial dispute with Rumania she will be satisfied with nothing less than a return of seventy-five per cent of Transylvania.

This word, it was learned on high authority, was given to Raoul Bossy, a Rumanian envoy, in a half-hour talk with Hungarian Premier Pal Teleki at the foreign office.

Bossy, it was announced, will return to Bucharest tomorrow to inform his government of Hungary's position.

Signs that Germany was prodding Rumania to make a quick settlement of Hungary's claims were seen today in Bucharest.

The newspapers there ceased all claims for resistance against the Hungarian demands. Instead, they reprinted a Berlin foreign office article which criticized Rumanians "who have assumed an attitude of false heroism in settling relations with Hungary."

(The German wireless, attributing its information to the Bucharest radio, reported that Rumania was prepared to make concessions to another territorial claimant—Bulgaria—but that these must not be "one-sided.")

Three State Jobs Are Now Open

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7. (AP)—State Employment Commissioner Harry C. Jones announced today applications would be accepted for three state jobs—state patrolman, male stenographer at the state penal farm at Breathedsville, and deputy game warden for Baltimore county.

The closing date for applications for the first job is Aug. 15, for the others, Aug. 19. No date for the examinations has been set.

The state police job pays $1,500 a year, with maintenance and uniform equipment. Notice of the examination emphasized that qualifications for the test had been prescribed by the superintendent of state police, and warned applicants not to seek the post unless they could comply with the requirements.

Compensation for the stenographer's job will be $1,200 a year and maintenance, and for the deputy game warden, $1,200.

Mt. Airy Will Get New Municipal Building

MT. AIRY, Md., Aug. 7 (AP)—Mayor Charles A. Ogle said today that construction is expected to begin about Aug. 14 on the new $10,000 municipal building here to house equipment of the Mt. Airy volunteer fire department.

The two-story brick building will be about 50 by 100 feet, located on Main street adjoining the present engine house of the volunteer fire department.

New Ambulance

FREDERICK, Md., Aug. 7 (AP)—A seven-passenger, specially designed ambulance has been placed in service at Barracks "B" by the Maryland State Police for emergency service in Frederick and Washington counties.

Sergeant Charles W. Magaha, station commander, said the ambulance was designed by Dr. Howard M. Bubert, head of the state police medical department.

Bill Is Passed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—The House passed and sent to the White House today a bill to bring certain employes of so-called "captive" coal mines under the old age and unemployment insurance provisions of the Social Security law.

Employes of railroads engaged in mining coal or loading coal in the mine or at the tipple now come under the railroad retirement and railroad unemployment insurance acts.

Sex Criminals Hunted

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 7 (AP)—Two escaped sex criminals were hunted tonight for questioning in the "hobo jungle" slaying of pretty Rose Lodi, 22-year old factory worker.

The girl's partially disrobed body—her throat and chest slashed and a handkerchief stuffed in her mouth — was found by her father in a woodland thicket this morning after an all-night sea

Murray Advocates Conscription of Country's Wealth

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7 (AP)—Philip Murray, CIO leader, striking at what he termed the "dollar patriotism" of some "big industrialists," demanded today the federal government "take steps now to conscript the country's wealth and commandeer the productive facilities necessary to defense."

Addressing the closing convention session of the Inland Boatmen's division, CIO National Maritime Union, the right-hand lieutenant of John L. Lewis also predicted "further attacks" on organized labor would be made "by these pseudo patriots under the cover of defense."

He said one attack was likely to occur at a pending "secret meeting" of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor to discuss the Wagner act.

Murray cited Eugene G. Grace, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, as one of those he said have refused to invest "a single penny unless the government puts up the money (for plant expansions and changes), provides the facilities and guarantees profits although his concern already has received $200,000,000 in defense orders."

The labor leader said a leading manufacturer of farm machinery and another unidentified firm "right here in Pittsburgh" had made similar demands when asked by the government to produce tanks.

Suggestion Sought By George To Aid National Defense

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7. (AP)—Isaac S. George, executive officer of the Maryland Council of Defense and Resources, today asked the aid of groups and individuals in assembling information and suggestions relating to national defense.

George said Governor O'Conor had proposed that the council act as a clearing house, and added that some suggestions "of considerable merit" already had been received.

George said the council would utilize such suggestions as that from Dr. George H. Preston, commissioner of mental hygiene, that state hospital records would show "certain individuals would be distinct handicaps in any training program."

Another offer of information on Maryland food crops, consumption and surpluses has come from P. C. Turner, president of the Maryland Farm Bureau, George said.

4-H Club Prize Winners Announced

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Aug. 7 (AP)—Names of more than 100 prize winners in 4-H club canning, baking and dress making were announced today by extension service judges at the twenty-second annual club week attended by 638 boys and girls from all sections of Maryland.

Delegates spent most of today at routine matters, attending group demonstrations and discussions.

Tomorrow many of the winning entries will be placed on display.

Dr. R. G. Steinmeyer, professor of political science at the University of Maryland, will make the principal address at an assembly tomorrow on "the meaning of citizenship in a democracy."

Another highlight of tomorrow's program will be a meeting of delegates of the Maryland Council of 4-H Clubs when officers for next year will be elected.

A banquet and dance for all club members will be held tomorrow night.

One, by Rep. Schafer (R-Wis), would require that any adult who accompanied the children must be an American citizen. The other, by Rep. Taber (R-NY), would require families accepted the refugees to take the same responsibility for them as they would for their own children.

Taber argued that unless such precautions were taken, the United States might be required eventually to build institutions to house the youngsters who might be released by their benefactors after the "first few months of excitement."

Jewless Europe Is Envisioned By the Nazis

Banishment to Remote Corner of World Is German Peace Aim

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Aug. 7—A German peace will mean a Jew-less peace, Das Schwarze Korps, mouthpiece of Adolf Hitler's elite SS Guard, proclaimed today.

Once the war is won, some area remote from Europe will be set apart for Jewish colonization, the paper said, and then the continent will be cleared entirely of Jews.

Hitler's airforce and raiding warships meanwhile battered against the only obstacles to a German peace—the island fortress of England and British sea power.

The Nazi high command announced a German raider had sunk 30,000 tons of British merchant shipping "overseas" and that German bombers had raided airports near Tynemouth and St. Athan, the Vickers-Armstrong airplane factories in Chester and munitions plants in Swansea. Night-raiding British planes dropped bombs in Holland and Western Germany but failed, the high command said, to inflict any "damage worth mentioning."

Await Assault on England

As Europe waited for the long-heralded grand assault on Britain, Hitler signed decrees bringing portions of the continent closer to annexation by the Reich.

German was declared the official language of occupied Luxembourg. The civil administrations of Luxembourg, Alsace and Lorraine were taken from the military and placed under civil administrators, directly responsible to Hitler.

The Fuehrer appointed Joseph Buerckel to head the civil administration of Lorraine, and named Reich youth leader Baldur Von Schirach as governor of Austria to succeed Buerckel. Robert Wagner and Gustav Simon were named respectively chiefs of the civil administrations in Alsace and Luxembourg.

Von Schirach's place as youth leader will be filled by Chief District Leader Arthur Amann.

Hitler visited Germany's greatest arms factory—the Krupp works at Essen—and decorated the head of the firm, Dr. Gustav Von Bohlen und Halbach, on his seventieth birthday anniversary.

Say Jews Aid British

Das Schwarze Korps' discussion of a "peace without Jews" declared Jews had co-operated with Britain in an attempt to "convert all Europe into a chaotic, blood-soaked battlefield."

Therefore they must pay the bill, the paper said.

The German-Italian victory, the paper explained, "will secure space far away from European labor and culture where the scum of humanity may try to lead a life of its own toil or die a death it earned."

The article implied that anti-semitic measures already put into effect in various European countries are too weak, and that solution on a continental scale is necessary.

greater heightened American aid, Greenwood announced organization of an Economic War Policy Committee composed of himself as chairman, Nevile Chamberlain and Sir Kingsley Wood.

Almost at the same time a dispatch from Washington told of British plans for purchase of "hundreds of millions of dollars" worth of tanks, artillery and other war supplies in addition to all previous Allied orders.

The chief British agent in Washington, Arthur B. Purvis, would not estimate the dollar extent of the new program but previous purchases have topped $1,000,000,000.

Greenwood said Britain's shipping was "not too bad" and that "starvation of the people of this country is impossible."

A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, told a luncheon audience that the defense of Britain, "far from being one of pessimism, is one of great encouragement," with the situation improved since Germany completed the conquest of France.

LaGuardia Pays One Cent Bet

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York paid off a one cent bet to Rep. Randolph (D-W.Va.) today after being reminded that he owed it.

Randolph bet LaGuardia a cent on Aug. 8, 1939 that President Roosevelt would be renominated.

"Thank you very much for your reminder," LaGuardia wrote Randolph. "This is one wager I am very glad to pay."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

It will take time to disclose whether Italy's highly advertised offensives in Egypt and British Africa are the real thing, or just a minor part of the battle of Britain in the Hitler-Mussolini strategy.

There seem to be urgent reasons pressing on Germany to push the fight with Britain to a finish at the earliest possible moment, either by invasion of the island or starvation. It is a far fetched conjecture to say that the Italian offensive means there has been a shift in roles between the axis team-mates, as some London comment suggests, and that Mussolini's desert legions are to carry the brunt of the attack while Germany merely holds England under siege.

Italy Stages Side Show

There has never been any effort by the Nazi press or by Hitler himself to conceal the fact that in Nazi eyes Italy was only a useful tail to the German kite. Her function in the battle of France was obviously merely a holding function. Actually, Italian attacks along the Franco-Italian frontiers seem to have been staged more for Italian home consumption than because they contributed greatly to the defeat of France.

It is well within the range of possibility, therefore, that Italy's drive to seize the Suez canal is more or less a side show for what Mussolini knows to be impending in the battle of Britain. Certainly nature confronts him with more formidable odds in the shifting desert sands his troops must traverse than even the English channel-North Sea "moat" about England offers to Germany.

According to Nazi conceptions this has been a German-British war from the outset. Even France was of secondary importance to Hitler. From his view-point, as reflected repeatedly in his public utterances, the war can even be personalized into a struggle between himself and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Britain.

Wants Part of Spoils

The battle of the Mediterranean outlets, whether the Suez canal or the Straits of Gibraltar, will be lost or won in all probability in England. Mussolini is well aware of that. He probably also is aware that a completely victorious Hitler would be apt to divide the spoils of victory to suit himself or in proportion to the amount of aid he had received from Italy.

Rome press forecasts of an Italian "desert blitzkrieg" that could overcome lack of water, climatic conditions and all the other natural factors that have made Egypt impregnable from the West for centuries do not sound convincing.

What, then, does Italy's widely advertised invasion of Egypt probably mean? At a guess, it is Mussolini's way of putting a few more chips on the table for use with Hitler if and when the battle of Britain has been won by the senior partner of the axis fellowship. And Mussolini clearly expects or hopes for such a victory before his forces get deeply enough involved in Egypt or anywhere elese to risk serious disaster.

manded by Secretary Hull last March for a pro-ally speech he made in Toronto while he was minister to Canada.

The London News Chronicle, criticizing Cudahy, said:

"It is generally felt that on grounds of good taste alone this is hardly the time for a foreign diplomat ostensibly in England on a purely personal visit to praise openly German conduct in their invasion of a neutral country and by implication to make it appear that Britain is responsible for famine in Belgium and other German-occupied territory."

Belgians Facing Famine

A remark attributed to Cudahy that he thought "these Germans (occupying Belgium) behaved better than United States soldiers would have done" was known to have irritated some State department officials.

Drawing a grim picture of living conditions in Belgium, he said people there would be reduced to a situation "close to famine" by mid-September unless American food supplies reached them.

Welles said he had received only fragmentary reports on the prospective food situation in Belgium this winter.

Cudahy, member of the wealthy meat packing family, went to Belgium as ambassador last January from Dublin, where he was minister to Erie.

ministration leaders held their forces intact, and with some assistance from the Republican side of the aisle, were victorious.

The administration men contended that it would be "absurd to even think about an amendment which would permit any man, no matter what his reason, to quit now after receiving pay and training from the federal government."

(In urging the passage of the legislation, both President Roosevelt and officials of the War department had argued that it was needed so that the guard and the reserves could be given intensive training of a type which military developments abroad had shown was needed.)

Nazi Warplanes Renew Raids on English Towns

Nazi Airmen Suddenly Accelerate Attacks on Great Britain

A SOUTHWEST TOWN OF ENGLAND, Aug. 8 (Thursday) (AP)—Two waves of German warplanes raided this town last night and early today as German airmen suddenly accelerated their attacks on Great Britain after a brief rest.

The Germans twice dropped brilliant flares to light up the whole town. Immediately afterward, the dull boom of the bombs was heard somewhere on the outskirts and then British fighters were heard racing to intercept their enemy.

Scores of searchlights swept the sky as the engines of the bombers were distinctly heard.

Elsewhere, one enemy plane which crossed the northeast coast early today sped a short distance inland and dropped a number of bombs before rushing out to sea; one bomber seen over the northeast coast was believed to have dropped three bombs.

The Germans also harrassed Wales.

LONDON, Aug. 8 (Thursday) (AP)—Stepping up their bombing forays after a brief lull, German airmen dropped bombs in western England last night and early today and harrassed other sections of England and Wales.

First reports indicated there were one or two slight casualties and slight damage done to property in the residential district of one town in southwest England, where the Nazis dropped four or five bombs.

In one raid near a northwestern town, the Germans were said to have dropped several bombs in a field.

In northeast England, Royal Air Force fighters went up after raiders who flew over one town. Searchlights played over a wide area but no bombs appeared to have been dropped.

However, several explosions were heard in southwest England and Wales when German planes were reported in that section but first reports did not say bombs were dropped. Searchlights operated there also.

is expected to take over the major stumping duties.

Reaction to the president's press conference statement yesterday that World war veterans probably would be called upon to take over home defense duties, if and when the National Guard is called out for federal military service, was described by persons close to the chief executive as pleasing.

The scheduling of the Wallace-Hopkins parley tomorrow indicated that the chief executive would wait until Friday to start another personal inspection of strategic settlements of the $10,000,000,000 defense program.

A LITTLE JOKE

Louie's Sense of Humor Gets the Better of Him, and a Career in Crime Gets One Laugh Too Many

By FRANK BENNETT

Too much of anything is too much. Even a sense of humor can be carried too far. Take Louie, for instance. Louis and me was partners for years. No doubt, we'd still be partners if he hadn't played one joke too many.

It happened in the big city. Louie and me was walking down a dark and lonesome street—the kind we preferred to do business on—a couple of bottles of beer under our belts and our pockets practically empty, when Louie says, "Shortly, let's take this guy."

"Okay," I says, and backs into a dark doorway beside Louie.

The fellow was whistling a sour tune and walking at a pretty good clip. Louis pulled out his rod.

He handed the punk a coin.

"I'll cover him, and you shake him down," he whispers.

When the fellow came even with the doorway, Louie stepped out and dug him in the ribs with the rod.

"Hold everything, sonny!" he says between his teeth. "This is a stick-up. As much as a long breath outa you, and I'll let you have it."

The fellow froze, and his hands went up like he was reaching for the roof of a 10-story building.

"I ain't got much money," he said in a scared voice.

I stepped out. There was enough light so that I could see Louie's face. He had a grin on that spread from ear to ear, and I knew he was enjoying one of his own jokes. Probably laughing because his gun was empty. Louie always used an empty gun. It was more fun, he said.

That was the only thing I had against him. He put pleasure before business. For instance, there was the time him and me decided to take the silver out of the Van Horton house. Louie helped me in through a window, and when I reached down to help him up, he was gone. I thought that he had seen a cop, so I waited there by the window, holding my breath. Nothing happened, so it dawned on me that he was playing one of his little jokes. I went on and began sacking the silver. Then the front door bell buzzed.

Scared—I couldn't move. Pretty soon, I heard someone answer the door—and there was Louie.

Louie says, "Mister, I am a private detective, looking for a job. I am wondering if you'd liketo hire me to watch your place at night?"

"No," the guy answered crossly. "Good-by."

"Wait," Louie says. "Do you realize there is a lot of robbers——"

"Good-by!" the guy repeats.

"You'll be sorry you didn't hire me," Louie says. And then I heard the front door slam.

The next day, we got a nice write-up in the papers, and Louie got a big laugh out of it.

Sometimes his jokes got on my nerves. If he hadn't been so on the level, I would have split with him long ago. Also, he had what I needer—lots of muscle and an honest face.

But to get back this holdup—I began going through the mug's pockets. He wasn't very well heeled—a dollar watch and six-seventy-seven in cash.

"Why," Louie says, "holding this bo up ain't worth the effort, hardly. Maybe we should teach him to carry more dough? Maybe I should shoot his legs out from under him, eh?"

I knew Louie was having a lot of fun. "Go ahead," I says.

"Please, mister," the poor sap says, "don't shoot me! I didn't know you were going to hold me up, or I would have brought more money with me. Honest, I would!"

"Umm," Louie says, clicking back the hammer on his empty gun.

"Don't shoot!" the fellow blubbers. "Why," if something should happen to me, I don't know what Alice would do."

"Alice?"

"Alice is my girl. We are going to be married soon. I am on my way to see her now."

"Well, in that case,' Louie says, lowering the hammer on his revolver, "I will let you go if you promise to carry more money with you after this."

"Sure, I will—and thank you so much!" The fellow started away; then suddenly turned back. "Look," he goes on, "it's a long way to Alice's place. How about slipping me a nickel for car fare?"

"Beat it!" I says.

"Wait!" Louie grins. "Why sure thing sonny. Here you are." And he handed the punk a coin.

"Thanks," the guy says, and then hot-footed it down the street.

"You are a sap," I tells Louie.

"Just a little joke," he says, laughing. "That wasn't a real nickel. It was a lead one. Let's follow and watch that guy get tossed out of the subway on his ear.

"Don't be a fool," I says.

Well, we had an argument. Just as I had talked Louie out of following the fellow, a police car popped around the corner.

"Wonder what's up?" Louie says.

We soon found out. That police car slid up to the curb, and we found ourselves staring into the business end of some gats. The fellow we had stuck up was along with the cops.

"That's them," the guy says. "The big one is the guy that give me the nickel."

"That wasn't a nickel," Louie gulps.

"No," the fellow says, "but it fit the pay telephone where I called the cops."

"Laugh at that, you big bum," I says to Louie. "Well, why don't you laugh? The joke was your idea."

Louie just stood there with his mouth hanging open.

"No sense of humor," I tells the cops as they slipped the bracelets on me and Louie.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

THE DAILY STORY

A LITTLE JOKE

Louie's Sense of Humor Gets the Better of Him, and a Career in Crime Gets One Laugh Too Many

By FRANK BENNETT

Too much of anything is too much. Even a sense of humor can be carried too far. Take Louie, for instance. Louis and me was partners for years. No doubt, we'd still be partners if he hadn't played one joke too many.

It happened in the big city, Louie and me was walking down a dark and lonesome street—the kind we preferred to do business on—a couple of bottles of beer under our belts and our pockets practically empty, when Louie says, "Shortly, let's take this guy."

"Okay," I says, and backs into a dark doorway beside Louie.

The fellow was whistling a sour tune and walking at a pretty good clip. Louis pulled out his rod.

He handed the punk a coin.

"I'll cover him, and you shake him down," he whispers.

When the fellow came even with the doorway, Louie stepped out and dug him in the ribs with the rod.

"Hold everything, sonny!" he says between his teeth. "This is a stick-up. As much as a long breath outa you, and I'll let you have it."

The fellow froze, and his hands went up like he was reaching for the roof of a 10-story building.

"I ain't got much money," he said in a scared voice.

I stepped out. There was enough light so that I could see Louie's face. He had a grin on that spread from ear to ear, and I knew he was enjoying one of his own jokes. Probably laughing because his gun was empty. Louie always used an empty gun. It was more fun, he said.

That was the only thing I had against him. He put pleasure before business. For instance, there was the time him and me decided to take the silver out of the Van Horton house. Louie helped me in through a window, and when I reached down to help him up, he was gone. I thought that he had seen a cop, so I waited there by the window, holding my breath. Nothing happened, so it dawned on me that he was playing one of his little jokes. I went on and began sacking the silver. Then the front door bell buzzed.

Scared—I couldn't move. Pretty soon, I heard someone answer the door—and there was Louie.

Louie says, "Mister, I am a private detective, looking for a job. I am wondering if you'd liketo hire me to watch your place at night?"

"No," the guy answered crossly. "Good-by."

"Wait," Louie says. "Do you realize there is a lot of robbers——"

"Good-by!" the guy repeats.

"You'll be sorry you didn't hire me," Louie says. And then I heard the front door slam.

The next day, we got a nice write-up in the papers, and Louie got a big laugh out of it.

Sometimes his jokes got on my nerves. If he hadn't been so on the level, I would have split with him long ago. Also, he had what I needer—lots of muscle and an honest face.

But to get back this holdup—I began going through the mug's pockets. He wasn't very well heeled—a dollar watch and six-seventy-seven in cash.

"Why," Louie says, "holding this bo up ain't worth the effort, hardly. Maybe we should teach him to carry more dough? Maybe I should shoot his legs out from under him, eh?"

I knew Louie was having a lot of fun. "Go ahead," I says.

"Please, mister," the poor sap says, "don't shoot me! I didn't know you were going to hold me up, or I would have brought more money with me. Honest, I would!"

"Umm," Louie says, clicking back the hammer on his empty gun.

"Don't shoot!" the fellow blubbers. "Why," if something should happen to me, I don't know what Alice would do."

"Alice?"

"Alice is my girl. We are going to be married soon. I am on my way to see her now."

"Well, in that case,' Louie says, lowering the hammer on his revolver, "I will let you go if you promise to carry more money with you after this."

"Sure, I will—and thank you so much!" The fellow started away; then suddenly turned back. "Look," he goes on, "it's a long way to Alice's place. How about slipping me a nickel for car fare?"

"Beat it!" I says.

"Wait!" Louie grins. "Why sure thing sonny. Here you are." And he handed the punk a coin.

"Thanks," the guy says, and then hot-footed it down the street.

"You are a sap," I tells Louie.

"Just a little joke," he says, laughing. "That wasn't a real nickel. It was a lead one. Let's follow and watch that guy get tossed out of the subway on his ear.

"Don't be a fool," I says.

Well, we had an argument. Just as I had talked Louie out of following the fellow, a police car popped around the corner.

"Wonder what's up?" Louie says.

We soon found out. That police car slid up to the curb, and we found ourselves staring into the business end of some gats. The fellow we had stuck up was along with the cops.

"That's them," the guy says. "The big one is the guy that give me the nickel."

"That wasn't a nickel," Louie gulps.

"No," the fellow says, "but it fit the pay telephone where I called the cops."

"Laugh at that, you big bum," I says to Louie. "Well, why don't you laugh? The joke was your idea."

Louie just stood there with his mouth hanging open.

"No sense of humor," I tells the cops as they slipped the bracelets on me and Louie.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Undue Conscription Haste May Not Be Wise

IT IS UNFORTUNATE that emotionalism, stirred up by war hysteria, is affecting proper consideration of the proposed national conscription measure. It is unfortunate also that there seem to be political implications involved. That the measure is highly controversial and a serious business has been shown by the heat it has already engendered on the floor of the Senate. The fact that it is serious and controversial calls for impassioned and impartial consideration.

Because of the widespread objection to the original Burke-Wadsworth bill, that measure has several times been modified. Doubtless it will come in for further modifications. If passed at all, it will be the result of compromise.

If the measure is thus to go through, one of the sensible compromises seems to be that offered by Senator Maloney. He proposes that registration of the 12,000,000 male Americans between 21 and 31 years of age proceed as planned in the bill but that the actual drafting be held up pending a tryout of the volunteer plan. As an incentive to volunteers, the plan would provide for one-year enlistments and raise the basic scale of pay from $21 to $30 a month.

This would seem to be in line with the goal of the draft even if it does not accord with the haste desired by its advocates. The underlying purpose is not to build up a vast standing army but to train men beyond a reasonably increased standing army who can be held in reserve for any emergency that might arise. Naturally, if the required number of men will volunteer their services, that course would infinitely be preferred to drafting them. If the men will not volunteer, then it will be time enough to use compulsion.

Perhaps the Maloney amendment would offer a practicable and sensible way out if a conscription bill is to be enacted. It would register the available manpower and get all the machinery of the draft ready when it may be needed. In the meantime, prospective soldiers would have the opportunity of enlisting under tolerable conditions.

As for the speed for providing a large defense army, there is yet much question and this is unfortunately clouded by nervousness and the uncertainties of properly taking care of a vast number of young men should they be forced into immediate service. Many are of opinion that the clamor for speed is not well based considering the possibilities of creating an enlarged army with the available facilities and those immediately in prospect. Calmer heads do not see that Hitler can attempt any invasion of this country or of this hemisphere for the reason that he will be entirely too busy for quite a while to attempt any such a thing. They feel also that while Japan may be threatening, it is still too heavily engaged in the Chinese conflict to withdraw and give either Britain or the United States much trouble.

Some of the alarms that are being sounded by advocates of the Burke-Wadsworth bill seem to be a little far-fetched. The New York Herald Tribune, one of its advocates, for example, points to the need in a consistent and workable system of national defense the inclusion of many elements—"the long-service professional specialists, the short-service troops to back them up, the trained mechanics to supply the weapons, the thousand-and-one behind-the-line workers, including the farmers who grow the food and the housewives who perform their essential roles indispensible to the prosecution of a war effort."

That is all very well, but it seems to assume that many of these classes have to begin from the very beginning when in fact they are already practiced in their vocations and can speedily shift them to war effort. For example, the farmer already knows how to grow the food, as repeated farm surpluses have attested, and the mechanics who have been in peace-time work know their trades and would not have to start at the beginning of apprenticeships.

Of course, this country must prepare for any possible eventuality and it must build an adequate national defense. But it simply cannot be done overnight and the more prudently and sanely the job is undertaken the better it will be.

A Safety Campaign That Is Quite in Order

IN VIEW of the deplorable increase in motor casualties, the plans announced by the Western Maryland Motor Club for sponsoring a safety week program the third week of September in Allegany and Garrett counties are both timely and praiseworthy.

Another automobile club is giving attention to the increasing death toll on the highways of this state as well as in other states. It is the Keystone Automobile Club, Maryland, which is warning motorists that "eternal vigilance is not only the price of liberty but, under present-day traffic conditions, the price of life itself."

The club does not subscribe to the thought that "war jitters" are responsible for the upward swing in highway accidents. Its observations are that there has been a let-down on safety consciousness. It notes that last year the pendulum swung in the direction of safety, with tremendous public opinion backing all movements calculated to reduce accidents, but that this year the emphasis on safety has not been so great and motorists, being human, are slipping back to careless methods of driving.

"Pedestrians also must assume a full share of the blame," states a bulletin just issued by the club, "because there has been a noticeable lack of co-operation on their part at busy corners and under other conditions where the motorist normally has the right of way. Accidents to persons crossing in the middle of the block and to those who appear suddenly from behind parked cars cannot be blamed on careless operation of motor vehicles." That is quite true.

As the club notes, an increase of twenty-six deaths in Maryland during the first six months of this year over the corresponding period of last year, is real cause for alarm. This death toll has mounted to 214, with the heaviest traffic months ahead still to be counted. Unless there is marked improvement in driving and walking habits, the record for the year will reach dismaying proportions. Hence the intensive drive by the Western Maryland Motor Club is needful, indeed.

Silly Stuff Is Put Out By the New Dealers

A LOT of crazy stuff is being put out by the New Deal propagandists and a lot more is to be expected as the campaign wears on but about the craziest is the argument being promulgated to the effect that Willkie "indorses" the New Deal, wherefore people should vote for the perpetuation of Roosevelt in the presidency.

One New Deal newspaper quotes a remark by Willkie at Des Moines to the effect that, if elected president, he would not "take away any of the benefits gained by agriculture in the last few years." This, it is stated, is an "indorsement" of the New Deal.

Of course it is not. This is like saying that if Mr. Willkie is in favor of the United States then it will do no good to vote for him because Mr. Roosevelt is also in favor of the United States.

As a matter of fact, the underlying governmental philosophies of the New Deal and the Republican party as represented by its standard bearer, Mr. Willkie, are as far apart as the two poles. This fact will become more emphatic as Mr. Willkie swings into the campaign and shows exactly where and why. It is not necessary to take away such gains as may have been made by the farmers in order to oppose the dangerous, costly and destructive thesis of the New Deal.

Feminine Styles Move Back to Sobriety

THE WORD comes straight from a group of 250 American creators of styles for Milady that a hat this fall will look like a hat. It is a break for the harassed male, who, in the last five years, has from time to time had the embarrassing query put to him, "What do you think of my new hat?" Like the character in "Nothing but the Truth," who on a wager was committed for twenty-four hours to tell no lie, white or black, he may be able to say, "Thank God! It's a pretty hat."

The trend back to sobriety, it is asserted, is to affect all feminine attire. In new clothes, the mode is to stop somewhere short of a severely tailored number in sackcloth and ashes, but the leaning is to be definitely to the quieter, the more simple. The emphasis is to be rather on dignity than dash. And this is as it should be.

The world in recent months has got back to earth with a bang; and if the people in Europe are faced with the starker realities, Americans, too, are beginning to think in fundamentals. So much so, it appears, that red flannel underwear in misses' sizes is to be a next winter "must."

Many will be particularly drawn to one note in the style creators' prophecy: That the key to fall and winter fashion is to be a "well-bred look." If, by any chance, this signifies an end to the most overworked epithet in the long and changing vocabulary of style—namely, "casual"—that sigh of relief comes directly from the heart.

Citizens of Elwood, Indiana, seem so certain about the outcome of the election they may be expected to start work on a summer white house most any day now.

French courts, we read, are to determine who was responsible for the war. It's a new game called "Button! Button! Who'll get the guillotine?"

Worst part of a summer cold is that you can't even blame it on the weatherman.

What Are Your Prejudices?

By MARSHAL MASLIN

We can no more help having prejudices than we can avoid having weeds in a garden. . . . Unless you live in a soundproof house, read nothing, never listen to the radio, never have any visitors and never leave it, you'll find prejudices floating into your mind—and even if you lived in such a house you'd probably discover in yourself a prejudice against footloose folk.

Marshall Maslin

They blow in from everywhere, like the dandelion puffs from the vacant lot next door. . . . Theoretically, perhaps, you haven't prejudices. Your mind is as clean as a well-scoured pot. You think straight and clearly, with no knocks in your mental engine. . . . But is that entirely true?

Years ago, let us say, you had a grievance and went to law over it. You hired a lawyer and he took your case into court. You were convinced that you had been unfairly dealt with, that your cause was just. The jury looked intelligent and friendly. You had high hopes of winning.

But on the third day of the trial the judge threw your suit out of court and discharged the jury.

You still say you have no prejudices but that judge is still on the bench and every few years he seeks re-election. Does he get your vote? Do you think him intelligent and fair? Or is he a prejudiced old fogy who should have been retired long ago to private life?

I'll not try to answer those questions. . . . I know how I'd answer them if they applied to me. I can only guess how you would answer them, but I think I have a right to my own private opinion—and I'm sure you don't tell your friends to vote for Judge X and you don't praise him as a learned and impartial judge.

You are prejudiced against him, although you may term it a fair analysis of his ability based on what you KNOW of him.

That's the trouble with a prejudice. . . . It's so difficult to analyze it and put it in the right pigeon hole. But that's one of our jobs, to know our prejudices when we encounter them—to know whether they are edible mushrooms or poisonous toadstools.

Lindbergh Critics Are Denounced By Gen. Johnson

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—You can get a sample taste of what "can happen here" from Monday's debate in the Senate blasting Charles Lindbergh's speech against the massive current New Deal attempt to stumble, fumble or blunder this country into war.

Hugh Johnson

Three New Deal senators, than whom there are none whicher, danced around the torture stake: Minton, Pepper and—with deep blushes for my own home state of Oklahoma—that ineffable ex-teacher of elocution and Desarte, Josh Lee.

Hot-Eyed Fanatics

Sherman Minton knows better. I imagine him with his tongue in his cheek having a swell time making the animals squirm. But Senators Pepper and Lee just have no more sense. They are hot-eyed fanatics for the perfectly preposterous and the patently absurd wherever they can find them.

Senator Pepper is old Doc Townsend's god-child. He honestly wants to give $200 a month to everybody over 60, regardless of what that would do to everybody under 60 and the country in general. Josh Lee wants to make everybody who has so much as a peanut stand put it in hock to buy government bonds, bearing say two per cent interest on which, plus the peanut stand, the government will charge them five per cent and to hell with the American economic system and the constitution which says that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation.

What Lindbergh Said

These gentlemen offered to disembowel Lindbergh for saying that if we are going to do business at all after this war is over, we will have to do it with both victor and vanquished, even if the victor is Germany, that we shall have to reconcile ourselves to this idea and that it would be wise to try to intercede to stop this war before it destroys any more of civilization.

For that Senator Pepper screamed "Fifth Column"! Senators Lee and Minton chipped in with dirty cracks about Lindbergh's courage, loyalty and Americanism. I get a picture of three of the breed of Mexican hairless snapping at a St. Bernard.

Self-Convicted

Some journals imply that Lindbergh's speech had been ghost-written by Nazis and contrasted it with Gen. Pershing's urging that we send part of our navy—fifty destroyers—into this war by the subterfuge of "selling" them.

Is anybody fool enough to think that we want to live in this world with whoever wins the war or that we can or should dictate to other countries their form of government? I disagree with part of what Lindbergh said, but the man who denies his right to say it as being un-American convicts himself thereby of an un-American state of mind out-Hitlering Hitler. It is a preview of what to expect from such hands.

Smells of Bill White

There are about four living men in my gallery of living demi-gods, and one of them is Gen. Pershing—comrade in arms, old commander, personal frjend since I was a shavetail. But nobody can tell me that the general wrote that speech. It smells to me of Bill White.

Black Jack at 80 is still one of the world's great soldiers, but he knows as little naval strategy as I. George Eliot unconsciously "obsoleted" his text at the moment of its utterance. However, it may later be dragooned by the apostate Knox. I happen to know that the Navy doesn't agree with Gen. Pershing.

There is a portent and an omen in this concerted New Deal attack on an American hero—even down to Senator Scott Lucas's command radio appearance castigating Lindbergh, arranged before the colonel spoke.

War Pushing Suspected

Do you want to know whether we are going to be pushed into this war? Watch Wendell Willkie! If his progress continues toward the November victory now apparently in sight, we will be in it before the end of September.

I don't accuse the president of meditating any such poison. I accuse him of few of the recent terrible, obvious and undeniable hypocrisies and betrayals. But I think he has abdicated intellectually to an infinitestimally small adulating group of unelected totalitarian associates who would stop at nothing to perpetuate not him, not any principle except the Nazi principle of personalized power, not anything—but themselves.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

IT'S SOMETHING THEY 'ET', MR. WILLKIE

Definite Party Readjustment Is Now Under Way, Capital Observer Reports

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

News that the Roosevelt-Wallace management is making overtures to La Follette Progressives in Wisconsin and to the Farmer-Laborites in Minnesota leaked out on the same day as the story of the Willkie-McNary management's plan to organize a "Democratic Union" or "Democratic Unity" party to enable anti-Roosevelt Democrats to vote for Willkie without officially losing their Democratic status.

Charles P. Stewart

So far as the coming election's concerned, the idea is to have the Progressives and the Farmer-Laborites retain, nominally, their respective separate identities, but to cast their ballots for the Roosevelt-Wallace national ticket, in return for Roosevelt-Wallace support of their senatorial representatorial and even more local candidates in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Equally it's the Willkieitese scheme to have anti-New Deal and other anti-third-term Democrats stay Democrats, of a sort, for the present, but to vote Willkie-McNary-ishly, in exchange for tacit assurances that some kind of political gravy will be dished out in their behalf if the Willkie-McNary combination wins in November.

But, if this program goes through, what about four years hence? Will we still have distinct New Deal, Progressive, Farmer-Labor, Willkieites and Democratic Union groups in the country? Or, by that time, will the New Dealers, Progressives and Farmer-Laborites have coalesced completely? And will the Willkieites and the Democratic Unionists have done likewise, on their part?

Which Will Be Which?

If the answer be in the affirmative, which party will be which?

Will the New Dealers, the Progressives and the Farmer-Laborites all be Democrats? And will Willkieites and the Democratic Unionists both be Republicans?

Echo doesn't answer.

One thing's pretty certain. The New Deal - Progressive-Farmer-Labor combination, by whatever name it may call itself, will be the liberal aggregation. The other chaps will be comparatively conservative as Old Guardsmen used to be. Both sides will be liberal, as those nearly extinct old dodoes would have reckoned, but the first crowd will be, as of the rising generation, leftists, and the second crowd will be correspondingly, rightists.

The rightists will say that the leftists are not merely liberals, but radicals—in fact, totalitarians.

The leftists will say that the rightists are black reactionaries.

For a long, long time the two old major parties have been trying to sort themselves out into a couple of new major parties that it was possible to distinguish between. Now they appear to be actually at it. While it goes on it's confusing, but some sense may develop out of it ultimately.

Changing Line-Ups

The Roosevelt-Wallace managers stand a fair chance in states where Progressiveism and the Farmer-Laborites are strong.

Wisconsin has been turning Republican of late, as against the Progressive La Follettes. But if the La Follettes team up with the New Dealers, the alliance perhaps can score over its opposition. And there's no reason why they should not combine. To be sure, Senator "Young Bob" La Follette hasn't been much in sympathy with President Roosevelt's foreign policy, but, domestically, Progressives and New Dealers are Siamese twins, to all intents and purposes. "Young Bob" is hustled hard to be re-elected. It should make him amenable to New Deal influence.

In Minnesota Senator Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Labor candidate for re-election, can't find any basic reason for disagreement with New Deal policies, and he probably would like some Roosevelt-Wallace aid also.

And there are other states where maverick votes are New Dealerishly potentially assimilable. In Nebraska, for instance, Senator George W. Norris, ex-Republican, now a so-called Independent and not yet a re-election candidate, nevertheless is a 100 per cent Rooseveltian.

The Willkieites have a meaner job in effecting consolidations, because the converts they're seeking mostly are southerners, who have that unreasoning prejudice for the Democratic label. Nevertheless party readjustment is in progress.

Senator Burke Rides Again

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune

Senator Edward R. Burke, defeated for Democratic renomination in Nebraska, may be a lame duck, as President Roosevelt so indiscreetly pointed out, but he is stirring up the New Deal third-term waters. His resolution on limitation of presidential tenures is the horse he rides. Senate procedure makes possible.

Some months before the Chicago convention that defied the third-term tradition—January 4, 1939, to be exact—the Senator introduced a resolution limiting White House leases to six years and no renewals. A sub-committee of the judiciary committee was appointed to hold hearings on the proposal. In due and honored senatorial courtesy, Burke as the sponsor of the measure was named chairman of the group.

Time marched on. The committee, understandingly enough, reported the resolution to the Senate without recommendation that it pass or not pass. Burke arranged for the Senate to recommit it to the committee, considering impossible then the two-thirds vote required by a constitutoinal revision resolution. Back to his sub-committee came the matter. There, his colleagues thought, it would die a quiet and untroubled death.

They were fooled. Burke has staged a resurrection. This time it is big time drama he plans. Lengthy hearings without hurry, long lists of witnesses that stretch from here to November, and all during the campaign on the third-term decision, too. Burke could have no better sounding board for his lame duck quacking, nor nicer waters in which to swim.

President Roosevelt may have cause to regret his sarcastic reference to the retiring Senator from Nebraska.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Ray W. Carpenter, specialist in agricultural engineering for the University of Maryland Extension Service, says that it is a good idea to check all of the hoops on the silo for tightness before filling this year. He states that just because concrete staves are regarded as inelastic one cannot assume that reinforcing hoops on a silo which has once been filled are tight enough when they appear snug.

It is probable that expansion and contraction of the silo parts has resulted in readjustment and loosening of hoop tension and even a slight decrease in hoop tension may result in mortar cracks between staves under the pressure of ensilage. If excess juices are present, they wil lenter these cracks and may cause accelerated etching or corrosion of the concrete and mortar.

Carpenter suggests that since damage can be done by over-stressing the rods through the use of a long handle wrench, an open end type of wrench, not exceeding 10 inches in length should be used for the job.

In spite of the fact that tobacco blue mold was more destructive this year than usual, many Maryland tobacco growers were able to set their entire crop between June 1 and 15 by using the recommended spray or gas treatment, according to E. A. Walker, assistant in plant pathology. Walker says that with gas treatment it is not unusual for growers to transplant from 25,000 to 30,000 plants from a tobacco bed measuring 100 yards square.

Stocks of wheat in interior mills, elevators, and warehouses in Maryland on July 1 were 60,000 bushels, or 10,000 bushels more than stocks on the same date one year ago, but 6,000 bushels below the July 1 average for the period 1935-1936, according to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service.

Reports Describe Many in Flight From War Zones

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and Himmler have made Europe such poor hunting ground for news that foreign correspondents are speeding back in flocks. Their jobs have vanished. The news is still there, but with "Verboten!" spreading bigger and bigger across the continent, it can't be written.

Paris, where once a hundred Number One newspapermen filed meaty reports, has been rubbed out by a censor's stamp. And so have Brussels, Rotterdam, Oslo, Warsaw and Prague. And Vienna! And in Rome, Berlin, Moscow, Bucharest, Ankara, Budapest, Sophia and Athens, the heat is on so that the boldest news-hawks dare not write what they know. They couldn't get past the censors if they did.

A Ten-Dollar Word

Only in London, and maybe in Stockholm, are reporters able to go about their business. So the others have packed up. And they can count themselves fortunate that they have a place to go to. There are people in this uptorn world who might be less lucky if they had to get away between some darkness and dawn. Totalitarianism is a ten-dollar word which fancies-up, but does not change a two-bit phrase once current in a younger America.

On our old frontiers people used to say, "Whole hog or nothing." Right now Hitler and Goering and Goebbels and Himmler are very much in the whole hog business, having about everything their own way. But some of the shrewdest returning correspondents argue that Britain is far from downed, and in the long pull may come out on top. If Britain does win out they are sure that resentments long concealed among Germany's common people will grow into rebellion.

Might Want a Cue

So it could happen that Hitler and Goering and Goebbels and Himmler may want to take a cue from the Kaiser and race across the border to a safe haven. But what border offers safety to such as these?

The Kaiser had Holland, and lucky he was. But today's Dutchmen, already muttering behind their long pipes against oppression, will be in no mood to welcome the fathers of that oppression. Norway or Denmark? Danes and Norwegians will scarcely have forgotten the Fifth Column that shamed and enslaved them. They will make poor hosts. And certainly not Poland or Czechoslovakia. A welcome would be waiting, undoubtedly, in either Poland or Czechoslovakia. But what a welcome!

Many in Flight

Arresting yarns come across the Atlantic, some brought by homing correspondents, some by other refugees, some by that underground railroad which gladly gives transportation to any rumors unfavorable to dictators. These yarns tell of flight preparations going on in the very midst of world-shaking triumphs. Vast sums of money banked outside Germany's borders—mansions bought, furnished, guarded, waiting, secret airfields where planes are kept loaded with gasoline ready to take off at a moment's notice.

It is the weakness of totalitarianism that such preparations may have been made in vain. Whole hog or nothing is all right, provided you get the front end of the bed, and provided you don't mind being a hog. But the proposition is a gamble at best. Nothing means just that, and might easily mean no landing field anywhere for the finest airplane that the greatest dictator has hidden against democracy's day of reckoning.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Snydicate, Inc.

Philanthropy Without Money

Writer in the Rotarian Magazine Tells How It Is Possible

"Most of us are exceedingly generous with the millions we do not possess, and we smugly offer our lack of money as excuse for our lack of generosity," suggests Corinne Updegraff Wells, who writes about "Philanthropy without Money" in the current Rotarian Magazine. "Yet generosity has surprisingly little to do with money . . Ingenuity and imagination often provide gifts which make presents purchased with money seem cheap and tawdry by comparison."

But how? There's that spare time on your hands that you can donate to an overburdened neighborhood mother, to a charitable organization, or at the nearest play park where youngsters long for someone to teach the mysteries of kites and model airplanes. And your car with its empty back seat when you take a Sunday afternoon drive into the country! Why not fill it with convalescent-ward patients from the nearest hospital, or oldsters from the community home for the aged? And hobbies! Here's a gold mine for sharing joys, for philanthropy without money, suggests Author Wells.

Undue Conscription Haste May Not Be Wise

IT IS UNFORTUNATE that emotionalism, stirred up by war hysteria, is affecting proper consideration of the proposed national conscription measure. It is unfortunate also that there seem to be political implications involved. That the measure is highly controversial and a serious business has been shown by the heat it has already engendered on the floor of the Senate. The fact that it is serious and controversial calls for impassioned and impartial consideration.

Because of the widespread objection to the original Burke-Wadsworth bill, that measure has several times been modified. Doubtless it will come in for further modifications. If passed at all, it will be the result of compromise.

If the measure is thus to go through, one of the sensible compromises seems to be that offered by Senator Maloney. He proposes that registration of the 12,000,000 male Americans between 21 and 31 years of age proceed as planned in the bill but that the actual drafting be held up pending a tryout of the volunteer plan. As an incentive to volunteers, the plan would provide for one-year enlistments and raise the basic scale of pay from $21 to $30 a month.

This would seem to be in line with the goal of the draft even if it does not accord with the haste desired by its advocates. The underlying purpose is not to build up a vast standing army but to train men beyond a reasonably increased standing army who can be held in reserve for any emergency that might arise. Naturally, if the required number of men will volunteer their services, that course would infinitely be preferred to drafting them. If the men will not volunteer, then it will be time enough to use compulsion.

Perhaps the Maloney amendment would offer a practicable and sensible way out if a conscription bill is to be enacted. It would register the available manpower and get all the machinery of the draft ready when it may be needed. In the meantime, prospective soldiers would have the opportunity of enlisting under tolerable conditions.

As for the speed for providing a large defense army, there is yet much question and this is unfortunately clouded by nervousness and the uncertainities of properly taking care of a vast number of young men should they be forced into immediate service. Many are of opinion that the clamor for speed is not well based considering the possibilities of creating an enlarged army with the available facilities and those immediately in prospect. Calmer heads do not see that Hitler can attempt any invasion of this country or of this hemisphere for the reason that he will be entirely too busy for quite a while to attempt any such a thing. They feel also that while Japan may be threatening, it is still too heavily engaged in the Chinese conflict to withdraw and give either Britain or the United States much trouble.

Some of the alarms that are being sounded by advocates of the Burke-Wadsworth bill seem to be a little far-fetched. The New York Herald Tribune, one of its advocates, for example, points to the need in a consistent and workable system of national defense the inclusion of many elements—"the long-service professional specialists, the short-service troops to back them up, the trained mechanics to supply the weapons, the thousand-and-one behind-the-line workers, including the farmers who grow the food and the housewives who perform their essential roles indispensible to the prosecution of a war effort."

That is all very well, but it seems to assume that many of these classes have to begin from the very beginning when in fact they are already practiced in their vocations and can speedily shift them to war effort. For example, the farmer already knows how to grow the food, as repeated farm surpluses have attested, and the mechanics who have been in peace-time work know their trades and would not have to start at the beginning of apprenticeships.

Of course, this country must prepare for any possible eventuality and it must build an adequate national defense. But it simply cannot be done overnight and the more prudently and sanely the job is undertaken the better it will be.

A Safety Campaign That Is Quite in Order

IN VIEW of the deplorable increase in motor casualties, the plans announced by the Western Maryland Motor Club for sponsoring a safety week program the third week of September in Allegany and Garrett counties are both timely and praiseworthy.

Another automobile club is giving attention to the increasing death toll on the highways of this state as well as in other states. It is the Keystone Automobile Club, Maryland, which is warning motorists that "eternal vigilance is not only the price of liberty but, under present-day traffic conditions, the price of life itself."

The club does not subscribe to the thought that "war jitters" are responsible for the upward swing in highway accidents. Its observations are that there has been a let-down on safety consciousness. It notes that last year the pendulum swung in the direction of safety, with tremendous public opinion backing all movements calculated to reduce accidents, but that this year the emphasis on safety has not been so great and motorists, being human, are slipping back to careless methods of driving.

"Pedestrians also must assume a full share of the blame," states a bulletin just issued by the club, "because there has been a noticeable lack of co-operation on their part at busy corners and under other conditions where the motorist normally has the right of way. Accidents to persons crossing in the middle of the block and to those who appear suddenly from behind parked cars cannot be blamed on careless operation of motor vehicles." That is quite true.

As the club notes, an increase of twenty-six deaths in Maryland during the first six months of this year over the corresponding period of last year, is real cause for alarm. This death toll has mounted to 214, with the heaviest traffic months ahead still to be counted. Unless there is marked improvement in driving and walking habits, the record for the year will reach dismaying proportions. Hence the intensive drive by the Western Maryland Motor Club is needful, indeed.

Silly Stuff Is Put Out By the New Dealers

A LOT of crazy stuff is being put out by the New Deal propagandists and a lot more is to be expected as the campaign wears on but about the craziest is the argument being promulgated to the effect that Willkie "indorses" the New Deal, wherefore people should vote for the perpetuation of Roosevelt in the presidency.

One New Deal newspaper quotes a remark by Willkie at Des Moines to the effect that, if elected president, he would not "take away any of the benefits gained by agriculture in the last few years." This, it is stated, is an "indorsement" of the New Deal.

Of course it is not. This is like saying that if Mr. Willkie is in favor of the United States then it will do no good to vote for him because Mr. Roosevelt is also in favor of the United States.

As a matter of fact, the underlying governmental philosophies of the New Deal and the Republican party as represented by its standard bearer, Mr. Willkie, are as far apart as the two poles. This fact will become more emphatic as Mr. Willkie swings into the campaign and shows exactly where and why. It is not necessary to take away such gains as may have been made by the farmers in order to oppose the dangerous, costly and destructive thesis of the New Deal.

Feminine Styles Move Back to Sobriety

THE WORD comes straight from a group of 250 American creators of styles for Milady that a hat this fall will look like a hat. It is a break for the harassed male, who, in the last five years, has from time to time had the embarrassing query put to him, "What do you think of my new hat?" Like the character in "Nothing but the Truth," who on a wager was committed for twenty-four hours to tell no lie, white or black, he may be able to say, "Thank God! It's a pretty hat."

The trend back to sobriety, it is asserted, is to affect all feminine attire. In new clothes, the mode is to stop somewhere short of a severely tailored number in sackcloth and ashes, but the leaning is to be definitely to the quieter, the more simple. The emphasis is to be rather on dignity than dash. And this is as it should be.

The world in recent months has got back to earth with a bang; and if the people in Europe are faced with the starker realities, Americans, too, are beginning to think in fundamentals. So much so, it appears, that red flannel underwear in misses' sizes is to be a next winter "must."

Many will be particularly drawn to one note in the style creators' prophecy: That the key to fall and winter fashion is to be a "well-bred look." If, by any chance, this signifies an end to the most overworked epithet in the long and changing vocabulary of style—namely, "casual"—that sigh of relief comes directly from the heart.

Citizens of Elwood, Indiana, seem so certain about the outcome of the election they may be expected to start work on a summer white house most any day now.

French courts, we read, are to determine who was responsible for the war. It's a new game called "Button! Button! Who'll get the guillotine?"

Worst part of a summer cold is that you can't even blame it on the weatherman.

What Are Your Prejudices?

By MARSHAL MASLIN

We can no more help having prejudices than we can avoid having weeds in a garden. . . . Unless you live in a soundproof house, read nothing, never listen to the radio, never have any visitors and never leave it, you'll find prejudices floating into your mind—and even if you lived in such a house you'd probably discover in yourself a prejudice against footloose folk.

Marshall Maslin

They blow in from everywhere, like the dandelion puffs from the vacant lot next door. . . . Theoretically, perhaps, you haven't prejudices. Your mind is as clean as a well-scoured pot. You think straight and clearly, with no knocks in your mental engine. . . . But is that entirely true?

Years ago, let us say, you had a grievance and went to law over it. You hired a lawyer and he took your case into court. You were convinced that you had been unfairly dealt with, that your cause was just. The jury looked intelligent and friendly. You had high hopes of winning.

But on the third day of the trial the judge threw your suit out of court and discharged the jury.

You still say you have no prejudices but that judge is still on the bench and every few years he seeks re-election. Does he get your vote? Do you think him intelligent and fair? Or is he a prejudiced old fogy who should have been retired long ago to private life?

I'll not try to answer those questions. . . . I know how I'd answer them if they applied to me. I can only guess how you would answer them, but I think I have a right to my own private opinion—and I'm sure you don't tell your friends to vote for Judge X and you don't praise him as a learned and impartial judge.

You are prejudiced against him, although you may term it a fair analysis of his ability based on what you KNOW of him.

That's the trouble with a prejudice. . . . It's so difficult to analyze it and put it in the right pigeon hole. But that's one of our jobs, to know our prejudices when we encounter them—to know whether they are edible mushrooms or poisonous toadstools.

News that the Roosevelt-Wallace management is making overtures to La Follette Progressives in Wisconsin and to the Farmer-Laborites in Minnesota leaked out on the same day as the story of the Willkie-McNary management's plan to organize a "Democratic Union" or "Democratic Unity" party to enable anti-Roosevelt Democrats to vote for Willkie without officially losing their Democratic status.

Charles P. Stewart

So far as the coming election's concerned, the idea is to have the Progressives and the Farmer-Laborites retain, nominally, their respective separate identities, but to cast their ballots for the Roosevelt-Wallace national ticket, in return for Roosevelt-Wallace support of their senatorial representatorial and even more local candidates in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Equally it's the Willkieitese scheme to have anti-New Deal and other anti-third-term Democrats stay Democrats, of a sort, for the present, but to vote Willkie-McNary-ishly, in exchange for tacit assurances that some kind of political gravy will be dished out in their behalf if the Willkie-McNary combination wins in November.

But, if this program goes through, what about four years hence? Will we still have distinct New Deal, Progressive, Farmer-Labor, Willkieites and Democratic Union groups in the country? Or, by that time, will the New Dealers, Progressives and Farmer-Laborites have coalesced completely? And will the Willkieites and the Democratic Unionists have done likewise, on their part?

Which Will Be Which?

If the answer be in the affirmative, which party will be which?

Will the New Dealers, the Progressives and the Farmer-Laborites all be Democrats? And will Willkieites and the Democratic Unionists both be Republicans?

Echo doesn't answer.

One thing's pretty certain. The New Deal - Progressive-Farmer-Labor combination, by whatever name it may call itself, will be the liberal aggregation. The other chaps will be comparatively conservative as Old Guardsmen used to be. Both sides will be liberal, as those nearly extinct old dodoes would have reckoned, but the first crowd will be, as of the rising generation, leftists, and the second crowd will be correspondingly, rightists.

The rightists will say that the leftists are not merely liberals, but radicals—in fact, totalitarians.

The leftists will say that the rightists are black reactionaries.

For a long, long time the two old major parties have been trying to sort themselves out into a couple of new major parties that it was possible to distinguish between. Now they appear to be actually at it. While it goes on it's confusing, but some sense may develop out of it ultimately.

Changing Line-Ups

The Roosevelt-Wallace managers stand a fair chance in states where Progressiveism and the Farmer-Laborites are strong.

Wisconsin has been turning Republican of late, as against the Progressive La Follettes. But if the La Follettes team up with the New Dealers, the alliance perhaps can score over its opposition. And there's no reason why they should not combine. To be sure, Senator "Young Bob" La Follette hasn't been much in sympathy with President Roosevelt's foreign policy, but, domestically, Progressives and New Dealers are Siamese twins, to all intents and purposes. "Young Bob" is hustled hard to be re-elected. It should make him amenable to New Deal influence.

In Minnesota Senator Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Labor candidate for re-election, can't find any basic reason for disagreement with New Deal policies, and he probably would like some Roosevelt-Wallace aid also.

And there are other states where maverick votes are New Dealerishly potentially assimilable. In Nebraska, for instance, Senator George W. Norris, ex-Republican, now a so-called Independent and not yet a re-election candidate, nevertheless is a 100 per cent Rooseveltian.

The Willkieites have a meaner job in effecting consolidations, because the converts they're seeking mostly are southerners, who have that unreasoning prejudice for the Democratic label. Nevertheless party readjustment is in progress.

Senator Burke Rides Again

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune

Senator Edward R. Burke, defeated for Democratic renomination in Nebraska, may be a lame duck, as President Roosevelt so indiscreetly pointed out, but he is stirring up the New Deal third-term waters. His resolution on limitation of presidential tenures is the horse he rides. Senate procedure makes possible.

Some months before the Chicago convention that defied the third-term tradition—January 4, 1939, to be exact—the Senator introduced a resolution limiting White House leases to six years and no renewals. A sub-committee of the judiciary committee was appointed to hold hearings on the proposal. In due and honored senatorial courtesy, Burke as the sponsor of the measure was named chairman of the group.

Time marched on. The committee, understandingly enough, reported the resolution to the Senate without recommendation that it pass or not pass. Burke arranged for the Senate to recommit it to the committee, considering impossible then the two-thirds vote required by a constitutoinal revision resolution. Back to his sub-committee came the matter. There, his colleagues thought, it would die a quiet and untroubled death.

They were fooled. Burke has staged a resurrection. This time it is big time drama he plans. Lengthy hearings without hurry, long lists of witnesses that stretch from here to November, and all during the campaign on the third-term decision, too. Burke could have no better sounding board for his lame duck quacking, nor nicer waters in which to swim.

President Roosevelt may have cause to regret his sarcastic reference to the retiring Senator from Nebraska.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Ray W. Carpenter, specialist in agricultural engineering for the University of Maryland Extension Service, says that it is a good idea to check all of the hoops on the silo for tightness before filling this year. He states that just because concrete staves are regarded as inelastic one cannot assume that reinforcing hoops on a silo which has once been filled are tight enough when they appear snug.

It is probable that expansion and contraction of the silo parts has resulted in readjustment and loosening of hoop tension and even a slight decrease in hoop tension may result in mortar cracks between staves under the pressure of ensilage. If excess juices are present, they wil lenter these cracks and may cause accelerated etching or corrosion of the concrete and mortar.

Carpenter suggests that since damage can be done by over-stressing the rods through the use of a long handle wrench, an open end type of wrench, not exceeding 10 inches in length should be used for the job.

In spite of the fact that tobacco blue mold was more destructive this year than usual, many Maryland tobacco growers were able to set their entire crop between June 1 and 15 by using the recommended spray or gas treatment, according to E. A. Walker, assistant in plant pathology. Walker says that with gas treatment it is not unusual for growers to transplant from 25,000 to 30,000 plants from a tobacco bed measuring 100 yards square.

Stocks of wheat in interior mills, elevators, and warehouses in Maryland on July 1 were 60,000 bushels, or 10,000 bushels more than stocks on the same date one year ago, but 6,000 bushels below the July 1 average for the period 1935-1936, according to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service.

Reports Describe Many in Flight From War Zones

Edwin C. Hill

Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and Himmler have made Europe such poor hunting ground for news that foreign correspondents are speeding back in flocks. Their jobs have vanished. The news is still there, but with "Verboten!" spreading bigger and bigger across the continent, it can't be written.

Paris, where once a hundred Number One newspapermen filed meaty reports, has been rubbed out by a censor's stamp. And so have Brussels, Rotterdam, Oslo, Warsaw and Prague. And Vienna! And in Rome, Berlin, Moscow, Bucharest, Ankara, Budapest, Sophia and Athens, the heat is on so that the boldest news-hawks dare not write what they know. They couldn't get past the censors if they did.

A Ten-Dollar Word

Only in London, and maybe in Stockholm, are reporters able to go about their business. So the others have packed up. And they can count themselves fortunate that they have a place to go to. There are people in this uptorn world who might be less lucky if they had to get away between some darkness and dawn. Totalitarianism is a ten-dollar word which fancies-up, but does not change a two-bit phrase once current in a younger America.

On our old frontiers people used to say, "Whole hog or nothing." Right now Hitler and Goering and Goebbels and Himmler are very much in the whole hog business, having about everything their own way. But some of the shrewdest returning correspondents argue that Britain is far from downed, and in the long pull may come out on top. If Britain does win out they are sure that resentments long concealed among Germany's common people will grow into rebellion.

Might Want a Cue

So it could happen that Hitler and Goering and Goebbels and Himmler may want to take a cue from the Kaiser and race across the border to a safe haven. But what border offers safety to such as these?

The Kaiser had Holland, and lucky he was. But today's Dutchmen, already muttering behind their long pipes against oppression, will be in no mood to welcome the fathers of that oppression. Norway or Denmark? Danes and Norwegians will scarcely have forgotten the Fifth Column that shamed and enslaved them. They will make poor hosts. And certainly not Poland or Czechoslovakia. A welcome would be waiting, undoubtedly, in either Poland or Czechoslovakia. But what a welcome!

Many in Flight

Arresting yarns come across the Atlantic, some brought by homing correspondents, some by other refugees, some by that underground railroad which gladly gives transportation to any rumors unfavorable to dictators. These yarns tell of flight preparations going on in the very midst of world-shaking triumphs. Vast sums of money banked outside Germany's borders—mansions bought, furnished, guarded, waiting, secret airfields where planes are kept loaded with gasoline ready to take off at a moment's notice.

It is the weakness of totalitarianism that such preparations may have been made in vain. Whole hog or nothing is all right, provided you get the front end of the bed, and provided you don't mind being a hog. But the proposition is a gamble at best. Nothing means just that, and might easily mean no landing field anywhere for the finest airplane that the greatest dictator has hidden against democracy's day of reckoning.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Philanthropy Without Money

Writer in the Rotarian Magazine Tells How It Is Possible

"Most of us are exceedingly generous with the millions we do not possess, and we smugly offer our lack of money as excuse for our lack of generosity," suggests Corinne Updegraff Wells, who writes about "Philanthropy without Money" in the current Rotarian Magazine. "Yet generosity has surprisingly little to do with money . . . Ingenuity and imagination often provide gifts which make presents purchased with money seem cheap and tawdry by comparison."

But how? There's that spare time on your hands that you can donate to an overburdened neighborhood mother, to a charitable organization, or at the nearest play park where youngsters long for someone to teach the mysteries of kites and model airplanes. And your car with its empty back seat when you take a Sunday afternoon drive into the country! Why not fill it with convalescent-ward patients from the nearest hospital, or oldsters from the community home for the aged? And hobbies! Here's a gold mine for sharing joys, for philanthropy without money, suggests Author Wells.

CHAPTER THIRTY SIX

LINDA recognized the woman on the Staten Island ferry as Sue Ackerman, sister of Clarabell Ackerman, the girl who had been so ruthlessly murdered in the main office of the Bagley Models' agency.

Linda had wondered what had become of this older sister and whether or not she had been seeing Mina Nevins.

It was odd to meet the sister on a Staten Island ferry, though. The Ackerman apartment was far uptown, in no way related to this distant island.

"Have you relatives on the island?" Linda asked casually.

"No, I have no relatives at all, now that my sister is dead." The voice was not bitter, rather it was mocking.

"Miss Ackerman, who wanted to kill her?" Linda asked impulsively.

"Not anyone, my dear child. Don't you realize those bullets were for you?"

The boat was nearing the New York skyline and people were crowding around so they would be able to leave the boat when it docked. Linda spoke quickly.

"Do you know who did this thing?"

The woman didn't answer for a moment. Then she shrugged her shoulders. "What makes you think that I would know? And why wouldn't I be as eager to find out as you are?"

"Of course you would. It's just that it's spoiled so many things for me." The boat was almost in.

"Have you seen the evening paper?" the woman asked.

Linda shook her head. "No. I've stopped reading the stories entirely."

"Yes? And looking at the pictures, too? You photograph very well, my dear, and the newspaper likenesses aren't half bad. I think you might be interested in this."

She was holding a paper toward Linda, a slim finger in a shabby glove, pointing to a special paragraph.

Linda read it. "The revolver from which the two fatal bullets were shot has been identified as one belonging to Miss Sarah Markley, glamor queen of last season, and daughter of the well-known producer, Peter Markley."

The story went on to say that Miss Markley's actions were completely accounted for on the night of the fatal shooting and she herself had not missed the gun until men of the ballistics bureau had confronted her with evidence that it was her weapon which was responsible for the death shots.

However, police were investigating the iron-clad alibi, the words went on. Linda read them, fascination growing. Had Ronald known this when he talked to her? Had he been afraid that Sarah would in some way be implicated, and so been willing for an old man to suffer a few more days until Sarah was entirely free?

Men were only human. But Ronnie couldn't do this. Yet, why wasn't it more worthy to ask a few days' reprieve for a girl than for a career?

"I should like to come to see you some day, Miss Avery," Sue Ackerman said as the boat swung into its berth. "Are you home nights?"

"Yes, usually." Yes, she would be at home at night from now on. Ronald would not be coming and Robert had gone away.

Robert! At the name her heart felt the lift of wings. Robert! She couldn't let him sail away forever, and yet she loved, or maybe had loved, Ronald.

She was holding a paper toward Linda, pointing to a special paragraph.

It was lonely in the apartment when she returned to it. She missed Caroline. There was no one now who might call her whose voice she especially wished to hear. In some undefinable way she knew that Ronald would not try to reach her, would not apologize.

Well, that was all right, she told herself as she lay in a warm tub of perfumed water. It was better to know when a road divided instead of trying to walk side by side with an ever widening distance between. Life was good, it had to be good, it had to be worthwhile, whatever happened. The road went on, ran to somewhere, and no one could lag by the roadside.

She dried herself, brushed her amber curls until the electricity gleamed, wrapped herself in a yellow silk negligee and sat down by the window. She could see a red candle burning on the altar in the monastery across the way. She could hear low voices chanting prayers. Across the garden there was peace.

Because Ronald had been first to her so long, because she had waited for him so many months, she put her head down on her arms and sobs shook her slender body. But when she raised her head, with its tear-swollen eyes, the storm was spent. No one would know that the platform upon which she stood had crumbled, she told herself.

And yet—and yet there was that odd happiness when she thought about Robert, a happiness that persisted even in the midst of the debris that Ronald had made of her life. Worn out with emotion, she went to bed.

She did not know how long she had been sleeping when she became aware of a bell ringing somewhere. First it was vague and distant and she moved her head so she need not listen.

It persisted and at last she opened her eyes. The telephone was ringing. Without analyzing her emotions, she hoped that it was Robert calling her.

She picked up the instrument from its cradle on the bedside table. Ronald's voice came to her, strained and worried, and she felt a sweep of the old tenderness. Not the old love, she thought even then. But the old devotion. His words drove it away.

"Linda, will you dress and meet me right away? It's Sarah—we have to find her."

"Sarah? Where did she go? What has she done?"

"That's it. I'll tell you when I see you. She's not done anything. But those papers, and well—how soon can you be ready?"

"Fifteen minutes, maybe ten." In that moment she was aware that for the first time since she had moved into the apartment she could not find the red light on the altar of the sanctuary next door.

She slipped into the thin black dress with the Peter Pan collar and pulled a white turban over her curls. Her pumps and bag were black, but she found a fresh pair of white gloves. It might be cold outside, she decided, and took along a thin black coat.

She did not wait for Ronald to ring her bell, but went down the stairs. She would wait for him outside the entrance on the wide steps. Had he forgotten their differences that he should come back like this? Or was Sarah so important to him that he had no pride, no hesitation in asking her, Linda, to help him?

It didn't matter, she told herself.

It was sweet and quiet in the street. City trucks were dampening the pavements with long sprays of water.

Ronald's car slid up to the curb and he spoke her name just as a tall figure swung up the steps.

"Robert," she called, not quite conscious that she spoke his name.

She saw him look at Ronald, then he smiled, said good evening, and turned toward the door.

She took a step toward him. In that moment she knew she must act quickly, act now, or it might be forever too late.

But the door was closed and Ronald was calling, a trace of impatience in his voice.

it seems as though I am at a loss to be able to say anything. So please write to me and tell me what I can do to overcome this and I will be greatly appreciative of it. I enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply."

Doctor's Reply

"I know how you feel," I replied in part. "I also know that your anxiety about carrying on a conversation is caused chiefly by your notion that you must talk much to be liked and prove agreeably sociable. Let me tell you that I have received a tremendous amount of personal relief by discovering after many years of needless suffering, that I don't have to talk much; that, indeed, I can be most attractive socially at many times by just listening earnestly (and learning something, too); that all persons who converse well are greatly delighted to have an animated listener.

"I have also discovered that often in a group who are discussing matters of which I am partly or wholly ignorant, I can find comfort and relief by studying the conversation enough to ask a question which will keep the person speaking most confidently going on—sort of winds him up when he runs down, and lets me rest. When by this procedure I can attain composure, I have no disturbing emotions to hinder my expression when, perchance, an idea does come into my little head. Seriously, I commend a similar scheme to you.

Relief Takes Time

"Of course you won't expect to get relief all at once. If you accomplish some noticeable progress after several months be very happy. I still have my own trouble, and I have been working at it for a number of years. But I am as sure as I know my hair is light, that the method I described has helped me. And make yourself go places.

"You might get help from my booklet, Learning to Be Likable. I hope you can find it your public library. I am enclosing a selected reading list on personality and mental health."

Any other reader may receive this by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

CIO Auto Workers Re-elect Officers

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 7. (AP)—Eleven of the seventeen members of the CIO United Automobile Workers of America executive board were re-elected after Roland J. Thomas, of Detroit, president, and George F. Addes of Toledo, secretary-treasurer, were returned to their respective offices by acclamation.

Contests which developed in regional caucuses on four of the other board positions delayed adjournment of the union's fifth international convention until Wednesday, four days behind schedule.

Farmer's Barn Is Erected Quickly

NEW MARKET, Md., Aug. 7. (AP)—Benjamin Stoltzfus, leader of the migration of Amishmen from Pennsylvania to Southern Maryland, had a cement foundation and a big pile of readycut lumber—but not barn yesterday before dawn.

At night Stoltzfus had a 78 by 58-foot barn as fine as any in this part of St. Mary's county, fruit of one day's toil by a bearded group of Amish settlers and their visiting brothers from near Lancaster, Pa.

Swarming all over the place like busy ants, toiling under the hot sun, these members of a sect that own no automobiles, see no moving pictures and hear no radios in their homes, erected a full-fledged barn between sunrise and sunset.

Stoltzfus led his small band of twenty-five Amish farmers from Pennsylvania a year ago.

A visiting "delegation" of about 100 Amishmen came here from Pennsylvania for the barn-raising.

The sun is slowly losing its heat, but will continue to shine for a billion years, scientists estimate.

Had been afraid that Sarah would in some way be implicated, and so was willing for an old man to suffer a few more days until Sarah was entirely free?

Men were only human. But Ronald couldn't do this. Yet, why was it more worthy to ask a few days reprieve for a girl than for a freer?

"I should like to come to see you some day, Miss Avery," Sue Ackerman said as the boat swung into berth. "Are you home nights?"

"Yes, usually." Yes, she would be home at night from now on. Ronald would not be coming and Sarah had gone away.

Robert! At the name her heart did the lift of wings. Robert! She couldn't let him sail away forever, and yet she loved, or maybe had loved, Ronald.

She was holding a paper toward Linda, pointing to a special paragraph.

It was lonely in the apartment when she returned to it. She missed Caroline. There was no one now who might call her whose voice she especially wished to hear. In some undefinable way she knew that Ronald would not try to reach her, would not apologize.

Well, that was all right, she told herself as she lay in a warm tub of perfumed water. It was better to know when a road divided instead of trying to walk side by side with an ever widening distance between. Life was good, it had to be good, it had to be worthwhile, whatever happened. The road went on, ran to somewhere, and no one could lag by the roadside.

She dried herself, brushed her amber curls until the electricity gleamed, wrapped herself in a yellow silk negligee and sat down by the window. She could see a red candle burning on the altar in the monastery across the way. She could hear low voices chanting prayers. Across the garden there was peace.

Because Ronald had been first to her so long, because she had waited for him so many months, she put her head down on her arms and sobs shook her slender body. But when she raised her head, with its tear-swollen eyes, the storm was spent. No one would know that the platform upon which she stood had crumbled, she told herself.

And yet—and yet there was that odd happiness when she thought about Robert, a happiness that persisted even in the midst of the debris that Ronald had made of her life. Worn out with emotion, she went to bed.

She did not know how long she had been sleeping when she became aware of a bell ringing somewhere. First it was vague and distant and she moved her head so she need not listen.

It persisted and at last she opened her eyes. The telephone was ringing. Without analyzing her emotions, she hoped that it was Robert calling her.

She picked up the instrument from its cradle on the bedside table. Ronald's voice came to her, strained and worried, and she felt a sweep of the old tenderness. Not the old love, she thought even then. But the old devotion. His words drove it away.

"Linda, will you dress and meet me right away? It's Sarah—we have to find her."

"Sarah? Where did she go? What has she done?"

"That's it. I'll tell you when I see you. She's not done anything. But those papers, and well—how soon can you be ready?"

"Fifteen minutes, maybe ten." In that moment she was aware that for the first time since she had moved into the apartment she could not find the red light on the altar of the sanctuary next door.

She slipped into the thin black dress with the Peter Pan collar and pulled a white turban over her curls. Her pumps and bag were black, but she found a fresh pair of white gloves. It might be cold outside, she decided, and took along a thin black coat.

She did not wait for Ronald to ring her bell, but went down the stairs. She would wait for him outside the entrance on the wide steps. Had he forgotten their differences that he should come back like this? Or was Sarah so important to him that he had no pride, no hesitation in asking her, Linda, to help him?

It didn't matter, she told herself.

It was sweet and quiet in the street. City trucks were dampening the pavements with long sprays of water.

Ronald's car slid up to the curb and he spoke her name just as a tall figure swung up the steps.

"Robert," she called, not quite conscious that she spoke his name.

She saw him look at Ronald, then he smiled, said good evening, and turned toward the door.

She took a step toward him. In that moment she knew she must act quickly, act now, or it might be forever too late.

But the door was closed and Ronald was calling, a trace of impatience in his voice.

it seems as though I am at a loss to be able to say anything. So please write to me and tell me what I can do to overcome this and I will be greatly appreciative of it. I enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply."

Doctor's Reply

"I know how you feel," I replied in part. "I also know that your anxiety about carrying on a conversation is caused chiefly by your notion that you must talk much to be liked and prove agreeably sociable. Let me tell you that I have received a tremendous amount of personal relief by discovering after many years of needless suffering, that I don't have to talk much; that, indeed, I can be most attractive socially at many times by just listening earnestly (and learning something, too); that all persons who converse well are greatly delighted to have an animated listener.

"I have also discovered that often in a group who are discussing matters of which I am partly or wholly ignorant, I can find comfort and relief by studying the conversation enough to ask a question which will keep the person speaking most confidently going on—sort of winds him up when he runs down, and lets me rest. When by this procedure I can attain composure, I have no disturbing emotions to hinder my expression when perchance, an idea does come into my little head. Seriously, I commend a similar scheme to you.

Relief Takes Time

"Of course you won't expect to get relief all at once. If you accomplish some noticeable progress after several months be very happy. I still have my own trouble, and I have been working at it for a number of years. But I am as sure as I know my hair is light, that the method I described has helped me. And make yourself go places.

"You might get help from my booklet, Learning to Be Likable. I hope you can find it your public library. I am enclosing a selected reading list on personality and mental health."

Any other reader may receive this by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

CIO Auto Workers Re-elect Officers

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 7. (AP)—Eleven of the seventeen members of the CIO United Automobile Workers of America executive board were re-elected after Roland J. Thomas, of Detroit, president, and George F. Addes of Toledo, secretary-treasurer, were returned to their respective offices by acclamation.

Contests which developed in regional caucuses on four of the other board positions delayed adjournment of the union's fifth international convention until Wednesday, four days behind schedule.

Farmer's Barn Is Erected Quickly

NEW MARKET, Md., Aug. 7. (AP)—Benjamin Stoltzfus, leader of the migration of Amishmen from Pennsylvania to Southern Maryland, had a cement foundation and a big pile of readycut lumber—but not barn yesterday before dawn.

At night Stoltzfus had a 78 by 58-foot barn as fine as any in this part of St. Mary's county, fruit of one day's toil by a bearded group of Amish settlers and their visiting brothers from near Lancaster, Pa.

Swarming all over the place like busy ants, toiling under the hot sun, these members of a sect that own no automobiles, see no moving pictures and hear no radios in their homes, erected a full-fledged barn between sunrise and sunset.

Stoltzfus led his small band of twenty-five Amish farmers from Pennsylvania a year ago.

A visiting "delegation" of about 100 Amishmen came here from Pennsylvania for the barn-raising.

The sun is slowly losing its heat, but will continue to shine for a billion years, scientists estimate.

Talking Too Much Not Advisable, Doctor Says

Suggestions Are Given to Young Man Backward in Conversation

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Below I quote from a letter typical of many I am receiving from boys and girls, young men and women.

"I sometimes read your articles in our local paper about helping people with their troubles and I wonder if you can help me," it says. "I am a young man and my trouble is that I have an inferiority complex and a lack of speech. I never seem able to converse freely with most people. Most of the time I am under a tension when talking to some one and it is difficult for me to converse steadily for any great length of time. I seldom go anywhere because I always get nervous in front of people and

Old Parties Are Given Credit for Landing Proposals

By Beatrice Fairfax, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Six weeks ago a worried mother of three daughters wrote to this column, saying that she was not opposed to modern antics on the part of the young. Her compalint was that it didn't seem to get them anywhere as the more conservative behavior of her day did.

The lady advised me to turn over the leaves of the old family album and see how these not-so-beautiful girls invariably landed their men. I took her advice and studied the pictures of the Cousin Jennie and Aunt Marias. None of these ladies had ever heard of a beauty parlor; their hair-dos looked as if they had been slicked by a wet hairbrush and twisted into a walnut by a monkey wrench. Yet they got their man and presumably lived happily ever after.

My correspendent didn't object to her girls being ultra-modern. They all smoked like chimneys, were connoisseurs in the latest cocktails, rhumbaed, jitter-bugged, patronized roadhouses, and even, for a lark, took in the dime-a-dance hangouts.

Plenty of Dates

These girls had loads of dates, but no proposals of marriage! Like the princesses in the fairy tale who each wore out a pair of dancing slippers every night, their dogged restlessness got these three lovelies nowhere. And mamma, bolstered by the fate of those homely Victorians in the family almum, began to sit up and worry.

Why, she pondered, did damsels like Cousin Jenny and Aunt Maria make good matches, have huge life insurance policies taken out in their interests and secure husbands who slaved for them. Two of her girls who had excellent jobs, wrote my correspondent, offered to keep on with them if the most likely of their suitors only said "the hard word," as the romantic Irish say. They got no takers.

The mother's letter to me was highly amusing.

"Sowing wild oats reaps no orange blossoms," she said." Wouldn't it be a good thing if my daughters, and the daughters of other women, going high, wide and handsome, dropped back into some of the old-fashioned amusements of my generation, when a girl's idea of freedom was not a foot on the brass rail.

"My girls haven't married, unsuccessfully or otherwise. Why don't we go back to some of the simple amusements that made for domesticity when the world was a happier place?" The lady suggested all sorts of out-of-door sports—campfire parties, bacon bats, chop parties, even roof parties.

Details Given

So your columnist went into a long-distance huddle with the lady of the three beautiful daughters. We exchanged several letters and she gave me some details of these parties of her youth. We've discussed this in the Beatrice Fairfax column, and I've answered a good many letters telling how to "throw" these old-fashioned parties.

The requests for them have been so overwhelming that I've had mimeographed copies made, and will be glad to send them to anyone writing me, enclosing a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope.

Please remember—a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope if you want to know how Cousin Jan, Aunt Belle or Grandma made the grade up the middle aisle to the altar, while the organist burst into Lohengrin. Just "write to Beatrice Fairfax."

Afraid To Give Up Her Job

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 23 years, very much in love with my boy friend. He had a job here but when he lost it he went back to his home town where he is now working. I have a job but don't earn very much — just enough to get by on. He intended to stay away only half a year when he left, but it is almost two years now.

He wants me to come to his town but I'm afraid to give up this job I have here. Or, he said, he'd come here, but I'm thinking that it would be foolish to give up what he has for an uncertainty. We're both desperately lonely and keep saying all along that things will get better. Would you advise be to quit my job and go to him, or take a chance on his finding employment here?

IN DOUBT.

I think it would be better, under the circumstances, if you both kept your jobs until you see how things turn out. You say that each of you earns only enough to provide bare necessities, and it's always a great risk to attempt marriage on that. I may be an incorrigible optimist, but I can't help feeling that you're going to have a break before long. My best wishes to you.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going with a young man who is a steady worker, although he doesn't make much money. He saves all he possibly can toward our future. His mother, who is a widow, makes no effort to find work, and nags her son for money, from morning 'til night. He is willing to help her all he can, but there is a limit.

Do you think it would be wise to marry into this family? I can see a very miserable married life ahead, with his mother interfering and causing trouble.

WONDERING.

To give the older woman her due, it is almost impossible for such women to find work these days. You find so much to criticize in this young man's mother that I cannot possibly see how you two could get along together under one roof; it would be most unwise to attempt such an arrangement.

All said and done, it seems to me that the decision is up to the young man—whether he wishes to put his mother in an institution or marry you. But before influencing him to do this, it might be well to bear in mind that a good son is supposed to make a good husband.

A Past Chapter

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A young man and I fell desperately in love three years ago. His family forbid him to see me, and it's almost two years since I saw him.

Recently he married a 17-year-old girl, although he says he still loves me. I went to see him at his office one day and he's a shadow of his former self, having lost about fifty pounds. I've also lost weight. They nagged him so much at home, that he married this girl to get away.

If I had known of his bank account at the time of our separation two years ago I would have insisted he give all of the money to his family, as I believe that was the cause of all the trouble. We could manage nicely on his salary.

What would you do?

HEARTBROKEN L.

I'd try to forget all about this past chapter in my life, if I were you. Pick up the pieces and go on. The young man must have had a certain intrinsic weakness of character or he would have been more independent and not have allowed his family to interfere so drastically in his love affairs.

It's not quite clear to me why, if they objected to you, as his wife, on the score of his bank account, they did not raise the same objections in regard to the 17-year-old. He is bound and you are free, with all of life before you. In the homely words of the old adage, Why cry over spilled milk?

Killed His Love

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a man of 28 years of age. I'm married, although I'm separated from my wife, and we have a seven-year old daughter. I left my wife four years ago and went to another state because I found out she was unfaithful to me. I was very much in love with her but when I found this out it turned me against her.

While away from her I fell in love with a girl who also loves me. And then I received a letter from my wife, saying she wanted to re-marry and asking that I come home and make some sort of settlement in regard to a divorce. When I returned to her home, I found it was all a trick to get me back, and she wants us to go back together again. She says it's "just for the baby's sake."

Although I'll do what I can to assist her financially, I don't believe I ought to sacrifice my whole life to one about whom I do not care any more. I love my little girl, but not my wife.

J.

Yours is indeed a complicated and difficult problem, but there is a way out. Haven't you a good friend, preferably a lawyer, who can and will help you solve this case?

As always, my sympathy is with the little girl. Children of divorced parents have a hard time. They are the innocent victims of circumstances.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going out with a man of 32 for the past two years. Lately my mother has been raising objections to my seeing him, as she says he's wasting my time. I don't go with him alone, but also go out with other boys.

This man has repeatedly told me that he cannot afford to marry and that he doesn't want to keep me from going out with eligible men. He never dates me for any particular evening, but calls up just before he wants to come; if I'm free he'll come over.

Although I deeply love this man, I'm afraid our love is hopeless and that we'll never marry. Do you think my mother is right in wanting me to break with him? I'm 25 years of age.

M. T.

I can't understand why a man in the prime of his life is so undesirable that your mother wants you to make a clean break with him. Perhaps you haven't told me everything. You say he's willing to come evenings when you're free. That sounds as if he lacks the force all creatures must have to be even moderately successful.

Does he drink to excess? If so, that's a real handicap. Does he chase "skirts", which is even worse? If he's unemployed, does he make an effort to get work? Your mother evidently doesn't like his procrastination.

Fussy over Table Manners

Dear Miss Fairfax:

No, I'm not one of those guys who do a sword swallowing act and eat with my knife, but the girl friend objected to the way I held my fork and, as she said, "made a dump-cart out of it." She objected to other things about the way I ate. I tried to laugh this off, but it was no good. She gave me my walking papers. I'm pretty sore about the whole thing. What was wrong with the way I held my fork?

JACK.

Not having seen you use your fork, my dear Jack, it's pretty hard to say what was wrong with your technique. The knife is held in the right hand when cutting meat, and the fork is held much as a pencil is held in writing, only the fingers are placed near the top. The next time you're near a public library, ask for a book on table etiquette which gives a diagram of the proper use of knife and fork.

I think your girl was unduly fussy; what she should have done was to have instructed you in table art, as tactfully as possible.

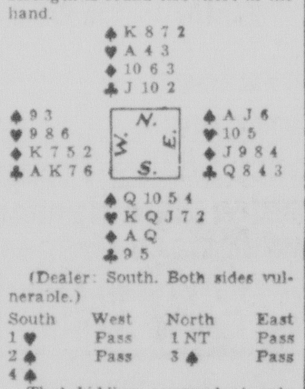
"The Authority on Authorities"

IS THE SUIT STOPPED?

ONLY ONE question is asked nowadays by top-flight players to determine whether or not a particular four-card suit is safely biddable. Does it contain enough strength to furnish probable stoppers if the hand eventually is played at No Trump? If the reply is in the affirmative, then the suit is as soundly biddable as one which contains the requirements printed in the earliest books on the game and in some of the unsound new ones. There is absolutely no reason for having a trick and a half at the top of the suit, so long as sufficient honor strength is found elsewhere in the hand.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

That bidding occurred at only one table of a social duplicate game—where the most expert pair in the room were engaged. South lost two club tricks, ruffed the next club, led a spade to the K and A, refused the diamond finesse, went to the table with the heart A, finessed the spade 10, finished hostile trumps with the Q, ran his remaining hearts for two diamond discards, ruffed the diamond Q and so made his contract.

At other tables, after the universally made 1-Heart bid and North's 1-No Trump, all of the Souths now rebid hearts except one, who raised the No Trump to three. Some of these players got into 4-Hearts, but game is patently impossible there, with no way to avoid three losers in the minor suits and one in trumps, since there is no side suit except the evenly-balanced spade one, which should be the trump. The No Trump declarer also was defeated. All in all, this hand cries aloud that players who refuse to bid such four-card suits will pass up plenty of sure games.

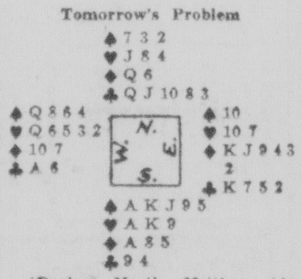
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

Playing for 3-No Trumps, if South wins the opening trick with dummy's heart J, takes two high spades and then leads the spade J to the Q, what two discards should East make on the spade tricks?

SALLY'S SALLIES

Love makes the world go round, but it takes money to square it.

By Beatrice Fairfax, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Six weeks ago a worried mother of three daughters wrote to this column, saying that she was not opposed to modern antics on the part of the young. Her compalint was that it didn't seem to get them anywhere as the more conservative behavior of her day did.

The lady advised me to turn over the leaves of the old family album and see how these not-so-beautiful girls invariably landed their men. I took her advice and studied the pictures of the Cousin Jennie and Aunt Marias. None of these ladies had ever heard of a beauty parlor; their hair-dos looked as if they had been slicked by a wet hairbrush and twisted into a walnut by a monkey wrench. Yet they got their man and presumably lived happily ever after.

My correspondent didn't object to her girls being ultra-modern. They all smoked like chimneys, were connoisseurs in the latest cocktails, rhumbaed, jitter-bugged, patronized roadhouses, and even, for a lark, took in the dime-a-dance hangout.

Plenty of Dates

These girls had loads of dates, but no proposals of marriage! Like the princesses in the fairy tale who each wore out a pair of dancing slippers every night, their dogged restlessness got these three lovelies nowhere. And mamma, bolstered by the fate of those homely Victorians in the family album, began to sit up and worry.

Why, she pondered, did damsels like Cousin Jenny and Aunt Maria make good matches, have huge life insurance policies taken out in their interests and secure husbands who slaved for them. Two of her girls who had excellent jobs, wrote my correspondent, offered to keep on with them if the most likely of their suitors only said "the hard word," as the romantic Irish say. They got no takers.

The mother's letter to me was highly amusing.

"Sowing wild oats reaps no orange blossoms," she said. "Wouldn't it be a good thing if my daughters, and the daughters of other women, going high, wide and handsome, dropped back into some of the old-fashioned amusements of my generation, when a girl's idea of freedom was not a foot on the brass rail.

"My girls haven't married, unsuccessfully or otherwise. Why don't we go back to some of the simple amusements that made for domesticity when the world was a happier place?" The lady suggested all sorts of out-of-door sports—campfire parties, bacon bats, chop parties, even roof parties.

Details Given

So your columnist went into a long-distance huddle with the lady of the three beautiful daughters. We exchanged several letters and she gave me some details of these parties of her youth. We've discussed this in the Beatrice Fairfax column, and I've answered a good many letters telling how to "throw" these old-fashioned parties.

The requests for them have been so overwhelming that I've had mimeographed copies made, and will be glad to send them to anyone writing me, enclosing a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope.

Please remember—a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope if you want to know how Cousin Jan, Aunt Belle or Grandma made the grade up the middle aisle to the altar, while the organist burst into Lohengrin. Just "write to Beatrice Fairfax."

Afraid To Give Up Her Job

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 23 years, very much in love with my boy friend. He had a job here but when he lost it he went back to his home town where he is now working. I have a job but don't earn very much — just enough to get by on. He intended to stay away only half a year when he left, but it is almost two years now.

He wants me to come to his town but I'm afraid to give up this job I have here. Or, he said, he'd come here, but I'm thinking that it would be foolish to give up what he has for an uncertainty. We're both desperately lonely and keep saying all along that things will get better. Would you advise be to quit my job and go to him, or take a chance on his finding employment here?

IN DOUBT.

I think it would be better, under the circumstances, if you both kept your jobs until you see how things turn out. You say that each of you earns only enough to provide bare necessities, and it's always a great risk to attempt marriage on that. I may be an incorrigible optimist, but I can't help feeling that you're going to have a break before long. My best wishes to you.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going with a young man who is a steady worker, although he doesn't make much money. He saves all he possibly can toward our future. His mother, who is a widow, makes no effort to find work, and nags her son for money, from morning 'til night. He is willing to help her all he can, but there is a limit.

Do you think it would be wise to marry into this family? I can see a very miserable married life ahead, with his mother interfering and causing trouble.

WONDERING.

To give the older woman her due, it is almost impossible for such women to find work these days. You find so much to criticize in this young man's mother that I cannot possibly see how you two could get along together under one roof; it would be most unwise to attempt such an arrangement.

All said and done, it seems to me that the decision is up to the young man—whether he wishes to put his mother in an institution or marry you. But before influencing him to do this, it might be well to bear in mind that a good son is supposed to make a good husband.

A Past Chapter

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A young man and I fell desperately in love three years ago. His family forbid him to see me, and it's almost two years since I saw him.

Recently he married a 17-year-old girl, although he says he still loves me. I went to see him at his office one day and he's a shadow of his former self, having lost about fifty pounds. I've also lost weight. They nagged him so much at home, that he married this girl to get away.

If I had known of his bank account at the time of our separation two years ago I would have insisted he give all of the money to his family, as I believe that was the cause of all the trouble. We could manage nicely on his salary.

What would you do?

HEARTBROKEN L.

I'd try to forget all about this past chapter in my life, if I were you. Pick up the pieces and go on. The young man must have had a certain intrinsic weakness of character or he would have been more independent and not have allowed his family to interfere so drastically in his love affairs.

It's not quite clear to me why, if they objected to you, as his wife, on the score of his bank account, they did not raise the same objections in regard to the 17-year-old. He is bound and you are free, with all of life before you. In the homely words of the old adage, Why cry over spilled milk?

Killed His Love

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a man of 28 years of age. I'm married, although I'm separated from my wife, and we have a seven-year old daughter. I left my wife four years ago and went to another state because I found out she was unfaithful to me. I was very much in love with her but when I found this out it turned me against her.

While away from her I fell in love with a girl who also loves me. And then I received a letter from my wife, saying she wanted to re-marry and asking that I come home and make some sort of settlement in regard to a divorce. When I returned to her home, I found it was all a trick to get me back, and she wants us to go back together again. She says it's "just for the baby's sake."

Although I'll do what I can to assist her financially, I don't believe I ought to sacrifice my whole life to one about whom I do not care any more. I love my little girl, but not my wife.

J.

Yours is indeed a complicated and difficult problem, but there is a way out. Haven't you a good friend, preferably a lawyer, who can and will help you solve this case?

As always, my sympathy is with the little girl. Children of divorced parents have a hard time. They are the innocent victims of circumstances.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going out with a man of 32 for the past two years. Lately my mother has been raising objections to my seeing him, as she says he's wasting my time. I don't go with him alone, but also go out with other boys.

This man has repeatedly told me that he cannot afford to marry and that he doesn't want to keep me from going out with eligible men. He never dates me for any particular evening, but calls up just before he wants to come; if I'm free he'll come over.

Although I deeply love this man, I'm afraid our love is hopeless and that we'll never marry. Do you think my mother is right in wanting me to break with him? I'm 25 years of age.

M. T.

I can't understand why a man in the prime of his life is so undesirable that your mother wants you to make a clean break with him. Perhaps you haven't told me everything. You say he's willing to come evenings when you're free. That sounds as if he lacks the force all creatures must have to be even moderately successful.

Does he drink to excess? If so, that's a real handicap. Does he chase "skirts", which is even worse? If he's unemployed, does he make an effort to get work? Your mother evidently doesn't like his procrastination.

Fussy over Table Manners

Dear Miss Fairfax:

No, I'm not one of those guys who do a sword swallowing act and eat with my knife, but the girl friend objected to the way I held my fork and, as she said, "made a dump-cart out of it." She objected to other things about the way I ate. I tried to laugh this off, but it was no good. She gave me my walking papers. I'm pretty sore about the whole thing. What was wrong with the way I held my fork?

JACK.

Not having seen you use your fork, my dear Jack, it's pretty hard to say what was wrong with your technique. The knife is held in the right hand when cutting meat, and the fork is held much as a pencil is held in writing, only the fingers are placed near the top. The next time you're near a public library, ask for a book on table etiquette which gives a diagram of the proper use of knife and fork.

I think your girl was unduly fussy; what she should have done was to have instructed you in table art, as tactfully as possible.

Stocks Slip in Market Paralyzed Over English Channel Campaign

Little General Movement Expected until British and Germans Clash

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Aug. 7. (AP)—Stocks slipped a shade today in a market almost paralyzed by doubt over the English channel campaign.

Only 239,690 shares moved compared with 289,890 yesterday.

Commentators said they expected little general movement one way or another until major British and German forces clashed in the expected battle for England.

Industrial news in the United States continued as a supporting factor. Such barometers as carloadings, steel rate and electric power output indicated active domestic business operations.

Although zinc inventories were reported at a decreased level and leading smelters reduced the price of copper by ½ cent a pound to 11 cents, metal shares averaged a bit lower.

On the downside, by fractions, at the close were Glenn Martin, Douglas, Eastman, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, du Pont, Westinghouse, Air Reduction, American Smelting, Anaconda, and American Paper.

In the curb, where 62,000 shares were traded, compared with 63,000 yesterday, gainers included Aluminum, Ltd., Cities Service, and Niles-Bement-Pond and among the losers were New England Telephone, Chesebrouhh, and Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Well, Women Always Have the Last Word

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 7 (AP)—Among quick comebacks should be recorded the one that a lady in Shawnee county shot at Harry Schmidt, candidate for sheriff, when he asked her to support him.

"I've supported a man for 25 years and I don't care to support another," she retorted.

Poor Lo Is Answered

Old and New Songs Are In Maryland Feature

Two songs, one as new as tomorrow and the other a favorite of a generation ago, are sung by Judy Garland in "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante", opening today at the Maryland Theatre.

"I'm Nobody's Baby", hit of the early and Gay Twenties, will bring nostalgic memories of the jazz age to those who were dance addicts in the days just following the war. The new number is "Alone", written by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, a song-writing team who have contributed any number of hits to stage and screen.

In this latest adventure of Judge Hardy and his brood, who have been called the typical American family, Mickey Rooney falls in love with magazine pictures of New York's most dazzling debutante and when fate takes the family to New York, Mickey, as Andy Hardy, tries etiquette and night clubs in an effort to meet the beautiful socialite, the result being laughter for everyone else and tragedy for Mickey. Meanwhile Lewis Stone, in his favorite role of Judge Hardy, fights valiantly in a New York court to prevent financial disaster for the orphanage back in Carvel.

New Double Bill Is Scheduled at Embassy

Another double bill is scheduled for tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

One feature will be "Frontier Crusader," a western drama featuring Tim McCoy.

The second feature will be Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in their feature-length comedy, "Saps at Sea."

The third chapter of the serial, "Terry and the Pirates," will be on the same bill.

A double feature bill is showing today at the Embassy. It includes Otto Kruger and Frieda Inescort in "The Zero Hour," and Richard Talmadge in the action drama, "Step On It." In addition, there will be another chapter of "Drums of Fu Manchu."

"Dark Victory" Heads Garden Double Bill

Because of popular demand, "Dark Victory," starring Bette Davis and George Brent, returns today to the Garden theater. Geraldine Fitzgerald, who appeared in "Wuthering Heights" and "Rebecca," has a prominent part in the film.

Leon Errol, famous "rubber-legged" comedian and former star of the Ziegfield Follies, heads the cast supporting Lupe Velez in the RKO Radio romantic comedy, "Mexican Spitfire," also at the Garden.

Errol plays the same role he had in "The Girl From Mexico," to which the current film is a sequel. He is seen as the erratic uncle of Donald Woods, advertising man married to Lupe Velez, Mexican entertainer.

The efforts of Errol to straighten out the matrimonial difficulties of the newlyweds which he always manages to make worse, is the basis of the fast-paced saucy story.

AMERICA'S TYPICAL BROTHER AND SISTER

Two youngsters typical of brother and sister in the average American family are Cecilia Parker and Mickey Rooney, the Andy and Marian Hardy of the Hardy Family pictures, latest of which, "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," is the current attraction on the Maryland screen. After their usual quarreling and bickering, Marian slips her boisterous brother a little spending money to smooth the path of his latest romantic conquest.

Universal Comedy Is at New Liberty

In her fifth year Nancy made her movie debut in "The Untamed Lady," starring Gloria Swanson. In all, she appeared in fifty-two pictures made on Long Island before she was chosen for the role of Gertrude Lawrence's daughter in the Broadway stage production of "Susan and God."

Nancy's triumph in the play won her a Hollywood film contract.

An up-to-the-minute story of the United States Navy is now being shown at the New Liberty in the latest March of Time film, "The U. S. Navy—1940," which pictures the condition of America's battlefleets today and shows how they will be developed and expanded under the new national defense program.

The film vividly pictures the disintegration of the U. S. Navy after the first World War, when mounting anti-war sentiment and the Washington Naval Disarmament Conference of 1922 brought about the scrapping of more than a half million tons of warships, including many unfinished cruisers and dreadnaughts that had already cost American taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars.

Donahue and Orchestra Are at Strand Today

Al Donahue and his orchestra with Dee Keating and Phil Brito, singing stars, appear at the Strand today and tomorrow. Mr. Donahue will give four performances at 2:42, 7, 9:02 and 11:04 p. m. The last complete stage and screen show will start at 10 p. m.

The screen show is "Sandy Is a Lady," featuring Baby Sandy, Tom Brown, Nan Grey, Mischa Auer and Billy Gilbert. It is a comedy.

Many of the scenes in "The Return of Frank James," new Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor production which has its world premier at the Strand Saturday, were filmed among California's most famous historical localities.

Included in the places selected for "location" shots are Bishop, Owen's River gorge and Sonora, all famous in California and western history.

"The Return of Frank James" stars Henry Fonda and features Gene Tierney, Jackie Cooper and Henry Hull. According to advance reports, the film is more colorful and spectacular than "Jesse James," last year's production from the same studio.

Record Gas Tax

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP)—Maryland motorists paid the largest amount of gasoline taxes in the state's history during the month of June, the Maryland Petroleum Industries Committee reported today.

A total of $1,446,307 was collected on 28,926,140 gallons of gasoline in June, the report said. This exceeded by $79,000 the previous high month of August, 1939.

The United States has eight great rivers—Hudson, Delaware, Potomac, Mississippi, Missouri, Columbia, Ohio and Colorado.

Estonia Becomes Part of Russia

And Soviet Also Signs a Trade Pack with the United States

MOSCOW, Aug. 7 (AP) — Russia took Estonia into the states, and about the same time signed a one-year trade agreement with the United States.

The trade pact was identical with last year's except for one detail not yet announced.

Sitting in the great white-walled council chamber of the Kremlin, the Supreme Soviet accepted an Estonian petition to enter the USSR as the sixteenth republic. Latvia and Lithuania already had been accepted.

This action swelled Russia's population to 193,000,000, of whom 10,000,000 came in from Rumania, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

Earlier in the day, Tass, the official Soviet news agency, had denounced as the act of a "murderer" the reported assassination in Helsinki, Finland, of a member of the "society for friendship and peace with the USSR."

This advocate of closer relations with Moccow, said Tass, was shot and killed in a public meeting by a "Canadian volunteer"—one of the Canadians who joined the international brigade to fight for Finland in the Russo-Finnish war—in an attempt on the life of a leader of the society.

"The murderer," the agency commented, "was detained by workers." It added that the Finnish press was persisting in a campaign against the pro-Soviet society.

At the same time it was recalled that Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff had publicly stated on Aug. 1 that Russian-Finnish relations might "be damaged by the campaign against Finnish circles who try to strengthen good-neighborly relations with the USSR."

According to the European system of roulette, winning is frequently possible. With the American system the odds are particularly heavy because of the two zeros.

Stocks Slip in Market Paralyzed Over English Channel Campaign

Little General Movement Expected until British and Germans Clash

By FREDERICK GARDNER

Only 239,690 shares moved compared with 289,890 yesterday.

Commentators said they expected little general movement one way or another until major British and German forces clashed in the expected battle for England.

Industrial news in the United States continued as a supporting factor. Such barometers as carloadings, steel rate and electric power output indicated active domestic business operations.

Although zinc inventories were reported at a decreased level and leading smelters reduced the price of copper by ½ cent a pound to 11 cents, metal shares averaged a bit lower.

On the downside, by fractions, at the close were Glenn Martin, Douglas, Eastman, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, du Pont, Westinghouse, Air Reduction, American Smelting, Anaconda, and American Paper.

In the curb, where 62,000 shares were traded, compared with 63,000 yesterday, gainers included Aluminum, Ltd., Cities Service, and Niles-Bement-Pond and among the losers were New England Telephone, Chesebrough, and Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Well, Women Always Have the Last Word

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 7 (AP)—Among quick comebacks should be recorded the one that a lady in Shawnee county shot at Harry Schmidt, candidate for sheriff, when he asked her to support him.

Henry Fonda, who played Frank James in last year's production of "Jesse James," again portrays the notorious outlaw in "The Return of Frank James," new Technicolor Twentieth Century-Fox picture opening Saturday at the Strand.

Theaters Today

Old and New Songs Are In Maryland Feature

Two songs, one as new as tomorrow and the other a favorite of a generation ago, are sung by Judy Garland in "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante", opening today at the Maryland Theatre.

"I'm Nobody's Baby", hit of the early and Gay Twenties, will bring nostalgic memories of the jazz age to those who were dance addicts in the days just following the war. The new number is "Alone", written by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, a song-writing team who have contributed any number of hits to stage and screen.

In this latest adventure of Judge Hardy and his brood, who have been called the typical American family, Mickey Rooney falls in love with magazine pictures of New York's most dazzling debutante and when fate takes the family to New York, Mickey, as Andy Hardy, tries etiquette and night clubs in an effort to meet the beautiful socialite, the result being laughter for everyone else and tragedy for Mickey. Meanwhile Lewis Stone, in his favorite role of Judge Hardy, fights valiantly in a New York court to prevent financial disaster for the orphanage back in Carvel.

New Double Bill Is Scheduled at Embassy

Another double bill is scheduled for tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

One feature will be "Frontier Crusader," a western drama featuring Tim McCoy.

The second feature will be Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in their feature-length comedy, "Saps at Sea."

The third chapter of the serial, "Terry and the Pirates," will be on the same bill.

A double feature bill is showing today at the Embassy. It includes Otto Kruger and Frieda Inescort in "The Zero Hour," and Richard Talmadge in the action drama, "Step On It." In addition, there will be another chapter of "Drums of Fu Manchu."

"Dark Victory" Heads Garden Double Bill

Because of popular demand, "Dark Victory," starring Bette Davis and George Brent, returns today to the Garden theater. Geraldine Fitzgerald, who appeared in "Wuthering Heights" and "Rebecca," has a prominent part in the film.

Leon Errol, famous "rubber-legged" comedian and former star of the Ziegfield Follies, heads the cast supporting Lupe Velez in the RKO Radio romantic comedy, "Mexican Spitfire," also at the Garden.

Errol plays the same role he had in "The Girl From Mexico," to which the current film is a sequel. He is seen as the erratic uncle of Donald Woods, advertising man married to Lupe Velez, Mexican entertainer.

The efforts of Errol to straighten out the matrimonial difficulties of the newlyweds which he always manages to make worse, is the basis of the fast-paced saucy story.

AMERICA'S TYPICAL BROTHER AND SISTER

Two youngsters typical of brother and sister in the average American family are Cecilia Parker and Mickey Rooney, the Andy and Marian Hardy of the Hardy Family pictures, latest of which, "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," is the current attraction on the Maryland screen. After their usual quarreling and bickering, Marian slips her boisterous brother a little spending money to smooth the path of his latest romantic conquest.

Universal Comedy Is at New Liberty

In her fifth year Nancy made her movie debut in "The Untamed Lady," starring Gloria Swanson. In all, she appeared in fifty-two pictures made on Long Island before she was chosen for the role of Gertrude Lawrence's daughter in the Broadway stage production of "Susan and God."

Nancy's triumph in the play won her a Hollywood film contract.

An up-to-the-minute story of the United States Navy is now being shown at the New Liberty in the latest March of Time film, "The U. S. Navy—1940," which pictures the condition of America's battlefleets today and shows how they will be developed and expanded under the new national defense program.

The film vividly pictures the disintegration of the U. S. Navy after the first World War, when mounting anti-war sentiment and the Washington Naval Disarmament Conference of 1922 brought about the scrapping of more than a half million tons of warships, including many unfinished cruisers and dreadnaughts that had already cost American taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars.

Donahue and Orchestra Are at Strand Today

Al Donahue and his orchestra with Dee Keating and Phil Brito, singing stars, appear at the Strand today and tomorrow. Mr. Donahue will give four performances at 2:42, 7, 9:02 and 11:04 p. m. The last complete stage and screen show will start at 10 p. m.

The screen show is "Sandy Is a Lady," featuring Baby Sandy, Tom Brown, Nan Grey, Mischa Auer and Billy Gilbert. It is a comedy.

Many of the scenes in "The Return of Frank James," new Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor production which has its world premier at the Strand Saturday, were filmed among California's most famous historical localities.

Included in the places selected for "location" shots are Bishop, Owen's River gorge and Sonora, all famous in California and western history.

"The Return of Frank James" stars Henry Fonda and features Gene Tierney, Jackie Cooper and Henry Hull. According to advance reports, the film is more colorful and spectacular than "Jesse James," last year's production from the same studio.

Record Gas Tax

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP)—Maryland motorists paid the largest amount of gasoline taxes in the state's history during the month of June, the Maryland Petroleum Industries Committee reported today.

A total of $1,446,307 was collected on 28,926,140 gallons of gasoline in June, the report said. This exceeded by $79,000 the previous high month of August, 1939.

The United States has eight great rivers—Hudson, Delaware, Potomac, Mississippi, Missouri, Columbia, Ohio and Colorado.

Estonia Becomes Part of Russia

And Soviet Also Signs a Trade Pack with the United States

MOSCOW, Aug. 7 (AP) — Russia took Estonia into the states, and about the same time signed a one-year trade agreement with the United States.

The trade pact was identical with last year's except for one detail, not yet announced.

Sitting in the great white-walled council chamber of the Kremlin, the Supreme Soviet accepted an Estonian petition to enter the USSR as the sixteenth republic. Latvia and Lithuania already had been accepted.

This action swelled Russia's population to 193,000,000, of whom 10,000,000 came in from Rumania, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

Earlier in the day, Tass, the official Soviet news agency, had denounced as the act of a "murderer" the reported assassination in Helsinki, Finland, of a member of the "society for friendship and peace with the USSR."

This advocate of closer relations with Moscow, said Tass, was shot and killed in a public meeting by a "Canadian volunteer"—one of the Canadians who joined the international brigade to fight for Finland in the Russo-Finnish war—in an attempt on the life of a leader of the society.

"The murderer," the agency commented, "was detained by workers." It added that the Finnish press was persisting in a campaign against the pro-Soviet society.

At the same time it was recalled that Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff had publicly stated on Aug. 1 that Russian-Finnish relations might "be damaged by the campaign against Finnish circles who try to strengthen good-neighborly relations with the USSR."

According to the European system of roulette, winning is frequently possible. With the American system the odds are particularly heavy because of the two zeros.

Fruits and Vegetables Are Ideal During Summer's Hot Weather

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Salads are good dishes to depend on in hot weather, and to build up your resistence for the fall and winter season. Salads alone make a good hot weather meal.

The foods which go into salads are unadulterable and not easily spoiled, and contain many necessary nutritious ingredients.

All nutrition experts emphasize the necessity of a generous supply of vegetables and fruits. The vegetables and fruits are the most important sources of iron to the body and if we limit them we cause a certain sluggishness of blood formation and an entire lack of reserve iron such as is normally found in the liver, spleen and bone marrow of healthy, well nourished individuals.

Extra Iron

In a study of an experimental dietary reported by Dr. H. C. Sherman, of Columbia University, New York City, found that a free use of vegetables, whole wheat bread and the cheaper sorts of fruits with milk and eggs resulted in a gain of thirty per cent in the iron content of the diet, while the protein and fuel value remained practically the same as in the mixed and more expensive diets obtained under the same market conditions.

The effect of apples on the absence of the medical profession is no more superstition. Growth promoting Vitamin A is abundant in certain vegetables—such as spinach, carrots, corn, cabbage, brussels sprouts, peas and watercress. In their raw state they contain the scurvy-preventing vitamin C. Vegetables and fruits tend to counteract acidity. Calcium used in bone building is abundant in peas and beans and the leaves of plants. Sodium, potassium, iron, phosphorus and sulphur—necessary minerals for the body—are found in the root vegetables.

Some recipes for summer vegetables containing all these nutrient ingredients are:

Raw Vegetable Salad

Carrots, beetroot, lettuce, watercress, celery, onion, minced parsley.

Prepare ingredients carefully, scrubbing with hard brush. Dry and grate in separate heaps with vegetable grater. Place on lettuce leaves as desired, garnish with sliced celery, parsley and watercress. Serve with oil, olives, lemon juice, olive oil, dressing, etc. to taste.

Green Salad

Lettuce, watercress, tomato e. cabbage.

Prepare carefully wash and ingredients. Place lettuce in individual dishes in circle grate or finely chop cabbage, cut tomatoes in cubes with saw-edge stainless knife, slice celery, garnish with watercress. Add oil or dressing and two dessertspoonfulls of milled nuts and serve.

Stuffed Baked Apples

Eating apples, too hard to be eaten raw may be cored and stuffed with stoned muscat raisins and baked in oven till tender. Serve with cream and milled nuts.

Questions and Answers

C. R. H.—"How much salt water should the average individual drink to compensate for the loss of salt through perspiration?"

Answer—Except in special occupations where there is great loss by perspiration drinking salt water is not indicated. The salt used in cooking is sufficent replacement for ordnary perspiration loss. Thirst is the best guide to the amount of water needed.

W. A. C.—"An X-ray shows a wisdom tooth grown fast to my jaw bone. It is a perfect tooth and does not bother me. Should I have it taken out?"

Answer—If it does not bother you—by this I mean if there is no facial neuralgia or infection—leave it alone.

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Salads are good dishes to depend on in hot weather, and to build up your resistence for the fall and winter season. Salads alone make a good hot weather meal.

The foods which go into salads are unadulterable and not easily spoiled, and contain many necessary nutritious ingredients.

All nutrition experts emphasize the necessity of a generous supply of vegetables and fruits. The vegetables and fruits are the most important sources of iron to the body and if we limit them we cause a certain sluggishness of blood formation and an entire lack of reserve iron such as is normally found in the liver, spleen and bone marrow of healthy, well nourished individuals.

Extra Iron

In a study of an experimental dietary reported by Dr. H. C. Sherman, of Columbia University, New York City, found that a free use of vegetables, whole wheat bread and the cheaper sorts of fruits with milk and eggs resulted in a gain of thirty per cent in the iron content of the diet, while the protein and fuel value remained practically the same as in the mixed and more expensive diets obtained under the same market conditions.

The effect of apples on the absence of the medical profession is no more superstition. Growth promoting Vitamin A is abundant in certain vegetables—such as spinach, carrots, corn, cabbage, brussels sprouts, peas and watercress. In their raw state they contain the scurvy-preventing vitamin C. Vegetables and fruits tend to counteract acidity. Calcium used in bone building is abundant in peas and beans and the leaves of plants. Sodium, potassium, iron, phosphorus and sulphur—necessary minerals for the body—are found in the root vegetables.

Some recipes for summer vegetables containing all these nutrient ingredients are:

Raw Vegetable Salad

Carrots, beetroot, lettuce, watercress, celery, onion, minced parsley.

Prepare ingredients carefully, scrubbing with hard brush. Dry and grate in separate heaps with vegetable grater. Place on lettuce leaves as desired, garnish with sliced celery, parsley and watercress. Serve with oil, olives, lemon juice, olive oil, dressing, etc. to taste.

Green Salad

Lettuce, watercress, tomato c... cabbage.

Prepare carefully, wash and ... ingredients. Place lettuce in individual dishes in circle, grate or finely chop cabbage, cut tomatoes in slices with saw-edge stainless knife, slice celery, garnish with watercress. Add oil or dressing and two dessertspoonfulls of milled nuts and serve.

Stuffed Baked Apples

Eating apples, too hard to be eaten raw may be cored and stuffed with stoned muscat raisins and baked in oven till tender. Serve with cream and milled nuts.

Questions and Answers

C. R. H.—"How much salt water should the average individual drink to compensate for the loss of salt through perspiration?"

Answer—Except in special occupations where there is great loss by perspiration drinking salt water is not indicated. The salt used in cooking is sufficent replacement for ordnary perspiration loss. Thirst is the best guide to the amount of water needed.

W. A. C.—"An X-ray shows a wisdom tooth grown fast to my jaw bone. It is a perfect tooth and does not bother me. Should I have it taken out?"

Answer—If it does not bother you—by this I mean if there is no facial neuralgia or infection—leave it alone.

Concert Planned Friday Night By Arion Band

Organization To Play for Annual Lawn Fete at Zion Church

FROSTBURG, Aug. 7—The Arion Band will present a concert Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock on the lawn of Zion Evangelical and Reformed church, East Main street, as a feature of the annual lawn fete sponsored by the men of the church. While the concert will be given outdoors, the lawn fete will be held in the basement lecture room, where ice cream, cake, home-made candies, sandwiches and coffee will be available.

The band concert, under the direction of R. H. Lancaster, is an annual feature of this church affair, being started many years ago when many of the charter members of the organization were members of the church which is known among older residents of the community as the "German Lutheran church."

Dedication Service

A new baptismal font, presented to Zion Evangelical and Reformed church by the beginner's department of the Sunday school, will be dedicated at the 11 a. m. service Sunday, when a number of children are to be presented for baptism. The font was made by the Keltner Manufacturing Company, Ashley, Ohio, makers of ecclesiastical furniture, and is one of many improvements made to the church interior during the past year.

The first improvement was the redecorating of the entire interior of the auditorium and hallways and the installation of beautiful memorial lights, the gift of Mrs. Henry Mayer. Since the completion of the decorating, many other repairs have been made with the result that the church now presents a most impressive appearance.

It's a Good Thing Someone Stays Home

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP)—If all licensed West Virginia fishermen went angling at the same time, each could claim little more than half an acre of water to himself, even if he chose his share in a polluted stream, the conservation commission reported.

This brings a major problem in keeping the streams well supplied, the commission pointed out.

He would have little more than an eighth of the national-average space, and less than an eightieth of the room he could find in Florida, which has 43.8 acres per fishing lincense even excluding the ocean.

Among the ten states with populations of from one to two million persons, West Virginia ranks last in the per-license area of water. Colorado, next lowest, has 1.71 acres to West Virginia's .574 acre, the commission said.

One out of every 10.5 West Virginians has a license.

Old Evans Store in Frostburg Razed; Scene of Tumultuous GOP Meetings

FROSTBURG, Aug. 7—One of Frostburg's most picturesque landmarks disappeared last week when the store room known a half century ago as the Billy Evans store was torn down by William Byrnes, Bowery street grocer, who recently purchased the property.

The building, fronted by a concrete plaza, was built in the late 70's and was one of the largest general stores of the town for many years and was also the social center for men of the community, particularly local politicians who were followers of the late Billy Evans and the late John Farrady, Republican leaders in this section following the Civil War.

An interesting incident concerning the store, related today by Uriah Jones, was the formation of Republican marching clubs at the Billy Evans store during the political campaign which resulted in the election of Rutherford B. Hays as president of the United States. One of the big celebrations following the election of Mr. Hayes, according to Mr. Jones, was held at the Evans store.

Following the death of Mr. Evans, who came here as a young man from Mt. Savage, the property was sold to Adam Brown, who recently retired. It is reported that Mr. Byrnes is planning the erection of an apartment house on the site.

Mechanical Defect, Not the Driver, Made Car Weave, Keyser Jury Rules

KEYSER, W. Va., Aug. 7—Alvin Moore, 41, Keyser, was acquitted on a charge of drunken driving by a six-man jury in Police court here this morning.

Moore was arrested about 2 a. m. on Main street Sunday as he was on his way home from a party, he testified.

Police charged his automobile "weaved" as he drove it along Main street. Witnesses who had been at the party with Moore at an Allegheny street home testified that he was sober when he drove off, shortly before he was arrested. A mechanic told the jury the car steered irregularly due to a mechanical defect.

Moore was defended by Attorney H. G. Shores, and City Attorney E. A. See prosecuted the case before Judge A. A. Jordan.

Officers who made the arrest were City Police Chief James E. Leatherman and Constables L. O. Kesner and William Adams.

In his address to the jury, Shores charged that North Main street, at the near end of the Keyser-McCoole bridge, is used as a "police trap." The defense attorney said that, although the case was not just then concerned with traffic ambushes, he was "glad to be able to stand here and expose it publicly. It is malicious and a disgrace and should be broken up immediately."

Award Roofing Job

County School Superintendent Paul C. Rouzer announced today that the board of education in regular session last night awarded the contract for the roofing of the new Howard negro high school at Piedmont to Snider brothers, Keyser building firm, who submitted a low bid of $1,045.

Snider Brothers were builders of the recently-completed high schools at Piedmont, Fort Ashby and Elk Garden.

Only other bid submitted to the board last night was that of Tri-State Contractors, Cumberland, Rouzer said.

It's a Good Thing Someone Stays Home

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP)—If all licensed West Virginia fishermen went angling at the same time, each could claim little more than half an acre of water to himself, even if he chose his share in a polluted stream, the conservation commission reported.

This brings a major problem in keeping the streams well supplied, the commission pointed out.

He would have little more than an eighth of the national-average space, and less than an eightieth of the room he could find in Florida, which has 43.8 acres per fishing lincense even excluding the ocean.

Among the ten states with populations of from one to two million persons, West Virginia ranks last in the per-license area of water. Colorado, next lowest, has 1.71 acres to West Virginia's .574 acre, the commission said.

One out of every 10.5 West Virginians has a license.

Old Evans Store in Frostburg Razed; Scene of Tumultuous GOP Meetings

FROSTBURG, Aug. 7—One of Frostburg's most picturesque landmarks disappeared last week when the store room known a half century ago as the Billy Evans store was torn down by William Byrnes, Bowery street grocer, who recently purchased the property.

The building, fronted by a concrete plaza, was built in the late 70's and was one of the largest general stores of the town for many years and was also the social center for men of the community, particularly local politicians who were followers of the late Billy Evans and the late John Farrady, Republican leaders in this section following the Civil War.

An interesting incident concerning the store, related today by Uriah Jones, was the formation of Republican marching clubs at the Billy Evans store during the political campaign which resulted in the election of Rutherford B. Hays as president of the United States. One of the big celebrations following the election of Mr. Hayes, according to Mr. Jones, was held at the Evans store.

Following the death of Mr. Evans, who came here as a young man from Mt. Savage, the property was sold to Adam Brown, who recently retired. It is reported that Mr. Byrnes is planning the erection of an apartment house on the site.

Mechanical Defect, Not the Driver, Made Car Weave, Keyser Jury Rules

KEYSER, W. Va., Aug. 7—Alvin Moore, 41, Keyser, was acquitted on a charge of drunken driving by a six-man jury in Police court here this morning.

Moore was arrested about 2 a. m. on Main street Sunday as he was on his way home from a party, he testified.

Police charged his automobile "weaved" as he drove it along Main street. Witnesses who had been at the party with Moore at an Allegheny street home testified that he was sober when he drove off, shortly before he was arrested. A mechanic told the jury the car steered irregularly due to a mechanical defect.

Moore was defended by Attorney H. G. Shores, and City Attorney E. A. See prosecuted the case before Judge A. A. Jordan.

Officers who made the arrest were City Police Chief James E. Leatherman and Constables L. O. Kesner and William Adams.

In his address to the jury, Shores charged that North Main street, at the near end of the Keyser-McCoole bridge, is used as a "police trap." The defense attorney said that, although the case was not just then concerned with traffic ambushes, he was "glad to be able to stand here and expose it publicly. It is malicious and a disgrace and should be broken up immediately."

Circuit Judge Reverses Unemployment Board

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 7. (AP)—Circuit Judge Julian F. Bouchelle reversing the Unemployment Compensation Board of Review, ruled today that in payments of partial jobless benefits there may be no deductions because of the necessary "waiting period" before payments begin.

The ruling affected sixty-seven employes of the New Martinsville Glass Company at New Martinsville. The men were totally unemployed during part of 1939 and in another quarter were partially unemployed.

The department paid benefits for total unemployment and for partial unemployment but in the latter instance deducted from the amounts payable the number of weekly payments which were credited on the waiting period. That period is two weeks.

Circuit Judge Reverses Unemployment Board

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 7. (AP) —Circuit Judge Jullian F. Bouchelle reversing the Unemployment Compensation Board of Review, ruled today that in payments of partial jobless benefits there may be no deductions because of the necessary "waiting period" before payments begin.

The ruling affected sixty-seven employes of the New Martinsville Glass Company at New Martinsville. The men were totally unemployed during part of 1939 and in another quarter were partially unemployed.

The department paid benefits for total unemployment and for partial unemployment but in the latter instance deducted from the amounts payable the number of weekly payments which were credited on the waiting period. That period is two weeks.

Town Hall Drama Group To Accept 20 New Members

Players Extend Offer to Anyone Interested in Theater

The Town Hall Players voted last night to accept twenty new members into the organization, before starting the 1940-41 season. During past years, the membership has been held in the neighborhood of thirty-five active members, but it was agreed that an invitation should be extended to persons interested in dramatics or the theater, to become affiliated with the group.

To Contact Non-members

During the discussion, it was mentioned there are new residents in the city who may be interested if given an invitation, and there are also a number of young people who played major parts in local scholastic productions in recent years, who might also wish to continue their activity.

Members agreed to contact as many of these people as possible, and extend invitations.

William Kight, president, expressed the hope that persons who might be interested, and may not be contacted personally, will notify any member of the organization. It is not necessary to be an actor to be a member of the Town Hall Players, he explained. There are many jobs behind the scene that require all kinds of talent and ability in other fields, such as business management, promotion, advertising, stage and set designing and building, lighting and kindred tasks.

A reception for new members will be held Friday August 23, in The Barn. Robert Rosamond, Virginia Heffer, F. Allan Weatherholt and William Kight compose the committee on arrangements.

Chairmen Are Named

Robert Rosamond was appointed chairman in charge of properties. He is to be assisted by a committee of his selection.

Louise Youngblood was appointed chairman of the 1940-41 play reading committee, with instructions to submit to the group, a list of at least ten plays from which five can be selected for the season.

F. Allan Weatherholt was named chairman of ticket sales, with instructions to form his committee and organize the 1940-41 subscription campaign.

The Town Hall Players will make their first radio presentation tonight at 7 o'clock, when they present the first of a series of one-act plays.

it, Carscaden said, "Well, what got you most was the power of the thing. They are equipped with Diesel engines in the rear end. The noinse is deafening and a person has to wear a special helmet.

"They ride fairly smooth, or at least it seemed to me they did considering the terrain we bumped over. There's nothing but armor plate in the front. The tank I rode in was compact but there was plenty of room inside. There was a driver, an assistant driver who fires a fifty caliber machine gun the commander who fires another 50-caliber machine gun and a radio operator who fires a 30-caliber machine gun.

"Anybody who sees one of those things in action or rides in one can't help but feel its terrific power, what its potentialities would be in time of war," Carscaden declared.

Visit Army Centers

While the recruits were given plenty of muscle-hardening work, drilling and thoroughly acquainted with the function of the modern so-called "streamlined" army, part of the course consisted of trips to army centers in the area adjacent to Fort Meade.

On a number of occasions the men were loaded into brand new multiple drive trucks (everything used by the men was new including their shoes) and taken sightseeing.

One trip was made to the Aberdeen Proving Grounds where all weapons used by the U. S. Army are tested. The superiority of the new M-1 rifle over the old Springfields was clearly shown when the M-1 outshot the Springfield 2-1, Carscaden said. The deadly accuracy of the Browning automatics were also shown, he said.

Camp, Holabird, Baltimore, the testing grounds for the army's motor transports was also visited. A powerful eight-ton truck hauling a heavy 155 milimeter gun ploughed through mud forty-two inches deep without any trouble at all, Carscaden said.

The Coast Artillery guns at Fortress Monroe were unlimbered for the benefit of the trainees and the latest type bombers and pursuit ships were given a workout at Langley Field in another exhibition.

At Fort Belvoir, Va., the men saw the army engineers build seventy-five foot pontoon bridge in thirty minutes after which an eight or nine ton truck passed over it.

Inspect Tank Guns

The men were also given the opportunity to inspect the new 37 milimeter anti-tank gun, of which this country only has eight compared to Germany's thousands.

"The general unpreparedness of the army was pretty clearly brought out," Carscaden said in summing up his experiences. "For example, the coast artillery at Fort Monroe have fourteen inch guns developed in 1895. All the new battleships have sixteen inch guns. In other words, a battleship could blast away at the fortress and stay out of range of the coast defense guns. Another thing we noticed was the fact that the artillery had absolutely no anti-aircraft protection. And Fortress Monroe is a strategic point. Its the guardian of Chesapeake Bay."

Continuing his summary of observations, Carscaden commented, "our captain told us that the sights on our machine guns are exactly the same as the one Daniel Boone had on his trusty flintlock."

While the men who took the course learned much regarding army life and army work, Carscaden said he imagined the chief value of the course was acquainting a large group of representative Americans with the needs of the army and the necessity of building an adequate defense.

The 237 men who went through the course would all go back to their respective communities, in other words, and spread the word to their associates during lunch periods, on the golf course and at their clubs.

Officers Place Melvin Heilman In County Jail

Frostburg Man Will Be Given Hearing for Parole Violation

Charged with violating his parole, Melvin Heilman, 38, of Frostburg, yesterday was returned from McKeesport, Pa., by county officers and lodged in the county jail to await a hearing.

Heilman was convicted of assaulting Glenwood Kennell, also of Frostburg, at the January term of circuit court and sentence was suspended on condition that Heilman pay the hospital and doctor bills as well as $150 to Kennell, who was confined to Miners hospital following an operation, and was unable to work for some time.

Heilman, the father of four children, was arrested on the night of December 22, 1939, charged with stabbing Kennell on the left side below the heart following an argument in Frostburg. Heilman had accused Kennell of making uncomplimentary remarks about him and the stabbing affray followed in an alley in the western section of the city.

The state's attorney ordered Heilman's arrest after the latter had deserted his family and left for McKeesport. He was apprehended and returned to Cumberland yesterday by Deputies David Steele and John Patton of the sheriff's office.

Rainstorm Sends Temperature Down

The temperature took a nine-point drop below the 97 maximum of the previous day as a result of yesterday morning's torrential rain of 1.18 inches which flooded Cumberland streets and washed down much earth off the hillsides.

At city hall the thermometer showed a maximum of 88 and the day's low was 63.

The early morning rain that started at 2:30 o'clock, flooded many cellars when storm sewers became overtaxed and the engineer's office at the city hall was swamped with complaints from residents.

Greene street subway was flooded and Henderson avenue at Frederick street the water was curb deep. Several washouts were reported on Bedford road.

Dr. Bennett, who visits Cumberland three times each year, will conduct his final clinic of 1940 in October.

New York Fans Honor Ott but Dodgers Win

NEW YORK, Aug. 7. (AP)—Gotham gave a "night of nights" for master Mel Ott tonight, 53,997 fans packing the Polo Grounds to honor the one-time boy wonder, but they couldn't give the Giants a victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers, who bombarded two pitchers with 14 hits and triumphed 8 to 4.

The crowd was the largest night turnout in National League history and second only to a 55,305 throng at Cleveland last year in baseball annals. The Giants gave their rooters something to yell for by taking an early lead behind the masterful hurling of old Carl Hubbell, Ott's room-mate on the road, but the meanies from across the river belted out five runs in the seventh inning and spoiled the show.

It was the sixth success in six games for the Dodgers in their rivals' stronghold this season and came on the heels of their victory over New York in Brooklyn Monday night. It was credited to corpulent Freddie Fitzsimmons, a former Giant who is the National League's leading pitcher with 11 wins and two losses.

Fitz was nicked for the first three New York runs, two of them coming in the second stanza on Joe Moore's triple and another in the fifth on three successive singles. But when he was removed for a pinch-hitter in the seventh, his teammates put on a rally that sewed up the score in his favor.

Dixie Walker led the Brooklyn Bombers with four hits, including a homer and a triple. His four-master came in the fifth for Brooklyn's first score and his triple came with two on to start the Dodgers' scoring in the seventh.

After a conference on the mound, Hubbell was allowed to stay in—just long enough to serve another triple to Dolph Camilli. Then Hal Schumacher shouldered the burden and gave up two more singles for two more runs in that inning, and one tally in each of the following frames.

The Giants scored their final run on two singles off lefty Vito Tamulis in the ninth.

Bees Beat Phils

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7. (AP)—Two home runs gave the Boston Bees a 6 to 3 victory over the Phillies tonight. Rookie Carvel Rowell and Eddie Miller hit for the circuit, each with a man on base to play the most important part in the Phillies' seventh straight loss.

Rowell's long fly over the right field wall came in the first inning after Johnny Conney had singled. In the fourth, Eddie Miller blasted one of Ike Pearson's fast ones on top the left field stands to score Chet Ross ahead of him.

Boston added additional tallies in the eighth and ninth while holding down belated Phillie rallies.

The Phils filled the sacks in the eighth but left the men stranded. In the ninth, Herman Schulte led off with a triple and came home on Joe Marty's three-bagger. Marty scored on Rizzo's infield out and Bill Posedel retired the next two men.

Posedel allowed the Phils 10 hits but kept them fairly well scattered. Meantime, Doc Prothro, used four hurlers.

It was the Bees' third consecutive victory over Philadelphia and their seventh victory in the last nine games.

Keyser Negro, Facing the Gallows, Turns to Bible and Clemency Hope

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP) — Penitentiary officials prepared tonight to remove Paul Tross from murderers' row to the deathhouse while the negro, silent on his crime of criminal assault, turned to a Bible for comfort.

Warden Leo Callison had reported that unless Governor Holt intervenes, Tross will be transferred to the section of the prison where on Monday he will be hanged for an attack on a Mineral county teacher.

Tross, cradling a Bible on his knees, refused all comment on the charge under which he was sentenced at Keyser.

Governor Holt's office at Charleston said Holt, now at White Sulphur Springs, would go to Huntington Friday and that any papers in the Tross case would be delivered to him there.

The ex-chauffeur expressed hope the governor would intervene, but declared he had heard only that his family and lawyer had filed a petition for clemency.

Held for Manslaughter

CHATTAROY, W. Va., Aug. 7. (AP)—Alfred Farley, 18, waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury today on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Clyde Bowen, 18, who was killed at Borderland Friday by a truck which failed to stop. Farley pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated and was fined $100 by Magistrate Alex Ritchie and sentenced to six months in jail.

Baseball Banter

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—Baseball people have temporarily quit talking pennant to try to fathom the tragedy of Bill Hershberger. . . . He was the friendliest player we ever knew and a few nights ago when we rode downtown on the subway with him he was cheerful and clowning. . . . Maybe the Reds can win this flag "For Hershey." . . . Peewee Reese, Brooklyn's kid shortstop, had one string of 32 games in which he never failed to get on base. . . . When Jim Bloodworth made his major league start as a first baseman for Washington last week he borrowed Hal Trosky's big mitt—and liked it so well he coaxed Hal into letting him keep it.

Jeff Heath of the Indians, who got off at a fast clip this year, now is hitting around .220 . . . There seems to be an unusual amount of bunting, or trying to, with two out or with two strikes on the batter. . . . One way you can tell National League pitchers don't like to face Elbie Fletcher of the Pirates is that he had had more than 70 bases on balls. . . . Both times Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers has been ejected from ball games this year have been by Umpire Ziggy Sears. . . . Cincinnati now will have to depend a lot on the catching of Bill Baker, who was obtained last fall from Indianapolis and didn't start a game until July 28.

The best way you can tell this year's Yankee team isn't the same old championship club is not through hitting or pitching figures, but through the foolish things the boys do in the field. . . . Like forgetting how many outs have been made in an inning or throwing to wrong bases. . . . Joe Cronin is saying Jimmie Foxx right now is the best catcher in the American League. . . . Anyway, he's the best all-around player. . . . Wheeler Trial Climax Of 'Vicious Campaign,' Says Earl Browder

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—Earl Browder, Communist presidential candidate, said today that the sentencing to prison of a Communist gubernatorial candidate in West Virginia climaxed a "vicious campaign" against the Communist party "ordered from circles close to the White House."

The candidate, Oscar O. Wheeler, was sentenced in Beckley, W. Va., last night to six to fifteen years after being convicted of fraudulently soliciting names to a nominating petition seeking to place Communist candidates on the state's November ballot.

"It has come to my knowledge," Browder said in a statement, "that this campaign was ordered from circles close to the White House, and that it was based upon advice of Democratic machine leaders that in several states the Democratic ticket is in danger of losing the elections without the support of the Communists. . . .

". . . It was therefore necessary to keep the Communist party off the ballot," Browder said, "because it is determined to run its own tickets and give no support to Roosevelt or the Democratic party, any more than to Willkie or the Republicans."

Harlow Is on Faculty Of W. Va. U. Grid School

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP)—West Virginia's high school coaches learned today from Richard C. (Dick) Harlow, who has been in the coaching business since 1912, of the simplicity of deceptive attack in football.

The Harvard chief pilot, who in his time also has coached at Penn State, Colgate, and Western Maryland, appeared on the "faculty" list of the university's coaching school for the third straight year.

Later he demonstrated some ground gaining plays, using members of the university football squad, with the assistance of a Harvard aide and Coach Al McCoy of Colby (Maine) college.

Dick Harlow, Grid Coach And Fern Fancier

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP)—Dick Harlow, here from his Harvard football field to tell state coaches how the game is played, let it be known today that he is a fancier of ferns.

Seriously so, said Harlow, and explained that it came about somewhat as a necessity.

The coach, known for years as an ornithologist, said that he had been ill more than once in recent years. He "decided to get outdoors as much as possible" and "took up ferns because there really aren't many birds out in summer."

Harlow, a coach since 1912, indicated he might do something about the hobby while he is down here—since the state university has Dr. Maurice Brooks, a well-known authority on ferns.

Negro Fight Fans Urge Dempsey-Wills Match

Negro fistic fans are beginning to talk about a heavyweight fight between Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight king, and Harry Wills, the former Brown Panther of the ring, whom Dempsey side-stepped for ten years while the Manassa Mauler was wearing the heavyweight title.

There seems to be a feeling on the part of Negro fight fans that a Dempsey-Wills battle would really draw a crowd, writes John G. Case in "The Watertown Times," and that it would give both fighters as well as the promoter of such a battle a chance to make a little money.

Ninth Inning Rally Saves Yanks after They Drop First to Boston

BOSTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—It took a three-run rally in the ninth inning of the second game of today's doubleheader with Boston to pull the world champion New York Yankees out of a five-game losing streak, but they made it.

Tom Henrich tripled with two on and then scored on Joe DiMaggio's single for a 6 to 3 victory after dropping the first game 10 to 7.

Lefty Marium Russo went the route for New York in the nightcap, scattering eight hits. All the runs scored against him came on home runs by Jim Tabor and Manager Joe Cronin, who also had one in the first game.

The Red Sox turned loose a 16-hit assault on four pitchers in winning the opener and again were helped by Yankee misplays, two of their runs being unearned.

Waive Freshman Rules If Conscription Bill Is Passed, Coach Proposes

VILLANOVA, Pa., Aug. 7. (AP)—Maurice J. (Clipper) Smith, former Notre Dame star whose Villanova football college teams have lost only four games in his four years here, proposed today that freshmen eligibility rules be waived this fall if the military conscription bill becomes law.

"Some of the leading coaches," he said, "already are discussing how to offset losses in manpower which enactment of the Burke-Wadsworth bill might bring.

"Clipper" offered as a solution lifting the ban on freshmen in varsity football "until this emergency has passed."

"It is fairly certain that young men between the ages of 21 and 31 will be subject to call," the Villanova mentor said after a study of pending draft legislation. "In our case, this means that 27 men of our squad of 44 will be eligible for military training.

"In nearly every college the draft law will affect the seniors and some of the juniors. The upper classmen are the experienced players and the backbone of any football team. If they are called up, it is obvious that a great number of the colleges will be minus some stellar performers this season."

"Clipper" declared waiving of the freshman rule should not "

Town Hall Drama Group To Accept 20 New Members

Players Extend Offer to Anyone Interested in Theater

The Town Hall Players voted last night to accept twenty new members into the organization, before starting the 1940-41 season. During past years, the membership has been held in the neighborhood of thirty-five active members, but it was agreed that an invitation should be extended to persons interested in dramatics or the theater, to become affiliated with the group.

To Contact Non-members

During the discussion, it was mentioned there are new residents in the city who may be interested if given an invitation, and there are also a number of young people who played major parts in local scholastic productions in recent years, who might also wish to continue their activity.

Members agreed to contact as many of these people as possible, and extend invitations.

William Kight, president, expressed the hope that persons who might be interested, and may not be contacted personally, will notify any member of the organization. It is not necessary to be an actor to be a member of the Town Hall Players, he explained. There are many jobs behind the scene that require all kinds of talent and ability in other fields, such as business management, promotion, advertising, stage and set designing and building, lighting and kindred tasks.

A reception for new members will be held Friday August 23, in The Barn. Robert Rosamond, Virginia Keffer, F. Allan Weatherholt and William Kight compose the committee on arrangements.

Chairmen Are Named

Robert Rosamond was appointed chairman in charge of properties. He is to be assisted by a committee of his selection.

Louise Youngblood was appointed chairman of the 1940-41 play reading committee, with instructions to submit to the group, a list of at least ten plays from which five can be selected for the season.

F. Allan Weatherholt was named chairman of ticket sales, with instructions to form his committee and organize the 1940-41 subscription campaign.

The Town Hall Players will make their first radio presentation tonight at 7 o'clock, when they present the first of a series of one-act plays.

Before the contest, the captain of the Giants was presented with a 108 piece set of silver by radio announcer Paul Douglas, representing a committee of fans who sponsored the occasion.

it, Carscaden said, "Well, what got you most was the power of the thing. They are equipped with Diesel engines in the rear end. The noinse is deafening and a person has to wear a special helmet.

"They ride fairly smooth, or at least it seemed to me they did considering the terrain we bumped over. There's nothing but armor plate in the front. The tank I rode in was compact but there was plenty of room inside. There was a driver, an assistant driver who fires a fifty caliber machine gun the commander who fires another 50-caliber machine gun and a radio operator who fires a 30-caliber machine gun.

"Anybody who sees one of those things in action or rides in one can't help but feel its terrific power, what its potentialities would be in time of war," Carscaden declared.

Visit Army Centers

While the recruits were given plenty of muscle-hardening work, drilling and thoroughly acquainted with the function of the modern so-called "streamlined" army, part of the course consisted of trips to army centers in the area adjacent to Fort Meade.

On a number of occasions the men were loaded into brand new multiple drive trucks (everything used by the men was new including their shoes) and taken sightseeing.

One trip was made to the Aberdeen Proving Grounds where all weapons used by the U. S. Army are tested. The superiority of the new M-1 rifle over the old Springfields was clearly shown when the M-1 outshot the Springfield 2-1, Carscaden said. The deadly accuracy of the Browning automatics were also shown, he said.

Camp, Holabird, Baltimore, the testing grounds for the army's motor transports was also visited. A powerful eight-ton truck hauling a heavy 155 milimeter gun ploughed through mud forty-two inches deep without any trouble at all, Carscaden said.

The Coast Artillery guns at Fortress Monroe were unlimbered for the benefit of the trainees and the latest type bombers and pursuit ships were given a workout at Langley Field in another exhibition.

At Fort Belvoir, Va., the men saw the army engineers build seventy-five foot pontoon bridge in thirty minutes after which an eight or ine ton truck passed over it.

Inspect Tank Guns

The men were also given the opportunity to inspect the new 37 milimeter anti-tank gun, of which this country only has eight compared to Germany's thousands.

"The general unpreparedness of the army was pretty clearly brought out," Carscaden said in summing up his experiences. "For example, the coast artillery at Fort Monroe have fourteen inch guns developed in 1895. All the new battleships have sixteen inch guns. In other words, a battleship could blast away at the fortress and stay out of range of the coast defense guns. Another thing we noticed was the fact that the artillery had absolutely no anti-aircraft protection. And Fortress Monroe is a strategic point. Its the guardian of Chesapeake Bay."

Continuing his summary of observations, Carscaden commented, "our captain told us that the sights on our machine guns are exactly the same as the one Daniel Boone had on his trusty flintlock."

While the men who took the course learned much regarding army life and army work, Carscaden said he imagined the chief value of the course was acquainting a large group of representative Americans with the needs of the army and the necessity of building an adequate defense.

The 237 men who went through the course would all go back to their respective communities, in other words, and spread the word to their associates during lunch periods, on the golf course and at their clubs.

Officers Place Melvin Heilman In County Jail

Frostburg Man Will Be Given Hearing for Parole Violation

Charged with violating his parole, Melvin Heilman, 38, of Frostburg, yesterday was returned from McKeesport, Pa., by county officers and lodged in the county jail to await a hearing.

Heilman was convicted of assaulting Glenwood Kennell, also of Frostburg, at the January term of circuit court and sentence was suspended on condition that Heilman pay the hospital and doctor bills as well as $150 to Kennell, who was confined to Miners hospital following an operation, and was unable to work for some time.

Heilman, the father of four children, was arrested on the night of December 22, 1939, charged with stabbing Kennell on the left side below the heart following an argument in Frostburg. Heilman had accused Kennell of making uncomplimentary remarks about him and the stabbing affray followed in an alley in the western section of the city.

The state's attorney ordered Heilman's arrest after the latter had deserted his family and left for McKeesport. He was apprehended and returned to Cumberland yesterday by Deputies David Steele and John Patton of the sheriff's office.

Rainstorm Sends Temperature Down

The temperature took a nine-point drop below the 97 maximum of the previous day as a result of yesterday morning's torrential rain of 1.18 inches which flooded Cumberland streets and washed down much earth off the hillsides.

At city hall the thermometer showed a maximum of 88 and the day's low was 63.

The early morning rain that started at 2:30 o'clock, flooded many cellars when storm sewers became overtaxed and the engineer's office at the city hall was swamped with complaints from residents.

Greene street subway was flooded and Henderson avenue at Frederick street the water was curb deep. Several washouts were reported on Bedford road.

Dr. Bennett, who visits Cumberland three times each year, will conduct his final clinic of 1940 in October.

New York Fans Honor Ott but Dodgers Win

NEW YORK, Aug. 7. (AP)—Gotham gave a "night of nights" for master Mel Ott tonight, 53,997 fans packing the Polo Grounds to honor the one-time boy wonder, but they couldn't give the Giants a victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers, who bombarded two pitchers with 14 hits and triumphed 8 to 4.

The crowd was the largest night turnout in National League history and second only to a 55,305 throng at Cleveland last year in baseball annals. The Giants gave their rooters something to yell for by taking an early lead behind the masterful hurling of old Carl Hubbell, Ott's room-mate on the road, but the meanies from across the river belted out five runs in the seventh inning and spoiled the show.

It was the sixth success in six games for the Dodgers in their rivals' stronghold this season and came on the heels of their victory over New York in Brooklyn Monday night. It was credited to corpulent Freddie Fitzsimmons, a former Giant who is the National League's leading pitcher with 11 wins and two losses.

Fitz was nicked for the first three New York runs, two of them coming in the second stanza on Joe Moore's triple and another in the fifth on three successive singles. But when he was removed for a pinch-hitter in the seventh, his teammates put on a rally that sewed up the score in his favor.

Dixie Walker led the Brooklyn Bombers with four hits, including a homer and a triple. His four-master came in the fifth for Brooklyn's first score and his triple came with two on to start the Dodgers' scoring in the seventh.

After a conference on the mound, Hubbell was allowed to stay in—just long enough to serve another triple to Dolph Camilli. Then Hal Schumacher shouldered the burden and gave up two more singles for two more runs in that inning, and one tally in each of the following frames.

The Giants scored their final run on two singles off lefty Vito Tamulis in the ninth.

Bees Beat Phils

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7. (AP)—Two home runs gave the Boston Bees a 6 to 3 victory over the Phillies tonight. Rookie Carvel Rowell and Eddie Miller hit for the circuit, each with a man on base to play the most important part in the Phillies' seventh straight loss.

Rowell's long fly over the right field wall came in the first inning after Johnny Conney had singled. In the fourth, Eddie Miller blasted one of Ike Pearson's fast ones on top the left field stands to score Chet Ross ahead of him.

Boston added additional tallies in the eighth and ninth while holding down belated Phillie rallies.

The Phils filled the sacks in the eighth but left the men stranded. In the ninth, Herman Schulte led off with a triple and came home on Joe Marty's three-bagger. Marty scored on Rizzo's infield out and Bill Posedel retired the next two men.

Posedel allowed the Phils 10 hits but kept them fairly well scattered. Meantime, Doc Prothro, used four hurlers.

It was the Bees' third consecutive victory over Philadelphia and their seventh victory in the last nine games.

Keyser Negro, Facing the Gallows, Turns to Bible and Clemency Hope

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP) — Penitentiary officials prepared tonight to remove Paul Tross from murderers' row to the death-house while the negro, silent on his crime of criminal assault, turned to a Bible for comfort.

Warden Leo Callison had reported that unless Governor Holt intervenes, Tross will be transferred to the section of the prison where on Monday he will be hanged for an attack on a Mineral county teacher.

Tross, cradling a Bible on his knees, refused all comment on the charge under which he was sentenced at Keyser.

Governor Holt's office at Charleston said Holt, now at White Sulphur Springs, would go to Huntington Friday and that any papers in the Tross case would be delivered to him there.

The ex-chauffeur expressed hope the governor would intervene, but declared he had heard only that his family and lawyer had filed a petition for clemency.

Held for Manslaughter

CHATTAROY, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP) —Alfred Farley, 18, waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury today on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Clyde Bowen, 18, who was killed at Borderland Friday by a truck which failed to stop. Farley pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated and was fined $100 by Magistrate Alex Ritchie and sentenced to six months in jail.

Baseball Banter

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—Baseball people have temporarily quit talking pennant to try to fathom the tragedy of Bill Hershberger. . . . He was the friendliest player we ever knew and a few nights ago when we rode downtown on the subway with him he was cheerful and clowning. . . . Maybe the Reds can win this flag "For Hershey." . . . Peewee Reese, Brooklyn's kid shortstop, had one string of 32 games in which he never failed to get on base. . . . When Jim Bloodworth made his major league start as a first baseman for Washington last week he borrowed Hal Trosky's big mitt—and liked it so well he coaxed Hal into letting him keep it.

Jeff Heath of the Indians, who got off at a fast clip this year, now is hitting around .220. . . . There seems to be an unusual amount of bunting, or trying to, with two out or with two strikes on the batter . . . One way you can tell National League pitchers don't like to face Elbie Fletcher of the Pirates is that he had had more than 70 bases on balls. . . . Both times Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers has been ejected from ball games this year have been by Umpire Ziggy Sears. . . . Cincinnati now will have to depend a lot on the catching of Bill Baker, who was obtained last fall from Indianapolis and didn't start a game until July 28.

—o—

The best way you can tell this year's Yankee team isn't the same old championship club is not through hitting or pitching figures, but through the foolish things the boys do in the field. . . . Like forgetting how many outs have been made in an inning or throwing to wrong bases. . . . Joe Cronin is saying Jimmie Foxx right now is the best catcher in the American League. . . . Anyway, he's the best all-around player. . . . Johnny Mize of the St. Louis Cardinals never hit more than 22 home runs in any of his seven years in the minors, and his average was 12, but in the majors he never has hit less than 19 and has been over 25 four times, including this year. . . . Bucky Harris wants to trade pitcher Joe Krakauskas to the Browns for outfielder Chet Laabs if the waivers can be put through.

La Salle Jupers Trim Greene St. Tigers 13-4

The LaSalle Jupers defeated the Green St. Tigers 13-4 yesterday at the Community Ball Park by the score of 13-4.

"Ace" Baker hung up his eighth victory of the season by allowing five hits in going the route. "Vic" Malloy and John Morrissey were the batting stars for the Jupers while J. Brown was outstanding for the Tigers. Friday the Jupers will engage Ridgeley at the Community Ball Park.

Blaine McKenzie with four hits in five trips and Bradley's pitching featured the Silks' win over the Miners. Bradley struck out 14 batsmen.

Wheeler Trial Climax Of 'Vicious Campaign,' Says Earl Browder

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—Earl Browder, Communist presidential candidate, said today that the sentencing to prison of a Communist gubernatorial candidate in West Virginia climaxed a "vicious campaign" against the Communist party "ordered from circles close to the White House."

The candidate, Oscar O. Wheeler, was sentenced in Beckley, W. Va., last night to six to fifteen years after being convicted of fraudulently soliciting names to a nominating petition seeking to place Communist candidates on the state's November ballot.

"It has come to my knowledge," Browder said in a statement, "that this campaign was ordered from circles close to the White House, and that it was based upon advice of Democratic machine leaders that in several states the Democratic ticket is in danger of losing the elections without the support of the Communists. . . .

". . . It was therefore necessary to keep the Communist party off the ballot," Browder said, "because it is determined to run its own tickets and give no support to Roosevelt or the Democratic party, any more than to Willkie or the Republicans."

Clark Polk, Jr., Looking 'Em Over at Fairgo for Business Reasons

Clark Polk, Jr., Baltimore and Atlantic City sportsman, is looking 'em over at Fairgo for a few days. He is getting together a stable to race at Timonium and Marlboro and is hopeful of acquiring a string of promising ossies during the local meet.

Mr. Polk is accompanied by Thomas E. Pepper and Joe Rowan, the latter well known among every turfite who is familiar with the better known jockeys in the realm of turfdom. Rowan will do the top flight riding for Polk at Timonium and Marlboro.

Harlow Is on Faculty Of W. Va. U. Grid School

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP)—West Virginia's high school coaches learned today from Richard C. (Dick) Harlow, who has been in the coaching business since 1912, of the simplicity of deceptive attack in football.

The Harvard chief pilot, who in his time also has coached at Penn State, Colgate, and Western Maryland, appeared on the "faculty" list of the university's coaching school for the third straight year.

Later he demonstrated some ground gaining plays, using members of the university football squad with the assistance of a Harvard aide and Coach Al McCoy of Colby (Maine) college.

Dick Harlow, Grid Coach And Fern Fancier

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP)—Dick Harlow, here from his Harvard football field to tell state coaches how the game is played, let it be known today that he is a fancier of ferns.

Seriously so, said Harlow, and explained that it came about somewhat as a necessity.

The coach, known for years as an ornithologist, said that he had been ill more than once in recent years. He "decided to get outdoors as much as possible" and "took up ferns because there really aren't many birds out in summer."

Harlow, a coach since 1912, indicated he might do something about the hobby while he is down here—since the state university has Dr. Maurice Brooks, a well-known authority on ferns.

Negro Fight Fans Urge Dempsey-Wills Match

Negro fistic fans are beginning to talk about a heavyweight fight between Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight king, and Harry Wills, the former Brown Panther of the ring, whom Dempsey side-stepped for ten years while the Manassa Mauler was wearing the heavyweight title.

There seems to be a feeling on the part of Negro fight fans that a Dempsey-Wills battle would really draw a crowd, writes John G. Case in "The Watertown Times," and that it would give both fighters as well as the promoter of such a battle a chance to make a little money.

Ninth Inning Rally Saves Yanks after They Drop First to Boston

BOSTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—It took a three-run rally in the ninth inning of the second game of today's doubleheader with Boston to pull the world champion New York Yankees out of a five-game losing streak, but they made it.

Tom Henrich tripled with two on and then scored on Joe DiMaggio's single for a 6 to 3 victory after dropping the first game 10 to 7.

Lefty Marium Russo went the route for New York in the nightcap, scattering eight hits. All the runs scored against him came on home runs by Jim Tabor and Manager Joe Cronin, who also had one in the first game.

The Red Sox turned loose a 16-hit assault on four pitchers in winning the opener and again were helped by Yankee misplays, two of their runs being unearned.

Waive Freshman Rules If Conscription Bill Is Passed, Coach Proposes

VILLANOVA, Pa., Aug. 7 (AP)—Maurice J. (Clipper) Smith, former Notre Dame star whose Villanova football college teams have lost only four games in his four years here, proposed today that freshmen eligibility rules be waived this fall if the military conscription bill becomes law.

"Some of the leading coaches," he said, "already are discussing how to offset losses in manpower which enactment of the Burke-Wadsworth bill might bring.

"Clipper" offered as a solution lifting the ban on freshmen in varsity football "until this emergency has passed."

"It is fairly certain that young men between the ages of 21 and 31 will be subject to call," the Villanova mentor said after a study of pending draft legislation. "In our case, this means that 27 men of our squad of 44 will be eligible for military training.

"In nearly every college the draft law will affect the seniors and some of the juniors. The upper classmen are the experienced players and the backbone of any football team. If they are called up, it is obvious that a great number of the colleges will be minus some stellar performers this season."

"Clipper" declared waiving of the freshman rule should not "create a precedent for the general letdown of other rules."

Fair Fields on Fairgo Race Card Today

Some First Card Contenders Again To Bid for Honors

Irish Moon Will Seek To Repeat in Feature Dash Event

Channing, Huppy and Other Local Favorites on Program

Prices were longer yesterday as the gee-gees got the feel of the Fairgo oval and today should see some better bets for the bettors though little more can be asked of the race cards as presented on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Another eight race card is on tap today with the jump and seven flat events, four sprints and three route affairs, with two of the latter at a mile and a quarter.

The Monarch Handicap, fifth race on the program, and the Oscar Gurley Garage purse share the feature spots on today's program with the F. Brooke Whiting Steeplechase, third event on the eight race card.

The Monarch for three year olds and up at six and one-half furlongs, sponsored by Paul Heuer of the Monarch Printing Co., brings back into action Irish Moon, winner of the opening day's feature. Walter Light which ran a nose second to Red Wrack in setting the track record at Bel Air is also eligible with Statement and Ken's Pop, which were second and third to Irish Moon, also in the first eight. Double Back another good sprinter is also capable with Buddy Al, Van Elder and Gay Prank completing the top flight.

Double Back, Irish Moon and Walter Light are the top selections.

The Gurley Garage Purse brings out eight routers for the mile and one-sixteenth sixth event. Channing, twice winner at Bel Air, with Chalotaur another two-time winner, should be close up. The eligibles are Congo Prince, Boulder Dam, Cherry's Child, Gimpey, Red Robin, and the locally popular Best Policy. Flagetta, recent long price winner, is first on the also eligible list with Elamp, Black Demon, Asterisk, Artist and Goodwine, which ran second Tuesday to Sky Hostess, complete the also eligible list.

Channing, Chalotaur and Cherry's Child are picked in the order named.

The Whiting Purse steeplechase has Suspect, Judges Bid, Edgemont, Gnomie, Walli, Sirford, Royal Cunning and Tennis on the eligible list with Quakerstreet and Spinach also eligible. Edgemont ran fourth in Monday's chase.

Judges Bid, Quakerstreet and Gnomie are the selectors choices.

Two Dashes for Double

The opening five furlong dash for two year olds brings out a field of youngsters in which only one has seen action here. Don Barr ran fourth in Monday's opening sprint and draws the rail position for today's event. The chestnut gelding trained by G. A. Cook, led to the stretch on Monday then passed out in the drive to the wire. He may have what it takes to hold on today. Gradatim, Distant Star, Telemoff, Twain, Quest D'Or, Erin's Girl and Miss Soot are the rest of the eligible field. The speedy Rippling On is second on the also eligible list behind Maeside, and each of these is capable of winning if they get in. Cloy Hill is coupled with Telemoff as the A. C. Randolph-E. Johnston entry while Elva, No. 14 on the list is coupled with Twain, No. 5, as the C. D. Jeffries-W. McFarland entry. Oddree and Bleak Heights complete the also eligible list.

Distant Star is picked to repeat a recent win at Bel Air with Quest D'Or second and Gradatim selected for show.

The old time favorite about Fairgo, Lady Buck, draws the rail in the second event on today's card, a six and one-half furlong sprint for three year olds and up. Anya, Dear Gracie, Grand Wind, Chaste, Snobbish Lady, Veritas and Wise Money complete the field of eight eligibles. Lady Doctor, Hurdy Gurdy, Stingaree, Seplin, Brazen Huzzy and Bank Note are also eligible.

Good Field in Fourth

The fourth race for three year olds and up at six and one-half furlongs has a well liked field of eight sprinters in Fair Haired, Barraca, Blenny, Riotous, Albert D., Seasonal, and Lady Solace and Royal Dot, the latter pair coupled as the D. Christmas-R. George entry. Miss Wing, Square Play, Spout Run, Cat's Cradle, Colored Child and Lena Girl are also eligible in the order named. Cat's Cradle will be remembered here for the long-shot hunch bet when she scored last season after a national magazine gave the cue to those who pick their ponies from the stars, moon and what-have-you.

Riotous in the fourth is picked as the "best bet" of today's card, with the Christmas-George entry of Royal Dot and Lady Solace to place and Seasonal third.

The seventh at one and one-quarter miles presents a field of routers most of them new to the local oval. Stop Light, Vitascope, Beau Bon, Cloyma Frank, Incendiary, Cartourm Chr and Doholey are the first eight, with Lady Peg, Real Money and Unlawful on the also eligible list. Most of these platers are known to Cumberland's horse-race followers but few have been seen in action here. Blox is selected to win this event with Cartour second and Beau Bon third.

Western Run, Rhythmical, Maid, Marbran, Cupid's Arrow, Tee Off, Happy and Pin Hooker complete the eligible field in the eighth and final at one and one-quarter miles with Caffeine, Carl's Choice and Sealoch also eligible.

Tee Off gets the call in over this field with Mahi favored to take the place with the old campaigner Huppy selected to wind up third. The long route may work in Huppy's favor today as in the past wear and he is capable of scoring another upset.

Gal Hosses Again Leading Winners On Fair Program

Take First Five of Eight Events on Second Day's Card

Qualm Pays $22.50 To Win Steeplechase for Best Price

The pack of "plugs" that Eddie Brennan has at Fairgo are pretty much a bunch of "sissies" if results of the first two days of racing can be taken as a criterion. After seven of the eight winners on Tuesday happened to be of the gentler sex, the winners of the first five events yesterday were also of the weaker gender, even a gal "goat" taking the steeplechase.

Frank H., winner of the sixth, broke the charm and was followed by America First in the seventh and Moon Harvest in the eighth, which makes the score 12 winning fillies and mares, and four winning geldings.

A crowd as large as the opening day turnout was on hand for yesterday's races and everybody and his brother seemed to be on the daily double of seven and seven, Glitter Girl and Westing, which returned $10.00.

Glitter Girl, from the stable of J. B. Royston, under a capable ride by Sammy Palumbo won handily to pay $5.00, $2.90 and $2.60. Veepee was second and Strolling In third. Glitter Girl was the first of two winners saddled yesterday by Trainer D. Chamblin who also sent Frank H. to the post in the sixth.

Westing walked away with the second paying $5.80, $3.30 and $2.70, with A. Vesselli in the pilot house. My Grand, held at about the same odds in the machines, was a good second with Kittiwake third.

Lady Owners Win

It was really a "ladies' day" affair in the steeplechase with Miss Judy Johnson saddling Qualm to take the event at the nice price of $22.50 to win, $10.50 to place and $7.00 to show. Star On was second and Flying Clown third.

Brafnchild confirmed the confidence of the fans to beat out Repeat in the five furlong fourth, jumping into a commanding lead at the start and breezing home in front by several lengths. Bud's Light was third.

Pirate Ship held her end for the lady hosses by taking the fifth and feature race, the City of Cumberland Purse, and there were those who said it was significant that a horse with such a name should win the big end of the money.

The Hard Tack filly, owned by Miss E. Biller of Washington, had the capable Jockey W. Kelley aboard and he made her sail all the way to beat out Schley Al which came from off the pace set by Pandoramint. Gold D'Or came up to take the show from Pandoramint which tired after making all the early pace. Pirate Ship paid $11.60, $6.40 and $5.20.

Bay Horses Win Three

The sixth, at one and one-sixteenth miles, went to Frank H. with W. Kelley again aboard for his second winner of the day. Maetake set the pace with Frank H. forcing the Transmute mare to the half and then going to the front. Maetake came again in the stretch but could not catch the leader which paid off at $10.40, $4.90 and $4.30. Yankee Lad in hand for the first half closed well in the center of the track and was going fastest of all at the finish. Worthowning, the favorite, in heavy footing on the rail for the mile, quit badly while the others were outrun.

America First gave the patriots something to cheer about in the seventh, the six-year-old Chicle gelding taking command from the start and opening a wide lead to win driving. Clymene chased the winner throughout and held off the late rush of Petee Lad, which trailed the field for the half and came with a rush at the end. J. Hernandez rode the latter after Sammy Palumbo, originally scheduled as the jockey, stepped down. No reason was announced for the change of jockeys. America First paid $15.10, $5.60 and $3.50.

Moon Harvest, another gelding took the eighth to make it three in a row for the boy horses. He was hustled hard from the gate and barely withstood the closing rush of Chilly Ebbie. Unlawful finished third after an even race all the way, while Pencader finished fast for fourth.

Draw Suspensions

It was announced yesterday that Jockey A. Vesselli was set down for three days for rough riding on Simmer in the eighth on Tuesday, and that Jockey W. McDonald drew a similar suspension for inefficient riding on Dressmaker in the sixth of the opening card.

Trainer A. Young drew a $25 fine for changing equipment on Butterman without the stewards' permission in the fifth race of the opening card.

Jockey Bocson who was injured Tuesday was able to resume riding yesterday.

One of the noticeable features of the steeplechase races to date has been that neither has been marred by any spills.

"THIS WON'T HURT MUCH!"

Dr. P. F. Finnigan must have chortled the usual dentist's soft-soap when he filed away at the teeth of Bobbie, pony with the stable of Mrs. C. E. Wilson of Hagerstown now at Fairgo. "Doc" Finnigan was born back in the 1860's and graduated from the Ontario Medical College in 1890. (We repeat that line about the doctor because, while he's still a broth of a boy in his ways, he didn't graduate in 1980 as the paper stated the other day.) Just why he turned from treating humans to nursing horses, the doctor doesn't say. However, he had Bobbie taking this tooth filing job on her jaw-teeth in a sort of a sociable way Sunday. Maybe horses have more patience.

Fair Fields on Fairgo Race Card Today

Some First Card Contenders Again To Bid for Honors

Irish Moon Will Seek To Repeat in Feature Dash Event

Channing, Huppy and Other Local Favorites on Program

Prices were longer yesterday as the gee-gees got the feel of the Fairgo oval and today should see some better bets for the bettors though little more can be asked of the race cards as presented on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Another eight race card is on tap today with the jump and seven flat events, four sprints and three route affairs, with two of the latter at a mile and a quarter.

The Monarch Handicap, fifth race on the program, and the Oscar Gurley Garage purse share the feature spots on today's program with the F. Brooke Whiting Steeplechase, third event on the eight race card.

The Monarch for three year olds and up at six and one-half furlongs, sponsored by Paul Heuer of the Monarch Printing Co., brings back into action Irish Moon, winner of the opening day's feature. Walter Light which ran a nose second to Red Wrack in setting the track record at Bel Air is also eligible with Statement and Ken's Pop which were second and third to Irish Moon, also in the first eight. Double Back another good sprinter is also capable with Buddy Al Van Elder and Gay Prank completing the top flight.

Double Back, Irish Moon and Walter Light are the top selections.

The Gurley Garage Purse brings out eight routers for the mile and one-sixteenth sixth event. Channing, twice winner at Bel Air, with Chalotaur another two-time winner should be close up. The eligibles are Congo Prince, Boulder Dam, Cherry's Child, Gimpey, Red Robin, and the locally popular Best Policy. Flagetta, recent long price winner, is first on the also eligible list with Klamp, Black Demon, Asterisk, Artist and Goodwine, which ran second Tuesday to Sky Hostess, complete the also eligible list.

Channing, Chalotaur and Cherry Child are picked in the order named.

The Whiting Purse steeplechase has Suspect, Judges Bid, Edgemont, Gnomie, Walli, Sirford, Royal Cunning and Tennis on the eligible list with Quakerstreet and Spinach also eligible. Edgemont ran fourth in Monday's chase.

Judges Bid, Quakerstreet and Gnomie are the selectors choices.

Two Dashes for Double

The opening five furlong dash for two year olds brings out a field of youngsters in which only one has seen action here. Don Barr ran fourth in Monday's opening sprint and draws the rail position for today's event. The chestnut gelding trained by G. A. Cook led to the stretch on Monday then passed out in the drive to the wire. He may have what it takes to hold on today. Gradatim, Distant Star, Telemoff, Twain, Quest D'Or, Erin's Girl and Miss Soot are the rest of the eligible field. The speedy Rippling On is second on the also eligible list behind Maeside, and each of these is capable of winning if they get in. Clay Hill is coupled with Telemoff as the A. C. Randolph-E. Johnston entry while Evva, No. 14 on the list is coupled with Twain, No. 5, as the C. D. Jeffries-W. McFarland entry. Oddree and Bleak Heights complete the also eligible list.

Distant Star is picked to repeat a recent win at Bel Air with Quest D'Or second and Gradatim selected for show.

The old time favorite about Fairgo, Lady Buck, draws the rail in the second event on today's card, a six and one-half furlong sprint for three year olds and up. Anya, Dear Gracie, Grand Wind, Chaste, Snobbish Lady, Veritas and Wise Money complete the field of eight eligibles. Lady Doctor, Hurdy Gurdy, Stingaree, Seplin, Brazen Huzzy and Bank Note are also eligible.

Lady Buck draws the selector's favor with Anya second and Snobbish Lady picked to show.

Good Field in Fourth

The fourth race for three year olds and up at six and one-half furlongs has a well liked field of eight sprinters in Fair Haired, Barraca, Blenny, Riotous, Albert D., Seasonal, and Lady Solace and Royal Dot, the latter pair coupled as the D. Christmas-R. George entry. Miss Wing, Square Play, Spout Run, Cat's Cradle, Colored Child and Le's Girl are also eligible in the order named. Cat's Cradle will be remembered here for the long-shot hunch bet when she scored last season after a national magazine gave the cue to those who pick their ponies from the stars, moon and what-have-you.

Riotous in the fourth is picked as the "best bet" of today's card, with the Christmas-George entry of Royal Dot and Lady Solace to place and Seasonal third.

The seventh at one and one-quarter miles presents a field of routers most of them new to the local oval. Stop Light, Vitascope, Beau Bon, Cadessa Frank, Incendiary, Cartourm, Blox and Dohoey are the first eight, with Lady Peg, Real Money and Unlawful on the also eligible list. Most of these platers are known to Cumberland's horse-race followers but few have been seen in action here. Blox is selected to win this event with Cartour second and Beau Bon third.

Western Run, Rhythmical, Maid, Marbran, Cupid's Arrow, Tee Off, Happy and Pin Hooker complete the eligible field in the eighth and final at one and one-quarter miles with Caffeine, Carl's Choice and Sealoch also eligible.

Tee Off gets the call in over this field with Mahi favored to take the place with the old campaigner Huppy selected to wind up third. The long route may work in Huppy's favor today as in the past wear and he is capable of scoring another upset.

Gal Hosses Again Leading Winners On Fair Program

Take First Five of Eight Events on Second Day's Card

Qualm Pays $22.50 To Win Steeplechase for Best Price

The pack of "plugs" that Eddie Brennan has at Fairgo are pretty much a bunch of "sissies" if results of the first two days of racing can be taken as a criterion. After seven of the eight winners on Tuesday happened to be of the gentler sex, the winners of the first five events yesterday were also of the weaker gender, even a gal "goat" taking the steeplechase.

Frank H., winner of the sixth, broke the charm and was followed by America First in the seventh and Moon Harvest in the eighth, which makes the score 12 winning fillies and mares, and four winning geldings.

A crowd as large as the opening day turnout was on hand for yesterday's races and everybody and his brother seemed to be on the daily double of seven and seven, Glitter Girl and Westing, which returned $10.00.

Glitter Girl, from the stable of J. B. Royston, under a capable ride by Sammy Palumbo won handily to pay $5.00, $2.90 and $2.60. Veepee was second and Strolling In third. Glitter Girl was the first of two winners saddled yesterday by Trainer D. Chamblin who also sent Frank H. to the post in the sixth.

Westing walked away with the second paying $5.80, $3.30 and $2.70, with A. Vesseli in the pilot house. My Grand, held at about the same odds in the machines, was a good second with Kittiwake third.

Lady Owners Win

It was really a "ladies' day" affair in the steeplechase with Miss Judy Johnson saddling Qualm to take the event at the nice price of $22.50 to win, $10.50 to place and $7.00 to show. Star On was second and Flying Clown third.

Brafnchild confirmed the confidence of the fans to beat out Repeat in the five furlong fourth, jumping into a commanding lead at the start and breezing home in front by several lengths. Bud's Light was third.

Pirate Ship held her end for the lady hosses by taking the fifth and feature race, the City of Cumberland Purse, and there were those who said it was significant that a horse with such a name should win the big end of the money.

The Hard Tack filly, owned by Miss E. Biller of Washington, had the capable Jockey W. Kelley aboard and he made her sail all the way to beat out Schley Al which came from off the pace set by Pandoramint. Gold D'Or came up to take the show from Pandoramint which tired after making all the early pace. Pirate Ship paid $11.60, $6.40 and $5.20.

Bay Horses Win Three

The sixth, at one and one-sixteenth miles, went to Frank H. with W. Kelley again aboard for his second winner of the day. Maetake set the pace with Frank H. forcing the Transmute mare to the half and then going to the front. Maetake came again in the stretch but could not catch the leader which paid off at $10.40, $4.90 and $4.30. Yankee Lad in hand for the first half closed well in the center of the track and was going fastest of all at the finish. Worthowning, the favorite, in heavy footing on the rail for the mile, quit badly while the others were outrun.

America First gave the patriots something to cheer about in the seventh, the six-year-old Chicle gelding taking command from the start and opening a wide lead to win driving. Clymene chased the winner throughout and held off the late rush of Petee Lad, which trailed the field for the half and came with a rush at the end. J. Hernandez rode the latter after Sammy Palumbo, originally scheduled as the jockey, stepped down. No reason was announced for the change of jockeys. America First paid $15.10, $5.60 and $3.50.

Moon Harvest, another gelding took the eighth to make it three in a row for the boy horses. He was hustled hard from the gate and barely withstood the closing rush of Chilly Ebbie. Unlawful finished third after an even race all the way, while Pencader finished fast for fourth.

Draw Suspensions

It was announced yesterday that Jockey A. Vesseli was set down for three days for rough riding on Simmer in the eighth on Tuesday, and that Jockey W. McDonald drew a similar suspension for inefficient riding on Dressmaker in the sixth of the opening card.

Trainer A. Young drew a $25 fine for changing equipment on Butterman without the stewards' permission in the fifth race of the opening card.

Jockey Bocson who was injured Tuesday was able to resume riding yesterday.

One of the noticeable features of the steeplechase races to date has been that neither has been marred by any spills.

"THIS WON'T HURT MUCH!"

Dr. P. F. Finnigan must have chortled the usual dentist's soft-soap when he filed away at the teeth of Bobbie, pony with the stable of Mrs. C. E. Wilson of Hagerstown now at Fairgo. "Doc" Finnigan was born back in the 1860's and graduated from the Ontario Medical College in 1890. (We repeat that line about the doctor because, while he's still a broth of a boy in his ways, he didn't graduate in 1980 as the paper stated the other day.) Just why he turned from treating humans to nursing horses, the doctor doesn't say. However, he had Bobbie taking this tooth filing job on her jaw-teeth in a sort of a sociable way Sunday. Maybe horses have more patience.

Dodgers "Wrecking Crew" Rides Bench

Three 'Sluggers' Out of Lineup Now For Weak Hitting

Flop One of Screwiest of All Screwy Events of Baseball

Medwick, Lavagetto and Coscarart Counted on for Punch

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.(AP)—Some of the screwiest developments have come out of the major leagues' All-Star series—things like the ruination of Dizzy Dean and the time they called Joe DiMaggio a bum—but nothing takes the cake like the current picture in Brooklyn.

For three of the fellows who were on the National League's time-hitting victorious All-Star squad just a month ago—Ducky Medwick, Cookie Lavagetto and Pete Coscarart—all are riding the Dodgers' bench now—for weak hitting. There's never been anything like it in All-Star history.

Just to go along with the daffiness tradition on the banks of the Gowanus, since these three were benched simultaneously on Sunday, the Brooklyns have won two straight games. And the places of the somewhat less-than-twinkling stars have been filled by (1) a converted first baseman in the outfield; (2) a long-time second-stringer at second base, and (3) a raw kid at third, having the hot corner for the first time in his life.

It could only happen in Brooklyn, naturally.

"Flops" Turn Heroes

For instance there's a Medwick, a $100,000 beauty and one of the most feared flailers in the league for the past five years, suddenly turning sour at the plate he couldn't hit a barrel foul. So Leo the Lip Durocher benched him, moved old Joe Vosmik over to left field and put Jimmy Wasdell in right. Jimmy, while covering first base for Washington, is supposed to be anything but a pushover to opposition pitchers. So long he comes now and figures in the run-making in the victory over the Giants Monday night.

And Johnny Hudson at second has been just a handy extra infield man, notably weak with a bat in his hands. Well, Sunday he took over Coscarart's spot and all he did was knock out five hits against the Cubs. On top of that, he added two more bingles against the Giants and drove in a pair of runs.

The payoff, though, is Reiser on third base. As a young and coming hitter and shortstop-second baseman, he was well thought of last year, but had to be sent to Elmira after seasoning. As a threat to Lavagetto this spring, he was just a guy named Joe.

oman Would Block ike Jacobs' Effort To ly Brooklyn Club

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP) — Mike Jacobs, the boxing czar, revealed today that he and a group of unnamed associates were prepared to buy the Brooklyn Dodgers, but one of the owners promptly replied that he wasn't interested in selling.

Mrs. James M. Mulvey, daughter of the late Stephen McKeever and possessor of a quarter interest in the club, made it plain she would welcome such a deal even if the National League gave its official approval of Jacobs as a club owner. "I've stuck with them all through the hard times," said Mrs. Mulvey. "Why should I sell now when things are getting better?"

The Dodgers had many lean years before Larry MacPhail was brought in as president, but they passed the million mark in attendance last season and have packed them in every afternoon and night this summer.

Half of the club's stock is held by the Brooklyn Trust Company, in behalf of the heirs of the late Charles Ebbets. Mrs. Mulvey owns a quarter, and the other 25 per-cent belongs to the estate of Edward J. McKeever, a brother of the late Stephen.

Dodgers' Habit of Flying May Alter Baseball Scope

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

New York, Aug. 7—The Brooklyn Dodgers will fly to Boston Friday in a body, though there is still some question whether Mr. Gordon 'Babe' Phelps, the oval Brooklyn catcher, will fly in a body, walk in a body, or take a train in a body.

Mr. Phelps is a great lover of terra firma. What terra firma ever did for the Babe to make him feel that way is something that puzzles his teammates, but the fact remains that Mr. Phelps is highly suspicious of the new-fangled flying machine, and will probably eschew that form of locomotion until he receives assurance from the Wright brothers in Kitty Hawk, N. C., that the thing is practical. Word has just reached the Babe that the boys are working on a heavier-than-air device down there.

Thus, pending the flash from Kitty Hawk, Mr. Phelps is likely to stick to the railroad train, which he still regards as a marvel of science and refers to as the iron horse. There is a theory among his teammates that the Babe travelled by ox-cart until he was 28.

McKechnie's Handsome Invitation

Phelps is the lone dissenter among the Dodgers. So airminded is this heroic ball club that its leader, Leland Stanford MacPhail, believes the players will soon be flying everywhere they go. Only recently Mr. Bill McKechnie, manager of the Reds, invited them to fly to Cincinnati for the world series this fall.

"I will reserve box seats for all of you," said Mr. McKechnie handsomely.

For one reason and another, the Dodgers were cold to this munificent offer. They seem to feel that when the world series comes along, they will be able to reach it from their homes by cab for sixty-five cents.

Aside from this digression, however, the desperate Dodgers, under the leadership of "Wings" MacPhail, are the baseball pioneers of the sky. The Boston Red Sox ride the clouds from time to time, but only in scattered units. As far as I know, the Sox have yet to make a mass flight from one ball town to another.

Some of baseball's tycoons and shoguns argue that they cannot afford to risk their valuable cargoes of ivory in the air.

"It's all right for the Dodgers, but not for us," they say, appearing to imply, rather discourteously, that if the Brooklyn ball club is lost, Mr. MacPhail can always replace it for $17.50 at a department store bargain counter.

Radical Change Seen

Nevertheless, the Dodgers and Red Sox are true pathfinders, and the others sooner or later will follow their lead. And his will be one of the major developments of modern professional baseball—for by reducing the country's span to the size of an overnight train jump from New York to Chicago, flying will shift the center of gravity of baseball and readjust the scope and distribution of the entire industry.

This is a familiar and wide-discussed possibility, but it was never as near to realization as now, with the dashing Dodgers flying (and G. Phelps riding the rods) from ball game to ball game.

Cities of great potential baseball strength—San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Houston, Dallas, New Orleans, Kansas City, Mineapolis, Portland—are within range, and eligible, when the magnates get around to making up what are laughingly known as their minds, to play on one circuit with Boston, New York, Pittsburgh, and Philadelphia.

The airplane makes possible a new and wholesale change in major league conditions and constitutions. It makes possible new leagues, or bigger leagues. The so-called Double-A leagues—International, Pacific Coast, American Association—could be promoted to majors in short order. Cities like San Francisco, Seattle, Los Angeles, Baltimore, Buffalo, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Indianapolis, and New Orleans, for instance, are minor league in name only. Nearly all of them are bigger than Cincinnati. Three of them are bigger than Pittsburgh and Boston.

To put Baltimore and Seattle on one circuit—to hitch up New York and San Francisco, New Orleans and Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Los Angeles—that is the dream the desperate Dodgers carry with them as they hurdle the ridges by plane.

If we could only coax Babe Phelps aboard that crate, we'd be getting somewhere. Phelps is a franchise in himself.

Devon Club Defeats Lacy Delicatets 11-6

Scoring six runs in the last two innings, Devon Club tossers defeated Lacy's Delicatets 11-6 on the Taylor field this week. Devon Club is setting the pace in the Tri-Towns Softball League while the Delicatets are on top in Cumberland's South End Booster League.

Gene Scaletta started on the peak for the Delicatets but lasted only one and one-third innings before giving way to Al "Fats" Weltman, who hurled five-hit ball in finishing the battle.

Roy Cava let Lacy's down with five hits in four innings before being relieved by "Hefty" Newlon. Lou Diaz paced Devon Club batsmen with a homer and double while "Bud" Athey of the Delicatets hit for the circuit and also clouted a two-bagger

Cubs Use Homers To Down Reds 5-3 In Extra Inning

Cincinnati Fails To Hit on Birthday of Manager McKechnie

CINCINNATI, Aug. 7 (AP)—Chicago's Cubs said it with home runs and a four-hit overtime attack today, defeating the first-place champion Reds 5 to 3 in ten innings before a ladies' day crowd of 18,549.

Failure of Red batsmen to hit when hits would count most cost big Paul Derringer his chance for his eighth straight win and his seventeenth of the year as a fifty-third birthday present for Manager Bill McKechnie.

Instead, he drew his eighth loss and although starter Bill Lee lasted only long enough in the tenth to see one last Rhineland run cross the plate, he was credited with his eighth victory against thirteen defeats.

Bill Nicholson's eighteenth homer of the year went into the rightfield bleachers in the second but aside from that, Derringer retired 'em all until Stan Hack singled with two out in the sixth.

The Reds loaded the sacks with none away in the third but scored twice only as Frank McCormick grounded into a double play and big Ernie Lombardi singled.

Skipper Gabby Hartnett brought out the old squeeze play to score the first of his three winning runs. Dominic Dallessandro and Al Todd singled, and the fleet leftfielder scored while Derringer fielded Rabbit Warstler's well-placed high bounder. Hack drew Paul's only pass of the day and singles by Billy Herman and Gleeson accounted for two more.

Mosts Take Two in Tri-Towns League

WESTERNPORT, Aug. 7. —The Mosts registered a pair of victories and the Devon Club crew racked up a single win in Tri-Towns Softball League games this week.

The Mosts, after defeating the Eagles 5-4 Monday, took across the Wolverines 9-7 in a postponed battle yesterday. Monday, Devon Club turned back the Boals 6-1.

The Eagles saw the Mosts score four times in the seventh and come from behind to win. Singles by Smith, Roberts and Lininger and doubles by Warnick and Twigg did the damage.

Against the Wolverines, the Mosts were trailing 5-1 going into the last of the sixth but rallied for eight runs and the game. During the outburst, the Wolves were charged with four errors.

"Hefty" Newlon of Devon Club let the Boals down with one hit and was robbed of a shutout by an error. Don Salesky had the Boals' only blow. The scores:

Hagerstown Cards Softball Tourney

HAGERSTOWN, Aug. 7. — The Eastern States' Softball Association tournament will be held this season, probably starting August 13, with about 16 teams representing three states taking part.

Preference will be given those teams which participated in past years, but some new clubs are expected to compete in the series this year.

Earl H. Lightner, president of the association, will supervise the tourney, with Glenn Martin in charge of the tourney games. Burns E. Geiger, new state commissioner for the association will assist in the handling of the tourney, and all three men will receive entries for the tournament until Saturday, which has been set as the deadline.

Meyers & Berkson, the defending champions, are expected to be back with another strong team, and some out-of-the-state entries may prove strong contenders for the title.

SADDLE STRAP SAM

Dear Padlock:

The above scene is something in which I had no parts . . . and neither did I go for your Worthowning yesterday. I saw Worthowning finish and know he wasn't where you had him, but where are you? I've had scouts out scouring the hillsides of the Knobley Mountains but with midnight bringing no trace of you, I'm figuring you jumped the traces, which is something your horses sometimes do.

While you're A.W.O.L. I'm taking two for today with DISTANT STAR in the first and RIOTOUS in the fourth at Fairgo.

Four your info' I'm taking Lady Buck in the second for my Daily Double unless the track turns to muck. Should that happen watch Veritas.

Getting back to your absence, did it go to your head when my "BRAINCHILD" breezed in yesterday? Don't let that get you down, P.P. Look how many times I had here heretofore when she was never any better than thereabouts.

Saddle Strap Sam.

P.S. to P.P.—

Just received your midnight flash. What do you mean Tee Off is a "sure pop" in the eighth? How'd'ya spell that Tea?

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 7. (AP)—So they took the $50,000—and gave it to the Red Cross, and today the golf pros were hanging up their "business as usual" signs with the knowledge that the P.G.A. Red Cross month was a smashing success and that, as a group, they had set up a target for other charitably inclined sports organizations.

Yes sir, 50,000 big, round dollars were raised by the P.G.A., through unselfish donation of time and services by its members. Approximately $25,000 was raised through the 25 charity matches under the auspices of the main office in co-operation with local organizations, and $25,000 more through district P. G. A. activities.

"We received literally hundreds of requests for the services of outstanding players," Fred Corcoran, tournament manager, said today, "and we would have liked to honor them all. We had set aside July as Red Cross month, and naturally couldn't take care of all the requests.

"As it was, the star players—the Ryder team members and others who make their livings playing in tournaments and exhibitions, made a great sacrifice in donating a month to the cause. They had to pass up chances to make money for themselves through private exhibitions. Golf is their business, and it's practically the same as a business man working for charity a month out of the year.

"Incidentally, they have been doing the same thing in England. I got a letter from Henry Cotton saying they had raised £13,000 over there.

"Our largest contribution, of course, was through the ryder cup-sarazen team match at Detroit. That raised about $15,000. Other events, some of them pro-amateur matches such as were held in Baltimore, netted from $1,000 to $5,000. I think the P.G.A. can be justly proud of its record."

There is no denying that the pros, particularly those classed as tournament players, have made a personal sacrifice. Comparatively few earn what might be termed big money. Some, of course, are drawing salaries from sporting goods firms or private clubs, but many are just getting by.

When they can book exhibitions it's so much gravy. That money will pay a lot of caddy fees and buy food and lodging at first-class hotels, with a little left over for striped shirts and doggy slacks.

Whether a match between a Ryder Cup team and a team of outstanding amateurs materializes is problemetical, but the chances seem slim. Walter Hagen, captain of the Ryder team, has expressed a willingness to go through with it, stipulating that the amateur team must be selected by the U.S.G.A.

However, there seems little chance that the U.S.G.A. would back such a match. It approves open tournaments, which is more than the tennis officials will do, but there is still a sharp dividing line between amateurs and pros. It just wouldn't pay to have them mix too much, particularly where the amateurs are pretty certain to take a smart shellacking.

But we still think it would make an interesting affair.

Tigers Get Scare But Beat Browns To Maintain Lead

Manage To Hold on After Two Hurlers Are Chased

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7. (AP)—The leading Detroit Tigers had a scare this afternoon but managed to hold on to an early lead and defeat the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 5, to maintain a mere half game advantage over the threatening Cleveland Indians.

The Indians open a six-game series here tomorrow.

The tottering Brownies, who surprisingly enough often make their best showing against first division clubs, rallied an scored four runs in the last three innings while blanking the Tigers.

Weakening in the stretch, John Gorsica, Detroit's starting pitcher, was relieved in the ninth by Archie McKain, who in turn had to have help from Alton Benton, who saved the day.

He retired hard hitting Johnny Berardino and Harlond Clift with the bases filled to protect the two-run lead.

Bill Trotter, making his first start of the season, after appearing in the relief role 23 times, was the losing pitcher, yielding 12 hits and seven Detroit runs.

Living Stone Church of the Brethren tossers grabbed first place in the South Cumberland Sunday School Softball League this week by defeating Grace M. E. 7-0 behind the two-hit pitching of J. Roby and nosing out Trinity M. E. 5-4 in eight innings.

Wolfe of Trinity sent the latter tilt into extra frame by clouting a homer with two aboard in the sixth. Living Stone tallied twice in the eighth while the best Trinity could do in the same inning was one marker.

Evangelical suffered two defeats, bowing to United Brethren 12-1 and Baptist 6-5. This afternoon, United Brethren will play St. John's on Brinker field and Trinity will meet Grace at Locust Grove. Friday's card is U. B. vs. Baptist, Brinker field, and Evangelical vs. St. John's, Locust Grove. The scores:

CONN AND GREB

You sticks by its heroes. A young Conn admirer from Pittsburgh writes this, "You had a big boost for Billy Conn. Then you wrote he had no chance against Joe Louis. He was too light. If Harry Greb, weighing 160 to 165, was big enough to beat heavyweights, why is Billy Conn too light at 180 pounds?"

The answer is this—Billy Conn is a fast, game boxer. But he is no Harry Greb, before Greb went nearly blind.

Greb was a whirlwind. He was one of the most aggressive fighters that ever took heavyweights apart—including such heavyweights as Gene Tunney, Tom Gibbons, Bill Brennan and Killer Jack Dillon, not to mention Jack Dempsey in a training camp workout. Ask Dempsey.

I'm referring to the Harry Greb who could still see out of both eyes. The Greb that Jack Blackburn would just as soon have kept away.

Conn looks too frail for any Joe Louis test. The Pittsburgh entry is a stand-up boxer, not a ducker and a croucher and a bicycle speedman. He isn't a trick fighter. His style fits into the Louis system almost perfectly.

He might outbox the Bomber for a few rounds. What then? Billy hasn't been able to hurt light heavyweights, so what chance would he have of keeping Louis away for 15 rounds?

What about Tommy Farr and Pastor and Goodoy who stood up through forty rounds against Louis in their opening salvos? There's something here. But I'd like to see Conn pack away another year as he moves up and Louis comes back.

Conn and Pastor

The only chance for a Conn-Louis engagement to build up any interest would be to have Conn peel the hide off Bob Pastor. This is no simple matter. After twenty rounds in their first and second starts, Pastor was still swinging at Louis.

The ex-football entry is no great fighter but also he is no puff ball. He is bigger than Conn, just as fact, a better puncher and much more experience. He isn't as good a boxer and he isn't and gamer, as Bill Conn is dead game.

But those who are taking it for granted that Conn will trim Bob Pastor may be in for a jolt. I saw Louis almost take Pastor's head off in the first round at Detroit, hammer him all over the limited reservation. And many rounds later I still saw Pastor crowding Louis to the ropes, smashing away with both hands.

Conn's Business

If Billy Conn can beat Pastor by a number of kilometers and win with something to spare, they might be able to steam up a show against Louis in Pittsburgh or Detroit. New York has seen Louis too often in the last two years against Galento, Godoys and such.

Conn has all the confidence of a game kid. He has too much confidence, as far as Louis is concerned.

They are all figuring now that the Bomber is on his way over the hill, just as the Yankees are. Champions have a way of suddenly dropping far back where there is no outward sign of a struggle. Something happens—physically, mentally and psychologically — which is beyond the reach of the human eye. The old urge disappears. The will to win softens up. And suddenly there is another ex-champion.

Four years ago when there was a general idea that Joe Louis would beat himself by ocvereating and oversleeping, by softening up. But the Louis who met Godoy was two pounds lighter than the Louis who faced Carnera and Baer. Joe has crossed them up. He has refused to get fat, slow and careless.

Conn is dead sure he can beat Pastor and Louis. That's his business. Maybe he can—but fed others think so.

The Next Fight

No one wants to see Pastor meet Louis again. There has to be some sort of a limit.

Outside of Conn there is no one to toss into the same pit with Louis. Max Baer was smart enough to know that he didn't belong in the same section, much less the same ring. Max had the chance to pick up ae least $40,000 against Louis. The idea in general had no appeal for the Livermore Larruper. He preferred the normal contours of his countenance. He still wanted his frontispiece in some semblance of order. Max has fought Louis and Conn hasn't.

But in the meanwhile Conn still has a date with Bob Pastor next week. For the first time the Pittsburgh entry is meeting a first-class heavyweight who has been around—who knows the road.

Conn is stepping into the largest evening of his career. He can lose to Pastor without being disgraced, but he can't lose to Pastor and beckon Joe Louis.

The factor that favors Pastor is experience. Conn may outstep him and outbox him, but I don't think he will outfight him. And after all a fight is still a fight. Any close decision would more than wreck a Louis soiree for September.

HORSES TO WATCH

WALE SIGNAL: In trouble in last start, but closed well under vigorous handling. Should earn brackets in next start if not too ambitiously placed.

BELLTHORN: Used up to much forcing pace opening day. Going to win a race mighty quick if sent against own kind.

JAMES PAL: Appeared in need of recent race. Look for smart improvement next out if sent against same kind.

GOLD SWEEPER: Bobbled several times in recent jumping race. With that race tucked away, this veteran is going to be hard to whip next out.

AXACAN: Pretty sharp steeplechaser. Will show to advantage in all races over this track.

DON BARR: Exhibited high speed opening day. Is bound to improve, so don't be caught looking out the window.

OSOFREE: Been pitched too high lately. Grab when dropped down a peg.

HOME HUNTER: There is race in book, which suits this plater perfectly.

GOLD SWEEP: Looks and acts well. Should bear watching from now on.

BEST POLICY: Has been breezing in manner, which suggests early score.

THE SWAGMAN: Just a player, but can win when sent a route.

Shields Returns to Form To Triumph

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 7 (AP) — Frank X. Shields of New York, today recaptured some of the impeccable touch that carried him to top national ranking in 1933 when he blasted Gil Hunt of Washington, D. C., out of the Eastern Grass Court championships, 6-3, 5-7, 9-7, and advanced to the quarter-final round.

The 29-year old internationalist, a familiar figure in the late rounds at Wimbledon and Forest Hills, barely missed winning in straight sets, and when the match was forced into overtime, he came within a single point of losing. But Hunt chopped a simple volley into the net and the veteran then won three straight points for the victory.

Shields' opponent in the round of eight will be defending champion Bobby Riggs of Chicago, who eliminated another Chicagoan, Seymour Greenberg, 6-4, 6-3.

The lower bracket quarter-final matches will pit Frank Parker of Pasadena, Calif., against Hank Prusoff of Seattle, Wash. Parker disposed of young Ted Schroeder, Glendale, Calif., 6-2, 6-4, while Prusoff defeated S. Ellsworth Davenport of Forest Hills, N. Y., 8-6, 6-0.

The lower-bracket berths were filled by Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., Jot Hunt of Annapolis, and Bitsy Grant of Atlanta. McNeill won at 6-2, 9-7, over Bob Harman of Piedmont, Calif., and Mulloy nipped Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., 5-7, 8-6, 10-8.

Midshipman Hunt brushed aside Hal Surface of Kansas City, yesterday's upset victor over Welby Van Horn, 6-1, 6-2. Grant posted a 6-4, 6-2 margin over John Thackara of New York.

Dodgers "Wrecking Crew" Rides Bench

Three 'Sluggers' Out of Lineup Now For Weak Hitting

Medwick, Lavagetto and Coscarart Counted on for Punch

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.(AP)—Some of the screwiest developments have come out of the major leagues' All-Star series—things like the ruination of Dizzy Dean and the time they called Joe DiMaggio a bum—but nothing takes the cake like the current picture in Brooklyn.

For three of the fellows who were on the National League's timely hitting victorious All-Star squad just a month ago—Ducky Medwick, Cookie Lavagetto and Pete Coscarart—all are riding the Dodgers' bench now—for weak hitting. There's never been anything like it in All-Star history.

Just to go along with the daffiness tradition on the banks of the Gowanus, since these three were benched simultaneously on Sunday, the Brooklyns have won two straight games. And the places of the somewhat less-than-twinkling stars have been filled by (1) a converted first baseman in the outfield; (2) a long-time second-stringer at second base and (3) a raw kid at third, playing the hot corner for the first time in his life.

It could only happen in Brooklyn, naturally.

"Flops" Turn Heroes

For instance there's a Medwick, a $200,000 beauty and one of the most feared flailers in the league for the last five years, suddenly turning so sour at the plate he couldn't hit a loud foul. So Leo the Lip Durocher benched him, moved old Joe Vosmik over to left field and put Jimmy Wasdell in right. Jimmy, while covering first base for Washington, was supposed to be anything but poison to opposition pitchers. So along he comes now and figures in the run-making in the victory over the Giants Monday night.

And Johnny Hudson at second has been just a handy extra infield man, notably weak with a bat in his hands. Well, Sunday he took over Coscarart's spot and all he did was knock out five hits against the Cubs. On top of that, he added two more bingles against the Giants and drove in a pair of runs.

The payoff, though, is Reiser on third base. As a young and coming batter and shortstop-second baseman, he was well thought of last year, but had to be sent to Elmira for seasoning. As a threat to Lavagetto this spring, he was just a guy named Joe.

Woman Would Block Mike Jacobs' Effort To Buy Brooklyn Club

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP) — Mike Jacobs, the boxing czar, revealed today that he and a group of unnamed associates were prepared to buy the Brooklyn Dodgers, but one of the owners promptly replied that she wasn't interested in selling.

Mrs. James M. Mulvey, daughter of the late Stephen McKeever and possessor of a quarter interest in the club, made it plain she would block such a deal even if the National League gave its official approval of Jacobs as a club owner.

"I've stuck with them all through the hard times," said Mrs. Mulvey. "Why should I sell now when things are getting better?"

The Dodgers had many lean years before Larry MacPhail was brought in as president, but they passed the million mark in attendance last season and have packed them in many an afternoon and night this summer.

Half of the club's stock is held by the Brooklyn Trust Company, on behalf of the heirs of the late Charles Ebbets. Mrs. Mulvey owns one-quarter, and the other 25 percent belongs to the estate of Edward J. McKeever, a brother of the late Stephen.

Dodgers' Habit of Flying May Alter Baseball Scope

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

New York, Aug. 7—The Brooklyn Dodgers will fly to Boston Friday in a body, though there is still some question whether Mr. Gordon 'Babe' Phelps, the oval Brooklyn catcher, will fly in a body, walk in a body, or take a train in a body.

Mr. Phelps is a great lover of terra firma. What terra firma ever did for the Babe to make him feel that way is something that puzzles his teammates, but the fact remains that Mr. Phelps is highly suspicious of the new-fangled flying machine, and will probably eschew that form of locomotion until he receives assurance from the Wright brothers in Kitty Hawk, N. C., that the thing is practical. Word has just reached the Babe that the boys are working on a heavier-than-air device down there.

Thus, pending the flash from Kitty Hawk, Mr. Phelps is likely to stick to the railroad train, which he still regards as a marvel of science and refers to as the iron horse. There is a theory among his teammates that the Babe travelled by ox-cart until he was 28.

McKechnie's Handsome Invitation

Phelps is the lone dissenter among the Dodgers. So airminded is this heroic ball club that its leader, Leland Stanford MacPhail, believes the players will soon be flying everywhere they go. Only recently Mr. Bill McKechnie, manager of the Reds, invited them to fly to Cincinnati for the world series this fall.

"I will reserve box seats for all of you," said Mr. McKechnie handsomely.

For one reason and another, the Dodgers were cold to this munificent offer. They seem to feel that when the world series comes along, they will be able to reach it from their homes by cab for sixty-five cents.

Aside from this digression, however, the desperate Dodgers, under the leadership of "Wings" MacPhail, are the baseball pioneers of the sky. The Boston Red Sox ride the clouds from time to time, but only in scattered units. As far as I know, the Sox have yet to make a mass flight from one ball town to another.

Some of baseball's tycoons and shoguns argue that they cannot afford to risk their valuable cargoes of ivory in the air.

"It's all right for the Dodgers, but not for us," they say, appearing to imply, rather discourteously, that if the Brooklyn ball club is lost, Mr. MacPhail can always replace it for $17.50 at a department store bargain counter.

Radical Change Seen

Nevertheless, the Dodgers and Red Sox are true pathfinders, and the others soner or later will follow their lead. And his will be one of the major developments of modern professional baseball—for by reducing the country's span to the size of an overnight train jump from New York to Chicago, flying will shift the center of gravity of baseball and readjust the scope and distribution ofthe entire industry.

This is a familiar and wide-discussed possibility, but it was never as near to realization as now, with the dashing Dodgers flying (and G. Phelps riding the rods) from ball game to ball game.

Cities of great potential baseball strength—San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Houston, Dallas, New Orleans, Kansas City, Mineapolis, Portland—are within range, and eligible, when the magnates get around to making up what are laughingly known as their minds, to play on one circuit with Boston, New York, Pittsburgh, and Philadelphia.

The airplane makes possible a new and wholesale change in major league conditions and constitutions. It makes possible new leagues, or bigger leagues. The so-called Double-A leagues—International, Pacific Coast, American Association—could be promoted to majors in short order. Cities like San Francisco, Seattle, Los Angeles, Baltimore, Buffalo, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Indianapolis, and New Orleans, for instance, are minor league in name only. Nearly all of them are bigger than Cincinnati. Three of them are bigger than Pittsburgh and Boston.

To put Baltimore and Seattle on one circuit—to hitch up New York and San Francisco, New Orleans and Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Los Angeles—that is the dream the desperate Dodgers carry with them as they hurdle the ridges by plane.

If we could only coax Babe Phelps aboard that crate, we'd be getting somewhere. Phelps is a franchise in himself.

Devon Club Defeats Lacy Delicatets 11-6

Scoring six runs in the last two innings, Devon Club tossers defeated Lacy's Delicatets 11-6 on the Taylor field this week. Devon Club is setting the pace in the Tri-Towns Softball League while the Delicatets are on top in Cumberland's South End Booster League.

Gene Scaletta started on the peak for the Delicatets but lasted only one and one-third innings before giving way to Al "Fats" Weltman, who hurled five-hit ball in finishing the battle.

Roy Cava let Lacy's down with five hits in four innings before being relieved by "Hefty" Newlon. Lou Diaz paced Devon Club batsmen with a homer and double while "Bud" Athey of the Delicatets hit for the circuit and also clouted a two-bagger

Cubs Use Homers To Down Reds 5-3 In Extra Inning

Cincinnati Fails To Hit on Birthday of Manager McKechnie

CINCINNATI, Aug. 7 (AP)—Chicago's Cubs said it with home runs and a four-hit overtime attack today, defeating the first-place champion Reds 5 to 3 in ten innings before a ladies' day crowd of 18,549.

Failure of Red batsmen to hit when hits would count most cost big Paul Derringer his chance for his eighth straight win and his seventeenth of the year as a fifty-third birthday present for Manager Bill McKechnie.

Instead, he drew his eighth loss and although starter Bill Lee lasted only long enough in the tenth to see one last Rhineland run cross the plate, he was credited with his eighth victory against thirteen defeats.

Bill Nicholson's eighteenth homer of the year went into the rightfield bleachers in the second but aside from that, Derringer retired 'em all until Stan Hack singled with two out in the sixth.

The Reds loaded the sacks with none away in the third but scored twice only as Frank McCormick grounded into a double play and big Ernie Lombardi singled.

Skipper Gabby Hartnett brought out the old squeeze play to score the first of his three winning runs. Dominic Dallessandro and Al Todd singled, and the fleet leftfielder scored while Derringer fielded Rabbit Warstler's well-placed high bounder. Hack drew Paul's only pass of the day and singles by Billy Herman and Gleeson accounted for two more.

Mosts Take Two in Tri-Towns League

WESTERNPORT, Aug. 7. —The Mosts registered a pair of victories and the Devon Club crew racked up a single win in Tri-Towns Softball League games this week.

The Mosts, after defeating the Eagles 5-4 Monday, took across the Wolverines 9-7 in a postponed battle yesterday. Monday, Devon Club turned back the Boals 6-1.

The Eagles saw the Mosts score four times in the seventh and come from behind to win. Singles by Smith, Roberts and Lininger and doubles by Warnick and Twigg did the damage.

Against the Wolverines, the Mosts were trailing 5-1 going into the last of the sixth but rallied for eight runs and the game. During the outburst, the Wolves were charged with four errors.

"Hefty" Newlon of Devon Club let the Boals down with one hit and was robbed of a shutout by an error. Don Salesky had the Boals' only blow. The scores:

Hagerstown Cards Softball Tourney

HAGERSTOWN, Aug. 7. — The Eastern States' Softball Association tournament will be held this season, probably starting August 13, with about 16 teams representing three states taking part.

Preference will be given those teams which participated in past years, but some new clubs are expected to compete in the series this year.

Earl H. Lightner, president of the association, will supervise the tourney, with Glenn Martin in charge of the tourney games. Burns E. Geiger, new state commissioner for the association will assist in the handling of the tourney, and all three men will receive entries for the tournament until Saturday, which has been set as the deadline.

Meyers & Berkson, the defending champions, are expected to be back with another strong team, and some out-of-the-state entries may prove strong contenders for the title.

SADDLE STRAP SAM

Dear Padlock:

The above scene is something in which I had no parts . . . and neither did I go for your Worthowning yesterday. I saw Worthowning finish and know he wasn't where you had him, but where are you? I've had scouts out scouring the hillsides of the Knobley Mountains but with midnight bringing no trace of you, I'm figuring you jumped the traces, which is something your horses sometimes do.

While you're A.W.O.L. I'm taking two for today with DISTANT STAR in the first and RIOTOUS in the fourth at Fairgo.

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 7. (AP)—So they took the $50,000—and gave it to the Red Cross, and today the golf pros were hanging up their "business as usual" signs with the knowledge that the P.G.A. Red Cross month was a smashing success and that, as a group, they had set up a target for other charitably inclined sports organizations.

Yes sir, 50,000 big, round dollars were raised by the P.G.A., through unselfish donation of time and services by its members. Approximately $25,000 was raised through the 25 charity matches under the auspices of the main office in co-operation with local organizations, and $25,000 more through district P. G. A. activities.

"We received literally hundreds of requests for the services of outstanding players," Fred Corcoran, tournament manager, said today, "and we would have liked to honor them all. We had set aside July as Red Cross month, and naturally couldn't take care of all the requests.

"As it was, the star players—the Ryder team members and others who make their livings playing in tournaments and exhibitions, made a great sacrifice in donating a month to the cause. They had to pass up chances to make money for themselves through private exhibitions. Golf is their business, and it's practically the same as a business man working for charity a month out of the year.

"Incidentally, they have been doing the same thing in England. I got a letter from Henry Cotton saying they had raised £13,000 over there.

"Our largest contribution, of course, was through the ryder cup-sarazen team match at Detroit. That raised about $15,000. Other events, some of them pro-amateur matches such as were held in Baltimore, netted from $1,000 to $5,000. I think the P.G.A. can be justly proud of its record."

There is no denying that the pros, particularly those classed as tournament players, have made a personal sacrifice. Comparatively few earn what might be termed big money. Some, of course, are drawing salaries from sporting goods firms or private clubs, but many are just getting by.

When they can book exhibitions it's so much gravy. That money will pay a lot of caddy fees and buy food and lodging at first-class hotels, with a little left over for striped shirts and doggy slacks.

Whether a match between a Ryder Cup team and a team of outstanding amateurs materializes is problemental, but the chances seem slim. Walter Hagen, captain of the Ryder team, has expressed a willingness to go through with it, stipulating that the amateur team must be selected by the U.S.G.A.

However, there seems little chance that the U.S.G.A. would back such a match. It approves open tournaments, which is more than the tennis officials will do, but there is still a sharp dividing line between amateurs and pros. It just wouldn't pay to have them mix too much, particularly where the amateurs are pretty certain to take a smart shellacking.

But we still think it would make an interesting affair.

Tigers Get Scare But Beat Browns To Maintain Lead

Manage To Hold on After Two Hurlers Are Chased

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7. (AP)—The leading Detroit Tigers had a scare this afternoon but managed to hold on to an early lead and defeat the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 5, to maintain a mere half game advantage over the threatening Cleveland Indians. The Indians open a six-game series here tomorrow.

The tottering Brownies, who surprisingly enough often make their best showing against first division clubs, rallied an scored four runs in the last three innings while blanking the Tigers.

Weakening in the stretch, John Gorsica, Detroit's starting pitcher, was relieved in the ninth by Archie McKain, who in turn had to have help from Alton Benton, who saved the day.

He retired hard hitting Johnny Berardino and Harlond Clift with the bases filled to protect the two-run lead.

Bill Trotter, making his first start of the season, after appearing in the relief role 23 times, was the losing pitcher, yielding 12 hits and seven Detroit runs.

Wolfe of Trinity sent the latter tilt into extra frame by clouting a homer with two aboard in the sixth. Living Stone tallied twice in the eighth while the best Trinity could do in the same inning was one marker.

Evangelical suffered two defeats, bowing to United Brethren 12-1 and Baptist 6-5. This afternoon, United Brethren will play St. John's on Brinker field and Trinity will meet Grace at Locust Grove. CONN AND GREB

You sticks by its heroes. A young Conn admirer from Pittsburgh writes this, "You had a big boost for Billy Conn. Then you wrote he had no chance against Joe Louis. He was too light. If Harry Greb, weighing 160 to 165, was big enough to beat heavyweights, why is Billy Conn too light at 180 pounds?"

The answer is this—Billy Conn is a fast, game boxer. But he is no Harry Greb, before Greb went nearly blind.

Greb was a whirlwind. He was one of the most aggressive fighters that ever took heavyweights apart—including such heavyweights as Gene Tunney, Tom Gibbons, Bill Brennan and Killer Jack Dillon, not to mention Jack Dempsey in a training camp workout. Ask Dempsey.

I'm referring to the Harry Greb who could still see out of both eyes. The Greb that Jack Blackburn would just as soon have kept away.

Conn looks too frail for any Joe Louis test. The Pittsburgh entry is a stand-up boxer, not a ducker and a croucher and a bicycle speedman. He isn't a trick fighter. His style fits into the Louis system almost perfectly.

He might outbox the Bomber for a few rounds. What then? Billy hasn't been able to hurt light heavyweights, so what chance would he have of keeping Louis away for 15 rounds?

What about Tommy Farr and Pastor and Goodoy who stood up through forty rounds against Louis in their opening salvos? There's something here. But I'd like to see Conn pack away another year as he moves up and Louis comes back.

Conn and Pastor

The only chance for a Conn-Louis engagement to build up any interest would be to have Conn peel the hide off Bob Pastor. This is no simple matter. After twenty rounds in their first and second starts, Pastor was still swinging at Louis.

The ex-football entry is no great fighter but also he is no puff ball. He is bigger than Conn, just as fact, a better puncher and much more experience. He isn't as good a boxer and he isn't and gamer, as Bill Conn is dead game.

But those who are taking it for granted that Conn will trim Bob Pastor may be in for a jolt. I saw Louis almost take Pastor's head off in the first round at Detroit, hammer him all over the limited reservation. And many rounds later I still saw Pastor crowding Louis to the ropes, smashing away with both hands.

Conn's Business

If Billy Conn can beat Pastor by a number of kilometers and win with something to spare, they might be able to steam up a show against Louis in Pittsburgh or Detroit. New York has seen Louis too often in the last two years against Galento, Godoys and such.

Conn has all the confidence of a game kid. He has too much confidence, as far as Louis is concerned.

They are all figuring now that the Bomber is on his way over the hill, just as the Yankees are. Champions have a way of suddenly dropping far back where there is no outward sign of a struggle. Something happens—physically, mentally and psychologically — which is beyond the reach of the human eye. The old urge disappears. The will to win softens up. And suddenly there is another ex-champion.

Four years ago when there was a general idea that Joe Louis would beat himself by ocvereating and oversleeping, by softening up. But the Louis who met Godoy was two pounds lighter than the Louis who faced Carnera and Baer. Joe has crossed them up. He has refused to get fat, slow and careless.

Conn is dead sure he can beat Pastor and Louis. That's his business. Maybe he can—but fed others think so.

The Next Fight

No one wants to see Pastor meet Louis again. There has to be some sort of a limit.

Outside of Conn there is no one to toss into the same pit with Louis. Max Baer was smart enough to know that he didn't belong in the same section, much less the same ring. Max had the chance to pick up ae least $40,000 against Louis. The idea in general had no appeal for the Livermore Larruper. He preferred the normal contours of his countenance. He still wanted his frontispiece in some semblance of order. Max has fought Louis and Conn hasn't.

But in the meanwhile Conn still has a date with Bob Pastor next week. For the first time the Pittsburgh entry is meeting a first-class heavyweight who has been around—who knows the road.

Conn is stepping into the largest evening of his career. He can lose to Pastor without being disgraced, but he can't lose to Pastor and beckon Joe Louis.

The factor that favors Pastor is experience. Conn may outstep him and outbox him, but I don't think he will outfight him. And after all a fight is still a fight. Any close decision would more than wreck a Louis soiree for September.

HORSES TO WATCH

WALE SIGNAL: In trouble in last start, but closed well under vigorous handling. Should earn brackets in next start if not too ambitiously placed.

BELLTHORN: Used up to much forcing pace opening day. Going to win a race mighty quick if sent against own kind.

JAMES PAL: Appeared in need of recent race. Look for smart improvement next out if sent against same kind.

GOLD SWEEPER: Bobbled several times in recent jumping race. With that race tucked away, this veteran is going to be hard to whip next out.

AXACAN: Pretty sharp steeplechaser. Will show to advantage in all races over this track.

DON BARR: Exhibited high speed opening day. Is bound to improve, so don't be caught looking out the window.

OSOFREE: Been pitched too high lately. Grab when dropped down a peg.

HOME HUNTER: There is race in book, which suits this plater perfectly.

GOLD SWEEP: Looks and acts well. Should bear watching from now on.

BEST POLICY: Has been breezing in manner, which suggests early score.

THE SWAGMAN: Just a player, but can win when sent a route.

Shields Returns to Form To Triumph

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 7 (AP) — Frank X. Shields of New York, today recaptured some of the impeccable touch that carried him to top national ranking in 1933 when he blasted Gil Hunt of Washington, D. C., out of the Eastern Grass Court championships, 6-3, 5-7, 9-7, and advanced to the quarter-final round.

The 29-year old internationalist, a familiar figure in the late rounds at Wimbledon and Forest Hills, barely missed winning in straight sets, and when the match was forced into overtime, he came within a single point of losing. But Hunt chopped a simple volley into the net and the veteran then won three straight points for the victory.

Shields' opponent in the round of eight will be defending champion Bobby Riggs of Chicago, who eliminated another Chicagoan, Seymour Greenberg, 6-4, 6-3.

The lower bracket quarter-final matches will pit Frank Parker of Pasadena, Calif., against Hank Prusoff of Seattle, Wash. Parker disposed of young Ted Schroeder, Glendale, Calif., 6-2, 6-4, while Prusoff defeated S. Ellsworth Davenport of Forest Hills, N. Y., 8-6, 6-0.

The lower-bracket berths were filled by Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., Jot Hunt of Annapolis, and Bitsy Grant of Atlanta. McNeill won at 6-2, 9-7, over Bob Harman of Piedmont, Calif., and Mulloy nipped Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., 5-7, 8-6, 10-8.

Midshipman Hunt brushed aside Hal Surface of Kansas City, yesterday's upset victor over Welby Van Horn, 6-1, 6-2. Grant posted a 6-4, 6-2 margin over John Thackara of New York.

PART V-A—PEOPLE'S COURTS.

41-A. There is hereby created a People's Court of Baltimore City. Said Court shall consist originally of a Chief Judge and six Associate Judges; the number of such Judges may thereafter be increased or decreased by the General Assembly by law but no such decrease shall affect the term of any Judge then in office or his right to stand for election for further terms as hereinafter provided. The Judges of said Court shall have the qualifications prescribed by Section 2 of this Article and shall have practiced law in the City of Baltimore for a total period of at least five years; shall hold office subject to the provisions of Sections 3 and 4 of this Article with regard to retirement and removal from office; and shall receive from the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City such compensation as shall be fixed by law by the General Assembly, which shall not be diminished during continuance in office.

The Governor shall appoint to said Court, to take office on the first Monday of May, 1941, one Associate Judge for a term expiring December 31, 1942; one Associate Judge for a term expiring December 31, 1944, and a Chief Judge for a term expiring December 31, 1946; and, upon the creation of any additional office on said Court by increase in the number of Judges pursuant to this Section, shall appoint an Associate Judge for such term, not exceeding eight years and expiring on the thirty-first day of December immediately following a Congressional election, as the law creating such office shall prescribe. If any vacancy occurs during any such original term, the Governor shall appoint a successor to serve for the remainder of such term. After the expiration of said original terms, the terms of office of said Court shall be for eight years from the expiration of the preceding term, and shall be filled as follows:

(1) Any incumbent Judge of said Court shall be eligible, at the Congressional election immediately preceding the expiration of his period of appointment or term, for election or re-election to succeed himself (a) for a full term of eight years, except as provided in (b) hereof; or (b) for the unexpired remainder of the current eight year term, if his appointment will expire before the end of such term. No person other than an incumbent Judge shall be eligible for election to said Court.

(2) Whenever a vacancy shall occur on said Court from any cause the Governor shall appoint to said Court a Judge who shall hold office under such appointment until the thirty-first day of December immediately following the first Congressional election occurring six months or more after the date of his appointment. No Judge of said Court, who has stood for election to succeed himself and not been elected, shall thereafter be appointed to said Court, and no Judge of said Court, who has failed to stand for election when eligible, shall be appointed to succeed himself.

(3) In order to qualify for election or re-election an incumbent Judge shall file with the Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore City not later than thirty days before the date of the applicable election a certificate signed and duly acknowledged, stating the basis of his eligibility and the term or remainder of term for which he is eligible for election. Thereupon, the name of such Judge, together with a statement of the term or remainder of term for which he is eligible, shall be placed upon the ballot to be used in said City in such election, with no party designation, and with no opposing candidate, with space provided to permit any voter to cast his vote for or against the continuance in office of such Judge; if the votes cast for the continuance in office of such Judge represent a majority of all the votes cast for or against his continuance in office, such Judge shall hold office for the unexpired remainder of the term or for the full term of eight years, as the case may be.

Unless his office shall have been abolished pursuant to this Section, each Judge of said Court shall continue to hold office after the expiration of his period of appointment or term until a successor shall qualify. As used in this Section, "Congressional election" means any of the biennial elections at which members of the House of Representatives are regularly chosen.

Said Court shall have such jurisdiction (which may be made exclusive as to any class or classes of civil cases in Baltimore City), with such right of appeal, therefrom, and the Chief Judge and Associate Judges thereof shall have such powers and duties, as the General Assembly shall prescribe from time to time by law. The Judges of said Court shall have full power to regulate by rules the administration, procedure and practice of said Court; such rules shall have the force of law until rescinded or modified by said Judges or the General Assembly. Unless otherwise provided by law, (1) all powers granted by this Section or by law to said Court or the Judges thereof as a body may be exercised by a majority of the Judges thereof, and (2) said Court shall not be a Court of Record.

There shall be a Chief Constable of said Court, who shall perform therein the duties prescribed for Clerks of Court by Section 10 of this Article and such other duties as shall be prescribed by law or by rule of said Court. Such Chief Constable shall be appointed, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, by the Judges of said Court; and such Chief Constable shall appoint, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, all original, subsequent and additional constables and clerks employed pursuant to this Section, and shall supervise and direct the work of all such constables and clerks. There shall be appointed originally fourteen such constables and sixteen such clerks; the number of either may, on the joint recommendation of said Court and said Chief Constable, be increased by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City; no vacancy in the position of any constable or clerk, however arising, shall be filled by said Chief Constable unless the Judges of said Court and said Chief Constable shall expressly find that the filling of such vacancy is necessary for the efficient operation of said Court. The positions of said Chief Constable and of all such constables and clerks shall be positions in the Classified City Service of Baltimore and the provisions of the Charter of said City with respect to said City Service are hereby expressly made applicable thereto, provided that the Chief Constable at the time this amendment becomes effective shall continue and remain in said position and immediately become a member of said Classified City Service of Baltimore; all such positions shall be classified by the City Service Commission and all appointments, promotions, transfers, reinstatements, and removals with respect to such positions shall be made only in accordance with the provisions, rules and regulations of said Classified City Service from time to time in force. Such Chief Constable and all of such other constables and all such clerks shall receive from the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City such compensation as said Mayor and City Council shall prescribe. Such constables and clerks shall perform such duties as may now or hereafter be prescribed by law or rule of Court.

AN ACT to amend Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judiciary Department," subtitle "Part III—Circuit Courts" of the Constitution of this State, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III—Circuit Courts," of the Constitution of this State, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof as herein provided, it shall supersede and stand in the place and stead of Section 21 of said Article 4.

21. For each of the said circuits, excepting the eighth, the second, the third (and) the sixth and the seventh, there shall be a chief judge and two associate judges, to be styled judges of the Circuit Court, to be selected or appointed as herein provided, and for the second circuit, the third circuit, (and) the sixth circuit, and the seventh circuit, there shall be a chief judge and three associate judges to be styled judges of the Circuit Court, to be elected or appointed as herein provided. And no two of said associate judges, except the third and sixth and seventh circuits shall, at the time of their election or appointment or during the term for which they may have been elected or appointed, reside in the same county. If two or more persons shall be candidates for associate judge in the same county in any of the circuits, except the third and sixth and seventh circuits, that one only in said county shall be declared elected who has the highest number of votes in the circuit. In case any two candidates for associate judge in any of the circuits, except the third and sixth and seventh circuits, residing in the same county shall have an equal number of votes greater than any other candidates for associate judge in the circuit, it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for one associate judge; but the person residing in any other county of the circuit and who has the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. The said judges shall hold not less than two terms of the Circuit Court in each of the counties composing their respective circuits, at such times as are now or may hereafter be prescribed to which jurors shall be summoned; and in those counties where only two such terms are held, two other and intermediate terms, to which jurors shall not be summoned; they may alter or fix the times for holding any or all terms, until otherwise prescribed, and shall adopt rules to the end that all business not requiring the interposition of the jury shall be, as far as practicable, disposed of at said intermediate terms. One judge in each of the above circuits, including the second, the third (and) sixth and seventh circuits, shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business; and the said judges or any of them may hold special terms of their courts, whenever in their discretion the business of the several counties renders such terms necessary. The additional associate judge for the third circuit elected in accordance with the terms of the Constitutional Amendment hereto-fore submitted and adopted shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, hold his office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the third circuit.

The additional associate judge for the second circuit herein provided for shall be a resident of Cecil County, shall be appointed by the Governor after the expiration of six (6) months after the adoption of this amendment and shall serve until the first general election for members of the General Assembly that shall be held in said circuit subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, at which election his successor shall be elected by the qualified voters of Caroline, Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's, and Talbot Counties, constituting the second circuit. The judge so appointed shall be subject to the same constitutional provision, hold his office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the second circuit.

The additional judge for the sixth circuit herein provided for and elected by the qualified voters of Frederick and Montgomery Counties at the 1938 election in accordance with the terms of the Constitutional Amendment heretofore submitted and adopted shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, hold his office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the sixth circuit.

The additional associate judge for the seventh circuit herein provided for shall be appointed by the Governor immediately after the adoption of this amendment and shall serve until the first general election for members of the General Assembly that shall be held in said circuit subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, at which election his successor shall be elected by the qualified voters of Prince George's, Charles, Calvert and Mary's Counties. No member of the General Assembly of 1939 otherwise qualified, shall be ineligible for appointment or election as such associate judge by reason of his membership in the General Assembly. The judge so appointed shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the seventh circuit, and the judge so elected and his successors shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, hold office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation, and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the seventh circuit. No two of the associate judges for the seventh circuit shall at the time of their election or appointment or during the term for which they may have been elected or appointed reside in the same county, except in Prince George's County, in which county two of said associate judges for the said circuit shall reside at the time of their appointment or election and during the term for which they may have been appointed or elected unless the chief judge of said circuit shall already reside in said county, in which event only one of said associate judges shall reside in Prince George's County and Prince George's County shall at all times have two resident Judges and no more, such Judges to be either the Chief Judge of the Seventh Circuit and one associate Judge or two associate Judges of said Circuit. In case any candidate or candidates for associate judge at any judicial election held in the seventh judicial circuit shall receive sufficient votes to cause such candidate or candidates to be elected, but the election of such candidate or candidates would cause more associate judges than herein permitted to reside in any county of said circuit, then and in that event only that candidate or those candidates, as the case may be, residing in said county in the order of the votes received shall be declared elected whose election would provide the permitted number of associate judges from said county and the candidate or candidates, as the case may be, residing in some other county, and not similarly disqualified, who shall have the next highest number of votes in said election shall be declared elected. If, by reason of such a condition or by reason of an equal vote for two or more candidates a sufficient number of associate judges duly qualified as to residence as above set out should not be elected at any election in said seventh judicial circuit, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for such unfilled office or offices.

The additional associate judge for the seventh circuit herein provided for shall be appointed by the Governor immediately after the adoption of this amendment and shall serve until the first general election for members of the General Assembly that shall be held in said circuit subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, at which election his successor shall be elected by the qualified voters of Prince George's, Charles, Calvert and Mary's Counties. No member of the General Assembly of 1939, otherwise qualified, shall be ineligible for appointment or election as such associate judge by reason of his membership in the General Assembly. The judge so appointed shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the seventh circuit, and the judge so elected and his successors shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, hold office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation, and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the seventh circuit. No two of the associate judges for the seventh circuit shall at the time of their election or appointment or during the term for which they may have been elected or appointed reside in the same county, except in Prince George's County, in which county two of said associate judges for the said circuit shall reside at the time of their appointment or election and during the term for which they may have been appointed or elected unless the chief judge of said circuit shall already reside in said county, in which event only one of said associate judges shall reside in Prince George's County and Prince George's County shall at all times have two resident Judges and no more, such Judges to be either the Chief Judge of the Seventh Circuit and one associate Judge or two associate Judges of said Circuit. In case any candidate or candidates for associate judge at any judicial election held in the seventh judicial circuit shall receive sufficient votes to cause such candidate or candidates to be elected, but the election of such candidate or candidates would cause more associate judges than herein permitted to reside in any county of said circuit, then and in that event only that candidate or those candidates, as the case may be, residing in said county in the order of the votes received shall be declared elected whose election would provide the permitted number of associate judges from said county and the candidate or candidates, as the case may be, residing in some other county, and not similarly disqualified, who shall have the next highest number of votes in said election shall be declared elected. If, by reason of such a condition or by reason of an equal vote for two or more candidates a sufficient number of associate judges duly qualified as to residence as above set out should not be elected at any election in said seventh judicial circuit, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for such unfilled office or offices.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be, at the next general election to be held in this State in the year 1940, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election, the vote on the said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That (three-fifths of all members elected to each of the two Houses concurring) the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 21 of Article 4, of the Constitution of Maryland, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III—Circuit Courts," the same, if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof as herein provided, to become Section 21 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland.

21. For each of the said circuits, excepting the eighth, the second, the third and the sixth, there shall be a chief judge and two associate judges, to be styled judges of the Circuit Court, to be selected or appointed as herein provided, and for the second circuit, the third circuit and the sixth circuit, there shall be a chief judge and three associate judges to be styled judges of the Circuit Court, to be elected or appointed as herein provided. And no two of said associate judges, except the third and sixth circuits, shall, at the time of their election or appointment or during the term for which they may have been elected or appointed, reside in the same county. If two or more persons shall be candidates for associate judge in the same county in any of the circuits, except the third and sixth circuits, that one only in said county shall be declared elected who has the highest number of votes in the circuit. In case any two candidates for associate judge in any of the circuits, except the third and sixth circuits, residing in the same county shall have an equal number of votes greater than any other candidates for associate judge in the circuit, it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for one associate judge; but the person residing in any other county of the circuit and who has the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. The said judges shall hold not less than two terms of the Circuit Court in each of the counties composing their respective circuits, at such times as are now or may hereafter be prescribed to which jurors shall be summoned; and in those counties where only two such terms are held, two other and intermediate terms, to which jurors shall not be summoned; they may alter or fix the times for holding any or all terms, until otherwise prescribed, and shall adopt rules to the end that all business not requiring the interposition of the jury shall be, as far as practicable, disposed of at said intermediate terms. One judge in each of the above circuits, including the second, the third and the sixth circuits, shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business; and the said judges or any of them may hold special terms of their courts, whenever in their discretion the business of the several counties renders such terms necessary.

In the Third Circuit, two of said Associate Judges shall at all times be bona fide residents of Baltimore County, and one of said Associate Judges or the Chief Judge be a bona fide resident of Harford County, and said Judges shall have been such residents six months prior to their appointment or election.

The additional associate judge for the second circuit herein provided for shall be a resident of Cecil County, shall be appointed by the Governor after the expiration of six (6) months after the adoption of this amendment and shall serve until the first general election for members of the General Assembly that shall be held in said circuit subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, at which election his successor shall be elected by the qualified voters of Caroline, Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's and Talbot Counties, constituting the second circuit. The judge so appointed shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the second circuit, and the judge so elected shall be subject to the same constitutional provision, hold his office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation, and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the second circuit.

If, by reason of such a condition or by reason of an equal vote for two or more candidates a sufficient number of associate judges duly qualified as to residence as above set out should not be elected at any election in said sixth judicial circuit, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for such unfilled office or offices.

The additional associate judge for the seventh circuit herein provided for shall be appointed by the Governor immediately after the adoption of this amendment and shall serve until the first general election for members of the General Assembly that shall be held in said circuit subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, at which election his successor shall be elected by the qualified voters of Prince George's, Charles, Calvert and Mary's Counties. No two of the associate judges for the seventh circuit shall at the time of their election or appointment or during the term for which they may have been elected or appointed reside in the same county, except in Prince George's County, in which county two of said associate judges for the said circuit shall reside at the time of their appointment or election and during the term for which they may have been appointed or elected unless the chief judge of said circuit shall already reside in said county, in which event only one of said associate judges shall reside in Prince George's County and Prince George's County shall at all times have two resident Judges and no more, such Judges to be either the Chief Judge of the Seventh Circuit and one associate Judge or two associate Judges of said Circuit. In case any candidate or candidates for associate judge at any judicial election held in the seventh judicial circuit shall receive sufficient votes to cause such candidate or candidates to be elected, but the election of such candidate or candidates would cause more associate judges than herein permitted to reside in any county of said circuit, then and in that event only that candidate or those candidates, as the case may be, residing in said county in the order of the votes received shall be declared elected whose election would provide the permitted number of associate judges from said county and the candidate or candidates, as the case may be, residing in some other county, and not similarly disqualified, who shall have the next highest number of votes in said election shall be declared elected. If, by reason of such a condition or by reason of an equal vote for two or more candidates a sufficient number of associate judges duly qualified as to residence as above set out should not be elected at any election in said sixth judicial circuit, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for such unfilled office or offices.

Sec. 2. PART V-A—PEOPLE'S COURTS.

41-A. There is hereby created a People's Court of Baltimore City. Said Court shall consist originally of a Chief Judge and two Associate Judges; the number of such Judges may thereafter be increased or decreased by the General Assembly by law but no such decrease shall affect the term of any Judge then in office or his right to stand for election for further terms as hereinafter provided. The Judges of said Court shall have the qualifications prescribed by Section 2 of this Article and shall have practiced law in the City of Baltimore for a total period of at least five years; shall hold office subject to the provisions of Sections 3 and 4 of this Article with regard to retirement and removal from office; and shall receive from the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City such compensation as shall be fixed by law by the General Assembly, which shall not be diminished during continuance in office.

The Governor shall appoint to said Court, to take office on the first Monday of May, 1941, one Associate Judge for a term expiring December 31, 1942; one Associate Judge for a term expiring December 31, 1944, and a Chief Judge for a term expiring December 31, 1946; and, upon the creation of any additional office on said Court by increase in the number of Judges pursuant to this Section, shall appoint an Associate Judge for such term, not exceeding eight years and expiring on the thirty-first day of December immediately following a Congressional election as the law creating such office shall prescribe. If any vacancy occurs during any such original term, the Governor shall appoint a successor to serve for the remainder of such term. After the expiration of said original terms, the terms of office of said Court shall be for eight years from the expiration of the preceding term, and shall be filled as follows:

(1) Any incumbent Judge of said Court shall be eligible, at the Congressional election immediately preceding the expiration of his period of appointment or term, for election or re-election to succeed himself (a) for a full term of eight years, except as provided in (b) hereof; or (b) for the unexpired remainder of the current eight year term, if his appointment will expire before the end of such term. No person other than an incumbent Judge shall be eligible for election to said Court.

(2) Whenever a vacancy shall occur on said Court from any cause the Governor shall appoint to said Court a Judge who shall hold office under such appointment until the thirty-first day of December immediately following the next Congressional election occurring six months or more after the date of his appointment. No Judge of said Court, who has stood for election to succeed himself and not been elected, shall thereafter be appointed to said Court, and no Judge of said Court, who has failed to stand for election when eligible, shall be appointed to succeed himself.

(3) In order to qualify for election or re-election as incumbent Judge shall file with the Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore City not later than thirty days before the date of the applicable election a certificate signed and duly acknowledged, stating the basis of his eligibility and the term or remainder of term for which he is eligible for election. Thereupon, the name of such Judge, together with a statement of the term or remainder of term for which he is eligible, shall be placed upon the ballot to be used in said City in such election, with no party designation whatever and with no opposing candidate, with space provided to permit any voter to cast his vote for or against the continuance in office of such Judge; if the votes cast for the continuance in office of such Judge represent a majority of all the votes cast for or against his continuance in office, such Judge shall hold office for the unexpired remainder of the term or for the full term of eight years, as the case may be.

Unless his office shall have been abolished pursuant to this Section, each Judge of said Court shall continue to hold office after the expiration of his period of appointment or term until a successor shall have been elected. As used in this Section, "Congressional election" means any of the biennial elections at which members of the House of Representatives are regularly chosen.

Said Court shall have such jurisdiction (which may be made exclusive as to any class or classes of civil cases in Baltimore City), with such right of appeal, therefrom, and the Chief Judge and Associate Judges thereof shall have such powers and duties, as the General Assembly shall prescribe from time to time by law. The Judges of said Court shall have full power to regulate by rules the administration, procedure and practice of said Court; such rules shall have the force of law until rescinded or modified by said Judges or the General Assembly. Unless otherwise provided by law, (1) all powers granted by this Section or by law to said Court or the Judges thereof as a body may be exercised by a majority of the Judges thereof, and (2) said Court shall not be a Court of Record.

There shall be a Chief Constable of said Court, who shall perform therein the duties prescribed for Clerks of Court by Section 10 of this Article and such other duties as shall be prescribed by law or by rule of said Court. Such Chief Constable shall be appointed, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, by the Judges of said Court; and such Chief Constable shall appoint, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, all original and subsequent additional constables and clerks employed pursuant to this Section, and shall supervise and direct the work of all such constables and clerks. There shall be appointed originally fourteen such constables and sixteen such clerks; the number of either may, on the joint recommendation of said Court and said Chief Constable, be increased by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City; no vacancy in the position of any constable or clerk, however arising, shall be filled by said Chief Constable unless the Judges of said Court and said Chief Constable shall expressly find that the filling of such vacancy is necessary for the efficient operation of said Court. The positions of said Chief Constable and of all such constables and clerks shall be positions in the Classified City Service of Baltimore and the provisions of the Charter of said City with respect to said City Service are hereby expressly made applicable thereto, provided that the Chief Constable at the time this amendment shall become effective shall continue and remain in said position and immediately become a member of said Classified City Service of Baltimore; all such positions shall be classified by the City Service Commission and all appointments, promotions, transfers, reinstatements, and removals with respect to such positions shall be made only in accordance with the provisions, rules and regulations of said Classified City Service from time to time.

Such Chief Constable and all of such other constables and all such clerks shall receive from the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City such compensation as said Mayor and City Council shall prescribe. Such constables and clerks shall perform such duties as may now or hereafter be prescribed by law or rule of court.

After adoption of this Section no constable shall be appointed by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City pursuant to Section 42 or Section 43 of this Article IV, but constables in office upon the adoption of this Section shall hold office for the remainder of their terms, and the constables first appointed under this Section shall take office at the expiration of such terms.

41B. The General Assembly shall have power by law to establish a People's Court in any county, or any part thereof, incorporated or unincorporated, in this State, except Baltimore City, and to prescribe and from time to time to alter (1) the number, qualifications, tenure, and method of selection of the Judges of any such Court, and their powers, duties and compensation, except that the term of office or compensation of any Judge shall not be reduced during his continuance in office; (2) the jurisdiction of any such Court (which may be made exclusive as to any class or classes of civil cases in such county, or any part thereof, city or town) and the right of appeal therefrom; (3) the number, qualifications, tenure, method of selection, duties, and compensation of all constables, clerks or other employees for such Court; and (4) all other matters relating to such Court. After adoption of this Section the Governor shall not be required to appoint any particular number of Justices of the Peace in any county or in any of the several election districts of the counties as now provided in Section 42 of this Article IV.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the aforegoing sections hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland shall, at the election to be held in November, 1940, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of the directions contained in Article XIV of the Constitution of the State of Maryland and at the said General Election the vote on the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be printed the following synopsis of said amendment captioned as follows:

Unless otherwise provided by law, (1) all powers granted by this Section or by law to said Court or the Judges thereof as a body may be exercised by a majority of the Judges thereof, and (2) said Court shall not be a Court of Record.

There shall be a Chief Constable of said Court, who shall perform therein the duties prescribed for Clerks of Court by Section 10 of this Article and such other duties as shall be prescribed by law or by rule of said Court. Such Chief Constable shall be appointed, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, by the Judges of said Court; and such Chief Constable shall appoint, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, all original and subsequent additional constables and clerks employed pursuant to this Section, and shall supervise and direct the work of all such constables and clerks. There shall be appointed originally fourteen such constables and sixteen such clerks; the number of either may, on the joint recommendation of said Court and said Chief Constable, be increased by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City; no vacancy in the position of any constable or clerk, however arising, shall be filled by said Chief Constable unless the Judges of said Court and said Chief Constable shall expressly find that the filling of such vacancy is necessary for the efficient operation of said Court. The positions of said Chief Constable and of all such constables and clerks shall be positions in the Classified City Service of Baltimore and the provisions of the Charter of said City with respect to said City Service are hereby expressly made applicable thereto, provided that the Chief Constable at the time this amendment shall become effective shall continue and remain in said position and immediately become a member of said Classified City Service of Baltimore; all such positions shall be classified by the City Service Commission and all appointments, promotions, transfers, reinstatements, and removals with respect to such positions shall be made only in accordance with the provisions, rules and regulations of said Classified City Service from time to time.

Such Chief Constable and all of such other constables and all such clerks shall receive from the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City such compensation as said Mayor and City Council shall prescribe. Such constables and clerks shall perform such duties as may now or hereafter be prescribed by law or rule of court.

After adoption of this Section no constable shall be appointed by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City pursuant to Section 42 or Section 43 of this Article IV, but constables in office upon the adoption of this Section shall hold office for the remainder of their terms, and the constables first appointed under this Section shall take office at the expiration of such terms.

41B. The General Assembly shall have power by law to establish a People's Court in any county, or any part thereof, incorporated or unincorporated, in this State, except Baltimore City, and to prescribe and from time to time to alter (1) the number, qualifications, tenure, and method of selection of the Judges of any such Court, and their powers, duties and compensation, except that the term of office or compensation of any Judge shall not be reduced during his continuance in office; (2) the jurisdiction of any such Court (which may be made exclusive as to any class or classes of civil cases in such county, or any part thereof, city or town) and the right of appeal therefrom; (3) the number, qualifications, tenure, method of selection, duties, and compensation of all constables, clerks or other employees for such Court; and (4) all other matters relating to such Court. After adoption of this Section the Governor shall not be required to appoint any particular number of Justices of the Peace in any county or in any of the several election districts of the counties as now provided in Section 42 of this Article IV.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the aforegoing sections hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland shall, at the election to be held in November, 1940, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of the directions contained in Article XIV of the Constitution of the State of Maryland and at the said General Election the vote on the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be printed the following synopsis of said amendment captioned as follows:

Germans Drinking Only Near Beer

Brew Like That in U. S. during Prohibition Is Now Served

By SCOTT HERSHEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—American beer-drinkers who remember back in the prohibition era when the brewers, with an opologetic air, introduced something they were pleased to call near-beer, know how a lot of Germans feel today.

A dispatch from Berlin said that the Germans — beer-drinkers by tradition—now are drinking something that "looks like beer, tastes like beer and contains the same ingredients—except alcohol."

Remember the less than one-half of one percent brews of prohibition days?

Anyway, the dispatch aroused nostalgic memories and somebody recalled that most beer drinkers contended that the near beer of the time wasn't even close—and that whoever named it was a poor judge of distance.

Among others who studied the Berlin dispatch was the brewers' board of trade. A spokesman for the board—which represents most of the major brewers of the country—said it was the considered opinion of the board that "it's the bunk" and furthermore that the new brew wasn't beer.

"Taking beer away from a German," the spokesman said, "is like taking a bottle away from a baby," adding that the results in both cases were likely to be about the same.

"Everybody in Germany drinks beer," he continued, "even children drink a mild brew and you can imagine how they are going to feel when it is suddenly taken away from them."

The process of making near-beer, is precisely that of making beer, except that at the conclusion of the regular process the beer is again heated — "which ruins it," the board spokesman said, and the alcohol is drawn off.

What is left, he contended is what the Germans are getting — "and it's not beer."

TRAPPED BY FILMS

Mrs. Elsie Feinstein

Mrs. Elsie Feinstein, widow of gangster slain while trying to "go straight," was arrested in New York on perjury charge, trapped by a reel of home-made movies. Although she had declared she had never met them, the film purportedly show her romping on the beach with the men now accused of slaying her husband.

In 1794 the Pennsylvania legislature passed an act providing that any person over 16 years old blaspheming, cursing or profaning the name of Almighty God should be fined sixty-seven cents or be confined in the house of correction for twenty-four hours.

Louis A. Johnson Urges Hard Work To Speed Defense

Former Assistant Secretary of War Speaks in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7 (AP)—Louis A. Johnson, former assistant secretary of war, urged America to "work, work, and work more" for national defense and hemispheric unity in a speech Tuesday before the national association of broadcasters in convention here.

In his first public appearance since quitting the war department, Johnson said, "we must build up our armaments, tighten up our belts, give unstintingly x x x to get this job done."

"An unprepared America may mean the end of civilization," he declared. "We have a sacred trust. We dare not fail."

He called upon the radio broadcasters, as "expert phrase and slogan makers," to coin a national motto to remind the people repeatedly in programs over the air "of the necessity for national teamwork."

In his plea for unity and strength to command world respect, the former assistant war secretary expounded the need for laying aside individual differences of opinion and personal ambitions, fostering a respect for the "dignity of labor," especially in mechanical skills, for discipline and tolerance, and ideals of our American forefathers—justice, freedom, democracy and loyalty.

Life in America is not perfect," he continued, "but do you know of anything that is better anywhere in the world? x x x Compare the blessings we are enjoying right here in this room with what other countries have to offer.

"Unless we become strong, we may be thrown back into a darker age when the simplest of rights that we now take for granted will be lost perhaps for generations. We must therefore acquire national unity."

Speaking on hemispheric solidarity, Johnson asserted that cultural differences between Anglo-Saxon and Latin peoples were insignificant beside the "common aspiration for freedom that transcends language or custom."

"Let us act, talk and think," he urged, "in terms of hemispheric solidarity."

Penal Experts and Judge To Speak at Conference

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP)—Two penal experts and a jurist will make addresses at the second annual conference on governmental problems at Marshall college October 30.

Judge Justin Miller of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, F. Lovell Bixby, head of the United States parole and probation service and warden of the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, O.; and Richard Chappell, editor of the magazine "Probation," will participate in the conference.

Dr. Conley H. Dillon, associate professor of political science, and director of the conference, said "Justice in Democracy" will be the general theme.

L. R. Via, United States district attorney with headquarters here will lead a roundtable discussion at the conclave on "Criminal Law Administration in the United States."

Judge Miller is the former dean of the law schools of Stanford and Duke universities and is a past president of the American Bar Association.

Price Schedules Out

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Mailing of minimum price schedules to coal producers has been completed, the Bituminous coal division announced today, and preparations are being made to issue rules and regulations and findings of facts. Director Howard A. Gray said he expected to release the findings of facts immediately after the market rules are issued.

Old Age Catching Up with Beetles

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP) — Old age is rapidly catching up with Maryland's 1940 Japanese beetle horde, and they'll all be in their "graves" before many more weeks, Dr. Ernest N. Cory of the University of Maryland said today.

Most of the beetles will be gone about Aug. 15, said Cory, university entomologist, and only a few of the hardier pests will remain by Sept. 1.

"The beetles that manage to hang on until September 1 will be scattered over the state," Cory declared, "and they'll all be so old they won't be strong enough to get around to see one another.

Beetle destruction reached its peak between July 25 and Aug. 2, during the recent heat wave, Cory observed.

The hotter it is, the more the beetles eat," he said.

Beetles are usually almost gone by now, but due to a late spring, the pests didn't get around to maturity until some time later, Cory pointed out.

3,000 Get Work in Canning Factories

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Aug. 7 (AP) — Somerset county's fifteen tomato canning factories, employing more than 3,000 persons, began operating at full capacity this week to pack this season's great tomato crop.

The larger canneries employ upwards of 250 persons, while smaller plants have less than 100.

Factory workers are paid an average of six to seven cents per bucket for peeling the tomatoes and some of the best "peelers" check in forty-five or more buckets per day.

Capacity of the fifteen county canneries is approximately 65,000 baskets per day, or slightly less than 5,000, ⅝-bushel baskets per day for each plant.

Somerset farmers receive an average price of twelve cents per basket, or $7.20 per ton of sixty baskets.

Production estimates during the present peak run for the county's most important summer crop show that between 900,000 and 1,000,000 No. 2 cans of tomatoes are being filled and processed daily. The standard No. 2 can contains one pound, two ounces, net.

All Uncle Sam's Children Have Fun When They Visit His National Parks

AP Feature Service

More than 15,500,000 persons visit the preserves of the United States National Park Service every year—and have a lot of fun. Not all the playgrounds have snow in summer, as does Rocky Mountain National Park, in Colorado, where these pictures were taken, but they all have their special attractions—especially in this See America year. Here are some of the ways girls (and guys) carry on in Colorado:

SNOW BOWLING: It's just like in door bowling except that each player gets only one shot, each person in the crowd trying to knock down as many pins as possible. That's not easy, because bowling balls don't roll very handily in the snow.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBING: This is a sport in which visitors sometimes overreach themselves. They get too high, then rangers have to rescue them, as Jack Moomaw is doing here.

MASS RIDING: Three gals on a horse, especially when it's a patient paint, may not get very far, but there's safety in numbers.

AND BEING DAFFY: Often the parks stage celebration, and the visitor can do as he pleases. This is Mrs. Lyman Byxby, wife of an artist, rehearsing to play a cave woman role.

Germans Drinking Only Near Beer

Brew Like That in U. S. during Prohibition Is Now Served

By SCOTT HERSHEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—American beer-drinkers who remember back in the prohibition era when the brewers, with an opologetic air, introduced something they were pleased to call near-beer, know how a lot of Germans feel today.

A dispatch from Berlin said that the Germans — beer-drinkers by tradition—now are drinking something that "looks like beer, tastes like beer and contains the same ingredients—except alcohol."

Remember the less than one-half of one percent brews of prohibition days?

Anyway, the dispatch aroused nostalgic memories and somebody recalled that most beer drinkers contended that the near beer of the time wasn't even close—and that whoever named it was a poor judge of distance.

Among others who studied the Berlin dispatch was the brewers' board of trade. A spokesman for the board—which represents most of the major brewers of the country—said it was the considered opinion of the board that "it's the bunk" and furthermore that the new brew wasn't beer.

"Taking beer away from a German," the spokesman said, "is like taking a bottle away from a baby," adding that the results in both cases were likely to be about the same.

"Everybody in Germany drinks beer," he continued, "even children drink a mild brew and you can imagine how they are going to feel when it is suddenly taken away from them."

The process of making near-beer, is precisely that of making beer, except that at the conclusion of the regular process the beer is again heated — "which ruins it," the board spokesman said, and the alcohol is drawn off.

What is left, he contended is what the Germans are getting — "and it's not beer."

TRAPPED BY FILMS

Mrs. Elsie Feinstein

Mrs. Elsie Feinstein, widow of gangster slain while trying to "go straight," was arrested in New York on perjury charge, trapped by a reel of home-made movies. Although she had declared she had never met them, the film purportedly show her romping on the beach with the men now accused of slaying her husband.

In 1794 the Pennsylvania legislature passed an act providing that any person over 16 years old blaspheming, cursing or profaning the name of Almighty God should be fined sixty-seven cents or be confined in the house of correction for twenty-four hours.

Louis A. Johnson Urges Hard Work To Speed Defense

Former Assistant Secretary of War Speaks in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7 (AP)—Louis A. Johnson, former assistant secretary of war, urged America to "work, work, and work more" for national defense and hemispheric unity in a speech Tuesday before the national association of broadcasters in convention here.

In his first public appearance since quitting the war department, Johnson said, "we must build up our armaments, tighten up our belts, give unstintingly x x x to get this job done."

"An unprepared America may mean the end of civilization," he declared. "We have a sacred trust. We dare not fail."

He called upon the radio broadcasters, as "expert phrase and slogan makers," to coin a national motto to remind the people repeatedly in programs over the air "of the necessity for national teamwork."

In his plea for unity and strength to command world respect, the former assistant war secretary expounded the need for laying aside individual differences of opinion and personal ambitions, fostering a respect for the "dignity of labor," especially in mechanical skills, for discipline and tolerance, and ideals of our American forefathers—justice, freedom, democracy and loyalty.

Life in America is not perfect," he continued, "but do you know of anything that is better anywhere in the world? x x x Compare the blessings we are enjoying right here in this room with what other countries have to offer.

"Unless we become strong, we may be thrown back into a darker age when the simplest of rights that we now take for granted will be lost perhaps for generations. We must therefore acquire national unity."

Speaking on hemispheric solidarity, Johnson asserted that cultural differences between Anglo-Saxon and Latin peoples were insignificant beside the "common aspiration for freedom that transcends language or custom."

"Let us act, talk and think," he urged, "in terms of hemispheric solidarity."

Mt. Parnassus, in Greece, was the legendary home of Apollo.

Penal Experts and Judge To Speak at Conference

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP)—Two penal experts and a jurist will make addresses at the second annual conference on governmental problems at Marshall college October 30.

Judge Justin Miller of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, F. Lovell Bixby, head of the United States parole and probation service and warden of the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, O.; and Richard Chappell, editor of the magazine "Probation," will participate in the conference.

Dr. Conley H. Dillon, associate professor of political science, and director of the conference, said "Justice in Democracy" will be the general theme.

L. R. Via, United States district attorney with headquarters here, will lead a roundtable discussion at the conclave on "Criminal Law Administration in the United States."

Judge Miller is the former dean of the law schools of Stanford and Duke universities and is a past president of the American Bar Association.

Price Schedules Out

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Mailing of minimum price schedules to coal producers has been completed, the Bituminous coal division announced today, and preparations are being made to issue rules and regulations and findings of facts. Director Howard A. Gray said he expected to release the findings of facts immediately after the market rules are issued.

Old Age Catching Up with Beetles

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP) — Old age is rapidly catching up with Maryland's 1940 Japanese beetle horde, and they'll all be in their "graves" before many more weeks, Dr. Ernest N. Cory of the University of Maryland said today.

Most of the beetles will be gone about Aug. 15, said Cory, university entomologist, and only a few of the hardier pests will remain by Sept. 1.

"The beetles that manage to hang on until September 1 will be scattered over the state," Cory declared, "and they'll all be so old they won't be strong enough to get around to see one another.

"So they'll start talking to themselves, and die eventually, of loneliness."

Beetle destruction reached its peak between July 25 and Aug. 2, during the recent heat wave, Cory observed.

The hotter it is, the more the beetles eat," he said.

Beetles are usually almost gone by now, but due to a late spring, the pests didn't get around to maturity until some time later, Cory pointed out.

16 Greene St., Cumberland, Md.

The object of this suit is to recover the possession of certain lots or parcels of land situated in Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, which were in possession of The Johns Hopkins University, a corporation.

The declaration recites that on the first day of July, 1940, The Johns Hopkins University, a corporation, was in possession at Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, of certain lots or parcels of land fronting on George or Georges Street in the City of Cumberland, and which are particularly described in said declaration, and that the said Charles S. Dickinson did on the first day of July, 1940, at Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, wrongfully enter said lots or parcels of land and eject the said The Johns Hopkins University, a corporation, therefrom and ever since has retained and still retains possession of the said lots or parcels of land, and other wrongs to the said The Johns Hopkins University, a corporation, then and there did to great damage.

And the said The Johns Hopkins University, a corporation, claims the recovery of said lots or parcels of land; that no person is in actual possession of the premises, lots or parcels of land described in the declaration, and that the whereabouts of the said Charles S. Dickinson is unknown.

It is thereupon this 31st day of July, 1940, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, ordered that the Plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once each week for three (3) successive weeks give notice to the said Charles S. Dickinson, of the object of the suit and of the substance of the declaration, warning him to appear and defend the said action on or before the 24th day of August, 1940.

16 Greene St., Cumberland, Md.

The object of this suit is to recover the possession of certain lots or parcels of land situated in Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, which were in possession of The Johns Hopkins University, a corporation.

The declaration recites that on the first day of July, 1940, The Johns Hopkins University, a corporation, was in possession at Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, of certain lots or parcels of land fronting on George or Georges Street in the City of Cumberland, and which are particularly described in said declaration, and that the said Charles S. Dickinson did on the first day of July, 1940, at Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, wrongfully enter said lots or parcels of land and eject the said The Johns Hopkins University, a corporation, therefrom and ever since has retained and still retains possession of the said lots or parcels of land, and other wrongs to the said The Johns Hopkins University, a corporation, then and there did it great damage.

And the said The Johns Hopkins University, a corporation, claims the recovery of said lots or parcels of land, that no person is in actual possession of the premises, lots or parcels of land described in the declaration, and that the whereabouts of the said Charles S. Dickinson is unknown.

It is thereupon this 31st day of July, 1940, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, ordered that the Plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once each week for three (3) successive weeks, give notice to the said Charles S. Dickinson, of the object of the suit and of the substance of the declaration, warning him to appear and defend the said action on or before the 24th day of August, 1940.

CMTC Trainee Describes Life at Camp Meade

General Unpreparedness of Army Clearly Emphasized, Says William R. Carscaden

The 237 professional and business men who attended the Citizens Military Training Camp at Fort George G. Meade July 5 to Aug. 3 proved that they "could take it," a young Cumberland attorney reported yesterday.

"Their spirit was better than their physical conditions but they were cheerful even when their feet were killing them," William R. Carscaden, of 416 Paca street, declared in reporting on the first event of this sort ever conducted at Fort Meade.

The average age of the trainees at the camp was thirty-seven. Included among the number were two members of the New York Stock Exchange, a member of the Philadelphia Supreme Court, forty-six lawyers, seventy-eight World War veterans, (seventeen of whom held commissions) plump businessmen, lean businessmen and a number of school teachers.

Started Off Nice

"It was pretty nice the first day," Carscaden recalled. "When we got there the regular enlisted men took our bags, showed us around and acted as our valets. But that didn't last long. Before we got through we were saluting most everybody we met.

"We soon learned not to do anything until we were told to do it. I made my bed up one morning before I was supposed to and got bawled out for it. I had to unmake it and then make it all over again at the proper time. Another thing we learned was never to ask 'why' when we were told to do something.

"The first day each man was issued four uniforms including a fatigue outfit for the rifle range, meneuvers when we had to crawl on the ground and for night bivouacs. We got a pair of marching shoes and a pair of dress shoes, eight pairs of sox, mess kits, canteens, a rain coat and a Springfield rifle.

"We slept in the old barracks, frame shacks, with twenty on a floor. There were two floors and no partitions.

Food Fine

"We had to get up at 5:10 a. m. and be dressed, washed up and shaved and ready to fall in line right on the dot at 6. Then we would have calisthenics for a half hour. After that we had breakfast. The food, by the way, was tops. It was good stuff. Meat was always tender and everything was very well-cooked. And there was lots of it."

After that the boys went to work. Carscaden said he was particularly impressed with the way the men handled their rifles. Many of them had never used a gun prior to their arrival at the camp. Yet, seventy-five per cent of the outfit qualified as marksmen before they got through including Carscaden.

"They showed they could shoot," Carscaden said. He explained they had three days preliminary practice before they got down to serious work. But it was hot, tiring work. One day the temperature jumped to the 114 degree mark while the recruits popped away at their targets on the rifle range.

Retired Early

Carscaden admitted most of the men would be completely fagged out after a day of army life. The boys got through work at 4:30 p. m.

"After we got through we ate supper and then went to bed," Carscaden said. "We were always in bed by 8 p. m. No, you didn't have to go to bed at that time. You just did, that was all. The line always formed the next day at 6 a. m., you know. Sometimes, we would swim, play volleyball or baseball for awhile before going to bed.

"We always had a forum session after dinner on Monday nights. Various men in the camp gave talks and also members of the regular army. The only subjects discussed were of a military nature. There wasn't any politics or anything like that."

Commenting on the work the officers in charge cut out for the trainees, Carscaden said "there wasn't any doubt but what they had it all planned before we got there. The officers were all fine men and impressed everybody.

"One night when we had to fight a battle we marched from 7 p. m. to 8:15 p. m. until we reached the battle ground. Then we fought until 11:15 p. m., before we formed to retire for the night. It was just like an actual battle.

"We were supposed to pitch tents before lying down and going to sleep. I was with another fellow. We were both so tired we just laid down and went to sleep in the middle of a field. We got up at 4 a. m.

Dig 'Fox Holes'

"One thing they showed us was how to get out of the way of a tank," Carscaden said. "To do this you dig what they call a 'fox hole.' Its just round enough to crawl into and the depth should be up to your shoulders. When you crawl in a tank can't get at you. It may throw dirt in on top of you, but it can't hurt you."

Tanks interested Carscaden particularly. Between sixty and seventy modern light tanks were exhibited at Fort Meade for the recruits. They would travel fifty miles an hour. Traveling at twenty-five miles an hour, a tank would clip off a tree eight inches in diameter.

The Cumberland recruit took a ride in a tank. Asked to describe the tank and his feelings while inside

Dr. E. N. Cory, Entomologist, Sets August 15 as Funeral Date

Dr. Ernest N. Cory, University of Maryland entomologist, calling his shots on Japanese beetles, predicts that the majority of the pesky copper-tinted invaders will have passed from Maryland come August 15.

By September 5, Dr. Cory added, only a few stragglers will be left.

"The beetles that manage to hang on until September 1," Dr. Cory declared, "will be scattered over the state and they'll all be so old they won't be strong enough to get around to see one another. So they'll start talking to themselves, and die eventually, of loneliness."

Dr. Cory said beetle destruction reached its peak between July 25 and August 2, during the hot spell. "The hotter it is," he said, "the more the beetles eat."

He added however, that even though another long heat spell comes the beetles won't be able to last any longer than the funeral date he's arranged for them.

The beetles usually get the skids about the third or fourth day of August, but this year, because they were late in starting their feast of Maryland vegetation and flowers, they are hanging on a bit longer, Dr. Cory stated.

30 Policyholders Consult Actuary

Calvert F. Stein Says He Is Amazed at Response Shown Here

Holders of policies aggregating $65,000 visited the city hall auditorium yesterday and received advice on insurance matters free of charge from Calvert F. Stein, of Baltimore, actuary for the State Insurance Department of Maryland.

Mr. Stein, who was sent to Cumberland by John B. Gontrum, state insurance commissioner, at the request of the Cumberland Life Underwriters Association, said that he interviewed holders of thirty policies between 10 a. m., and 5 p. m., and was amazed at the response shown by people in the county.

While 10,000 inquiries are made yearly in Baltimore by policyholders, Mr. Stein said that this is the first time that an actuary of the State Insurance department had come to Cumberland to give advice.

Information unavailable yesterday will be furnished policyholders Wednesday, August 21, when Mr. Stein makes his second visit here. An actuary from Baltimore also will be at the city hall September 4 and 18.

Celanese Reports Net Profits Gain

$4,522,580 Is Net for Six Months and $7,868,906 for Year

The Celanese Corporation of America and wholly owned subsidiaries, reports a net profit of $4,522,580 for the first six months ended June 30, 1940. This compares with a net profit of $3,027,774 in the corresponding period of 1939.

For the twelve months ending June 30, 1940, the net profit amounted to $7,868,906 as against $4,976,198 in 1939.

After dividend requirements on the preferred stocks, earnings for the half years are equal to $2.86 a share on 1,076,891 shares of common stock to be outstanding after issuance of the August 15 dividend. This compares with $173 on a share on 1,000,000 shares in the corresponding period of 1939.

From this amount, company officials said, must be deducted excess profits taxes and other taxes not yet ascertained.

Dr. Camille Dreyfus, president of the company, in presenting a report to the stockholders of the half-year period said "the demand for the company's products continues in excess of capacity to produce."

"Of particular interest to our stockholders at this time," he adds, "is the company's business in Celanese fabrics for evening wear."

Cumberland Men Put Out Map of New Super-Highway

Cumberland motorists planning a drive over the new Pittsburgh-Harrisburgh super-highway some time in the near future should be interested in the map of the engineering marvel recently produced by R. H. deGrange, draftsman who recently completed a modern map of Allegany county.

Mr. deGrange in conjunction with J. H. Winebrenner, of Cumberland, have put out an exact, artistic map of the dream highway copiously embellished with interesting and informative sketches and items of general information.

The map of the great seventy million dollar highway is condensed and easy to handle. People who have been following the highway project should find a study of the drawing most interesting.

Bodies of Detroit Youths Will Be Taken to Detroit

One of Drowning Victims Was Born at Moscow, Allegany County

The bodies of two twenty-year-old Detroit chums who drowned Thursday evening in the South Branch of the Potomac river near Romney, W. Va., yesterday were removed to Boal's funeral home in Westernport and will probably be shipped to Detroit tonight.

The victims are Francis Wiland, of 4642 Springle avenue, Detroit, and Harry Ross Pearson, of 13940 Mack avenue, Detroit.

Both Become Exhausted

The tragedy occurred around 6:45 p. m. Tuesday near the wire bridge seven miles from Romney on West Virginia Route 28. Pearson went to the rescue of his friend when Wiland floundered while attempting to swim across the river, a distance of seventy-five yards. Pearson became exhausted after frantic efforts and both sank before another member of their swimming party could reach them.

The swimming party consisted of the two victims, Joseph Eloot, also of Detroit, who was visiting Wiland's cousin, Miss Winifred Wiland, of Moscow, Miss Wiland, Miss Nellie Meese and Miss Elizabeth Yates, of Moscow, and Miss Geneva Hyde, of Barton.

The party arrived at the river just fifteen minutes before the tragedy occurred, bringing their lunch. They decided to take a swim before eating.

Wiland Born at Moscow

Wiland, who was the oldest son, is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wiland, of Detroit and was a native of Moscow this county. His parents moved to Detroit where Francis was a boy. His mother was the former Miss Madeline Green of Moscow. He was a graduate of a Detroit high school and was an attendant of a gasoline station of the Zip Oil company there.

He is survived by three brothers Bernard, Joseph and William Wiland, all of Detroit, and five sisters, Mary Madaline, Margaret, Theresa, Ellen and Barbara, all of Detroit.

Pearson was formerly employed as an apprentice tool maker with a factory which has discontinued business.

He was a son of Guy Pearson, Detroit, and is also survived by two brothers, Edward and Homer Pearson, and four sisters, Thelma, Goldie, Frances and Mrs. Frank Koppinger, all of Detroit.

His body will be taken to the Cooper Brothers Funeral parlors at Detroit and later taken to Tallahoma, Tenn., to be buried beside his mother there.

The visitors arrived at Moscow, Sunday, and expected to remain until Friday.

Allegany Fruit Growers To Attend District Meeting

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 7 (AP)—The first annual conference of fruit growers from four states in this region will be held here tomorrow beginning at 9:30 a. m. for a discussion of water conservation in orchards.

"Representatives are expected from Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland, in addition to conservation specialists from the four state experiment stations, and United States Department of Agriculture officials.

Harry Weigle of Adams county, Pennsylvania, who will act as chairman of the meeting, said farmers other than orchardists had also been invited to attend because much land not in orchards is also affected by lack of water and losses due to excessive run-off.

For many years fruit growers of the Cumberland-Shenandoah fruit belt have suffered heavy damage due to drought, soil erosion and fertility losses.

One of the principal speakers will be G. William Gardenhour, chairman of the Washington County Board of Conservation District Supervisors, who will talk on "my experiences and observations with contour planted and terraced orchards."

Harris Gives Timely Suggestions during Influx of Strangers

With the influx of a large number of strangers in the city and county, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris last evening made the following timely suggestions to residents, merchants, those renting rooms and car owners:

Don't go away from your home and leave any doors unlocked.

Don't go away from your home and leave the cellar windows unlocked even though screened.

Don't leave any first or second story windows open or unlocked.

If away from home at night leave the light burning—it's the best policeman in the world.

Don't cash any checks for strangers — they may bounce back.

Be careful of strangers who engage rooms.

Don't fail to lock up jewelry and other valuables. The proper place is in a safe deposit vault.

Don't leave auto keys in the ignition switch.

Willkie May Make Brief Talk Here In October

Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for the presidency, is expected to give a brief talk in Cumberland when he passes through by train on his campaign tour some time in October, J. Glenn Beall, coordinating chairman of the Allegany county G.O.P. campaign committee, announces.

Former State Senator Beall indicated that Mr. Willkie is expected to make a brief stop here and will talk from the platform of the train.

Beall, who served as county campaign manager for Harry W. Nice in the recent primary for the United States Senatorial nomination, also said that the former governor of Maryland will attend the Cumberland Fair Association races Friday, August 16, and will present a trophy to the owner of a winning horse in one of the feature races.

Former Governor Nice defeated William Broening, of Baltimore, for the United States Senate nomination, winning by more than a two to one margin in Allegany county. He will oppose George L. Radcliffe, Democratic incumbent, in the general election in November.

125 Properties Advertised by Tax Collector

Delinquent Taxpayers Are Warned That Old Taxes Must Be Paid

County Tax Collector Alban C. Thompson yesterday started cracking down on delinquent taxpayers as he advertised 125 properties representing a total of $12,227 in unpaid taxes.

"And there will be more to come unless people pay up," Thompson grimly announced at the court house citing the fact that approximately $85,000 in unpaid 1939 taxes are still listed on the tax books.

In all, there is approximately $125,000 in unpaid taxes on the books including some $40,000 still owing from 1935 to 1938 inclusive.

"I intend to start after the taxes still owing from '35 to '38 around Sept. 1 unless they are paid," Thompson said.

Commenting on the drive launched to collect the 1939 indebtedness to the county, Thompson stated, "I hereby serve warning to every person, corporation and company, owing 1939 taxes, that they must be paid at once or I intend to advertise according to law, all tax delinquent property. This means everyone. There will not be any exceptions and I do not intend to write any letters of warning before I advertise."

July collections amounted to $49,717.70, the tax collector announced yesterday.

"That was pretty good," Thompson said pointing out that collections for this July were slightly better than July, 1938, when $48,000 was collected.

Maryland Young GOP Favors Conscription In Some Form

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP)—The Maryland Federation of Young Republicans announced today its support of "some form of conscription," asserting the nation now is "inadequately prepared to carry out our commitments to enforce the Monroe doctrine, let alone the defense of the continental United States."

Over the signature of Charles H. Cover, federational president, and Harry L. Katz, executive committee chairman, the statement declared "this is not the time to play politics" and said "the spectacle in congress of name-calling while the future welfare of this nation is at stake is calculated to reflect upon our democratic processes in time of emergency."

The statement speculated on whether "there is time left" for men and equipment to defend the country and said:

"The lessons of history have shown that the volunteer system for military service is doomed to failure. Our potential enemies ignore such system, and some of them begin training men in their childhood for military service . . .

"There are many Rip Van Winkles in Washington who have been asleep at the switch the past few years. . . . Others are still sleeping. . . . Politics must be subordinated to the welfare of the country if we are to prepare ourselves to preserve our American way of life."

Negroes Arrested For Larceny of Fur Jackets

State and County Officers Round Up Four in $400 Shoplifting Job

A quartet of negroes who apparently were doing their Christmas "shoplifting" early were apprehended yesterday at Clarksburg, W. Va., by Cumberland and Allegany county officers and returned to this city to face charges of stealing furs valued at $400 from the display rooms of two local stores.

Three of the persons involved in the fur-shoplifting job were women and gave their names as Elsie Jones, of New York City, Sadie Parker and Mary Lee, both of Charleston, W. Va. The fourth member of the group placed in the county jail last night was Donald Hurse, who gave New York city as his home address.

Charged with Larceny

Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, stated that the quartet has been charged with grand larceny and are being held for a hearing.

Traveling in a 1939 Buick sedan which carried a New York license, the negroes came to Cumberland Saturday, August 3, on a shopping tour in the business district.

According to the state's attorney the group first visited Lazarus's store, 55 Baltimore street, and told the saleslady who waited upon them that they desired to look at some silver fox jackets. They failed to make a purchase but after they left the store, the management discovered that a silver fox jacket, valued at $200 had suddenly disappeared. Police were immediately informed.

Then, according to State's Attorney Harris, the group of shoppers visited Martin's store, 33 North Liberty street, informing a clerk that they wished to see something in silver fox fur jackets. The negroes walked out without making a purchase but after they departed it was learned that a fur coat at that establishment also had taken "wings." The management of this store notified police of their loss of a $200 fur jacket.

Arrested in Clarksburg

Investigation into the whereabouts of the shoplifters led the city and county officers to Clarksburg, W. Va., where Sheriff Lucian Radcliffe, County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and Detective B. Frank Gaffney journeyed to nab the four negroes and placed them under arrest. Both fur coats were recovered by the officers and the car in which the shoplifters were traveling was also returned to Cumberland.

When questioned by State's Attorney Harris yesterday, the negroes admitted the thefts.

Officers said the same four had extended their shoplifting activities to Grafton, W. Va.

Couple Escapes Injury in Crash On Valley Road

Big Sedan Plunges 30 Feet Down Steep Embankment

A young Cumberland couple last night miraculously escaped injury when their big sedan sideswiped another car, plowed through a guard-rail and plunged down a thirty-foot embankment into a creek.

The accident occurred shortly before midnight on the Valley road near Miller's lime kiln when the car driven by Marshall J. Barton, of Cresaptown, sideswiped the car driven by William M. Goldsborough, of R. D. 3, Cumberland.

Barton, a young Celanese employe, was coming down the hill towards Cumberland when he claims the lights of Goldsborough's car blinded him. His big sedan grazed Goldsborough's rear fender, careened through the guardrail and dropped thirty feet into the creek bed.

With Barton was Miss Anne Hobell, of 204 Fulton street. The car landed right side up and apparently was not badly damaged. No glass was broken.

When Miss Hobell climbed out of the sedan she took a look at the steep embankment and started to cry. While uninjured, she was thoroughly upset and refused to climb up the bank to the road.

Cruisermen James Kelley and James J. Condon arrived a few minutes later, persuaded Miss Hobell to leave the creek bed.

Several dozen spectators quickly gathered including Police Commissioner James Orr and Detective Robert E. Flynn. Most of the spectators kept staring at the steep bank and the car down below in the creek bed.

Barton, who received a slight bump on the head, and Miss Hobell started for home a few minutes after the accident as did Goldsborough, an employe of the B. and O. railroad who was on his way home from work.

CMTC Trainee Describes Life at Camp Meade

General Unpreparedness of Army Clearly Emphasized, Says William R. Carscaden

The 237 professional and business men who attended the Citizens Military Training Camp at Fort George G. Meade July 5 to Aug. 3 proved that they "could take it," a young Cumberland attorney reported yesterday.

"Their spirit was better than their physical conditions but they were cheerful even when their feet were killing them," William R. Carscaden, of 416 Paca street, declared in reporting on the first event of this sort ever conducted at Fort Meade.

The average age of the trainees at the camp was thirty-seven. Included among the number were two members of the New York Stock Exchange, a member of the Philadelphia Supreme Court, forty-six lawyers, seventy-eight World War veterans, (seventeen of whom held commissions) plump businessmen, lean businessmen and a number of school teachers.

Started Off Nice

"It was pretty nice the first day," Carscaden recalled. "When we got there the regular enlisted men took our bags, showed us around and acted as our valets. But that didn't last long. Before we got through we were saluting most everybody we met.

"We soon learned not to do anything until we were told to do it. I made my bed up one morning before I was supposed to and got bawled out for it. I had to unmake it and then make it all over again at the proper time. Another thing we learned was never to ask 'why' when we were told to do something.

"The first day each man was issued four uniforms including a fatigue outfit for the rifle range, meneuvers when we had to crawl on the ground and for night bivouacs. We got a pair of marching shoes and a pair of dress shoes, eight pairs of sox, mess kits, canteens, a rain coat and a Springfield rifle.

"We slept in the old barracks, frame shacks, with twenty on a floor. There were two floors and no partitions.

Food Fine

"We had to get up at 5:10 a. m. and be dressed, washed up and shaved and ready to fall in line right on the dot at 6. Then we would have calisthenics for a half hour. After that we had breakfast. The food, by the way, was tops. It was good stuff. Meat was always tender and everything was very well-cooked. And there was lots of it."

After that the boys went to work. Carscaden said he was particularly impressed with the way the men handled their rifles. Many of them had never used a gun prior to their arrival at the camp. Yet, seventy-five per cent of the outfit qualified as marksmen before they got through including Carscaden.

"They showed they could shoot," Carscaden said. He explained they had three days preliminary practice before they got down to serious work. But it was hot, tiring work. One day the temperature jumped to the 114 degree mark while the recruits popped away at their targets on the rifle range.

Retired Early

Carscaden admitted most of the men would be completely fagged out after a day of army life. The boys got through work at 4:30 p. m.

"After we got through we ate supper and then went to bed," Carscaden said. "We were always in bed by 8 p. m. No, you didn't have to go to bed at that time. You just did, that was all. The line always formed the next day at 6 a. m., you know. Sometimes, we would swim, play volleyball or baseball for awhile before going to bed.

"We always had a forum session after dinner on Monday nights. Various men in the camp gave talks and also members of the regular army. The only subjects discussed were of a military nature. There wasn't any politics or anything like that."

Commenting on the work the officers in charge cut out for the trainees, Carscaden said "there wasn't any doubt but what they had it all planned before we got there. The officers were all fine men and impressed everybody.

"One night when we had to fight a battle we marched from 7 p. m. to 8:15 p. m. until we reached the battle ground. Then we fought until 11:15 p. m., before we formed to retire for the night. It was just like an actual battle.

"We were supposed to pitch tents before lying down and going to sleep. I was with another fellow. We were both so tired we just laid down and went to sleep in the middle of a field. We got up at 4 a. m.

Dig 'Fox Holes'

"One thing they showed us was how to get out of the way of a tank," Carscaden said. "To do this you dig what they call a 'fox hole.' Its just round enough to crawl into and the depth should be up to your shoulders. When you crawl in a tank can't get at you. It may throw dirt in on top of you, but it can't hurt you."

Tanks interested Carscaden particularly. Between sixty and seventy modern light tanks were exhibited at Fort Meade for the recruits. They would travel fifty miles an hour. Traveling at twenty-five miles an hour, a tank would clip off a tree eight inches in diameter.

The Cumberland recruit took a ride in a tank. Asked to describe the tank and his feelings while inside

Dr. E. N. Cory, Entomologist, Sets August 15 as Funeral Date

Dr. Ernest N. Cory, University of Maryland entomologist, calling his shots on Japanese beetles, predicts that the majority of the pesky copper-tinted invaders will have passed from Maryland come August 15.

By September 5, Dr. Cory added, only a few stragglers will be left.

"The beetles that manage to hang on until September 1," Dr. Cory declared, "will be scattered over the state and they'll all be so old they won't be strong enough to get around to see one another. So they'll start talking to themselves, and die eventually, of loneliness."

Dr. Cory said beetle destruction reached its peak between July 25 and August 2, during the hot spell. "The hotter it is," he said, "the more the beetles eat."

He added however, that even though another long heat spell comes the beetles won't be able to last any longer than the funeral date he's arranged for them.

The beetles usually get the skids about the third or fourth day of August, but this year, because they were late in starting their feast of Maryland vegetation and flowers, they are hanging on a bit longer, Dr. Cory stated.

30 Policyholders Consult Actuary

Calvert F. Stein Says He Is Amazed at Response Shown Here

Holders of policies aggregating $65,000 visited the city hall auditorium yesterday and received advice on insurance matters free of charge from Calvert F. Stein, of Baltimore, actuary for the State Insurance Department of Maryland.

Mr. Stein, who was sent to Cumberland by John B. Gontrum, state insurance commissioner, at the request of the Cumberland Life Underwriters Association, said that he interviewed holders of thirty policies between 10 a. m., and 5 p. m., and was amazed at the response shown by people in the county.

While 10,000 inquiries are made yearly in Baltimore by policyholders, Mr. Stein said that this is the first time that an actuary of the State Insurance department had come to Cumberland to give advice.

Information unavailable yesterday will be furnished policyholders Wednesday, August 21, when Mr. Stein makes his second visit here. An actuary from Baltimore also will be at the city hall September 4 and 18.

Celanese Reports Net Profits Gain

$4,522,580 Is Net for Six Months and $7,868,906 for Year

The Celanese Corporation of America and wholly owned subsidiaries, reports a net profit of $4,522,580 for the first six months ended June 30, 1940. This compares with a net profit of $3,027,774 in the corresponding period of 1939.

For the twelve months ending June 30, 1940, the net profit amounted to $7,868,906 as against $4,976,198 in 1939.

After dividend requirements on the preferred stocks, earnings for the half years are equal to $2.86 a share on 1,076,891 shares of common stock to be outstanding after issuance of the August 15 dividend. This compares with $173 on a share on 1,000,000 shares in the corresponding period of 1939.

From this amount, company officials said, must be deducted excess profits taxes and other taxes not yet ascertained.

Dr. Camille Dreyfus, president of the company, in presenting a report to the stockholders of the half-year period said "the demand for the company's products continues in excess of capacity to produce."

"Of particular interest to our stockholders at this time," he adds, "is the company's business in Celanese fabrics for evening wear."

Bodies of Detroit Youths Will Be Taken to Detroit

One of Drowning Victims Was Born at Moscow, Allegany County

The bodies of two twenty-year-old Detroit chums who drowned Thursday evening in the South Branch of the Potomac river near Romney, W. Va., yesterday were removed to Boal's funeral home in Westernport and will probably be shipped to Detroit tonight.

The victims are Francis Wiland, of 4642 Springle avenue, Detroit, and Harry Ross Pearson, of 13940 Mack avenue, Detroit.

Both Become Exhausted

The tragedy occurred around 6:45 p. m. Tuesday near the wire bridge seven miles from Romney on West Virginia Route 28. Pearson went to the rescue of his friend when Wiland floundered while attempting to swim across the river, a distance of seventy-five yards. Pearson became exhausted after frantic efforts and both sank before another member of their swimming party could reach them.

The swimming party consisted of the two victims, Joseph Eloot, also of Detroit, who was visiting Wiland's cousin, Miss Winifred Wiland, of Moscow, Miss Wiland, Miss Nellie Meese and Miss Elizabeth Yates, of Moscow, and Miss Geneva Hyde, of Barton.

The party arrived at the river just fifteen minutes before the tragedy occurred, bringing their lunch. They decided to take a swim before eating.

Wiland Born at Moscow

Wiland, who was the oldest son, is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wiland, of Detroit and was a native of Moscow this county. His parents moved to Detroit where Francis was a boy. His mother was the former Miss Madeline Green of Moscow. He was a graduate of a Detroit high school and was an attendant of a gasoline station of the Zip Oil company there.

He is survived by three brothers Bernard, Joseph and William Wiland, all of Detroit, and five sisters, Mary Madaline, Margaret, Theresa, Ellen and Barbara, all of Detroit.

Pearson was formerly employed as an apprentice tool maker with a factory which has discontinued business.

He was a son of Guy Pearson, Detroit, and is also survived by two brothers, Edward and Homer Pearson, and four sisters, Thelma, Goldie, Frances and Mrs. Frank Koppinger, all of Detroit.

His body will be taken to the Cooper Brothers Funeral parlors at Detroit and later taken to Tallahoma, Tenn., to be buried beside his mother there.

The visitors arrived at Moscow, Sunday, and expected to remain until Friday.

Allegany Fruit Growers To Attend District Meeting

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 7 (AP)—The first annual conference of fruit growers from four states in this region will be held here tomorrow beginning at 9:30 a. m. for a discussion of water conservation in orchards.

"Representatives are expected from Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland, in addition to conservation specialists from the four state experiment stations, and United States Department of Agriculture officials.

Harry Weigle of Adams county, Pennsylvania, who will act as chairman of the meeting, said farmers other than orchardists had also been invited to attend because much land not in orchards is also affected by lack of water and losses due to excessive run-off.

For many years fruit growers of the Cumberland-Shenandoah fruit belt have suffered heavy damage due to drought, soil erosion and fertility losses.

One of the principal speakers will be G. William Gardenhour, chairman of the Washington County Board of Conservation District Supervisors, who will talk on "my experiences and observations with contour planted and terraced orchards."

Don't go away from your home and leave any doors unlocked.

Don't leave any first or second story windows open or unlocked.

If away from home at night leave the light burning—it's the best policeman in the world.

Don't cash any checks for strangers — they may bounce back.

Be careful of strangers who engage rooms.

Don't fail to lock up jewelry and other valuables. The proper place is in a safe deposit vault.

Don't leave auto keys in the ignition switch.

Willkie May Make Brief Talk Here In October

Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for the presidency, is expected to give a brief talk in Cumberland when he passes through by train on his campaign tour some time in October, J. Glenn Beall, coordinating chairman of the Allegany county G.O.P. campaign committee, announces.

Former State Senator Beall indicated that Mr. Willkie is expected to make a brief stop here and will talk from the platform of the train.

Beall, who served as county campaign manager for Harry W. Nice in the recent primary for the United States Senatorial nomination, also said that the former governor of Maryland will attend the Cumberland Fair Association races Friday, August 16, and will present a trophy to the owner of a winning horse in one of the feature races.

Former Governor Nice defeated William Broening, of Baltimore, for the United States Senate nomination, winning by more than a two to one margin in Allegany county. He will oppose George L. Radcliffe, Democratic incumbent, in the general election in November.

125 Properties Advertised by Tax Collector

Delinquent Taxpayers Are Warned That Old Taxes Must Be Paid

County Tax Collector Alban C. Thompson yesterday started cracking down on delinquent taxpayers as he advertised 125 properties representing a total of $12,227 in unpaid taxes.

"And there will be more to come unless people pay up," Thompson grimly announced at the court house citing the fact that approximately $85,000 in unpaid 1939 taxes are still listed on the tax books.

In all, there is approximately $125,000 in unpaid taxes on the books including some $40,000 still owing from 1935 to 1938 inclusive.

"I intend to start after the taxes still owing from '35 to '38 around Sept. 1 unless they are paid," Thompson said.

Commenting on the drive launched to collect the 1939 indebtedness to the county, Thompson stated, "I hereby serve warning to every person, corporation and company, owing 1939 taxes, that they must be paid at once or I intend to advertise according to law, all tax delinquent property. This means everyone. There will not be any exceptions and I do not intend to write any letters of warning before I advertise."

July collections amounted to $49,717.70, the tax collector announced yesterday.

"That was pretty good," Thompson said pointing out that collections for this July were slightly better than July, 1938, when $48,000 was collected.

Maryland Young GOP Favors Conscription In Some Form

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP)—The Maryland Federation of Young Republicans announced today its support of "some form of conscription," asserting the nation now is "inadequately prepared to carry out our commitments to enforce the Monroe doctrine, let alone the defense of the continental United States."

Over the signature of Charles H. Cover, federational president, and Harry L. Katz, executive committee chairman, the statement declared "this is not the time to play politics" and said "the spectacle in congress of name-calling while the future welfare of this nation is at stake is calculated to reflect upon our democratic processes in time of emergency."

The statement speculated on whether "there is time left" for men and equipment to defend the country and said:

"The lessons of history have shown that the volunteer system for military service is doomed to failure. Our potential enemies ignore such system, and some of them begin training men in their childhood for military service . . .

"There are many Rip Van Winkles in Washington who have been asleep at the switch the past few years. . . . Others are still sleeping. . . . Politics must be subordinated to the welfare of the country if we are to prepare ourselves to preserve our American way of life."

Negroes Arrested For Larceny of Fur Jackets

State and County Officers Round Up Four in $400 Shoplifting Job

A quartet of negroes who apparently were doing their Christmas "shoplifting" early were apprehended yesterday at Clarksburg, W. Va., by Cumberland and Allegany county officers and returned to this city to face charges of stealing furs valued at $400 from the display rooms of two local stores.

Three of the persons involved in the fur-shoplifting job were women and gave their names as Elsie Jones, of New York City, Sadie Parker and Mary Lee, both of Charleston, W. Va. The fourth member of the group placed in the county jail last night was Donald Hurse, who gave New York city as his home address.

Charged with Larceny

Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, stated that the quartet has been charged with grand larceny and are being held for a hearing.

Traveling in a 1939 Buick sedan which carried a New York license, the negroes came to Cumberland Saturday, August 3, on a shopping tour in the business district.

According to the state's attorney the group first visited Lazarus's store, 55 Baltimore street, and told the saleslady who waited upon them that they desired to look at some silver fox jackets. They failed to make a purchase but after they left the store, the management discovered that a silver fox jacket, valued at $200 had suddenly disappeared. Police were immediately informed.

Then, according to State's Attorney Harris, the group of shoppers visited Martin's store, 33 North Liberty street, informing a clerk that they wished to see something in silver fox fur jackets. The negroes walked out without making a purchase but after they departed it was learned that a fur coat at that establishment also had taken "wings." The management of this store notified police of their loss of a $200 fur jacket.

Arrested in Clarksburg

Investigation into the whereabouts of the shoplifters led the city and county officers to Clarksburg, W. Va., where Sheriff Lucian Radcliffe, County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and Detective B. Frank Gaffney journeyed to nab the four negroes and placed them under arrest. Both fur coats were recovered by the officers and the car in which the shoplifters were traveling was also returned to Cumberland.

When questioned by State's Attorney Harris yesterday, the negroes admitted the thefts.

Couple Escapes Injury in Crash On Valley Road

Big Sedan Plunges 30 Feet Down Steep Embankment

A young Cumberland couple last night miraculously escaped injury when their big sedan sideswiped another car, plowed through a guardrail and plunged down a thirty-foot embankment into a creek.

The accident occurred shortly before midnight on the Valley road near Miller's lime kiln when the car driven by Marshall J. Barton, of Cresaptown, sideswiped the car driven by William M. Goldsborough, of R. D. 3, Cumberland.

Barton, a young Celanese employe, was coming down the hill towards Cumberland when he claims the lights of Goldsborough's car blinded him. His big sedan grazed Goldsborough's rear fender, careened through the guardrail and dropped thirty feet into the creek bed.

With Barton was Miss Anne Hobell, of 204 Fulton street. The car landed right side up and apparently was not badly damaged. No glass was broken.

When Miss Hobell climbed out of the sedan she took a look at the steep embankment and started to cry. While uninjured, she was thoroughly upset and refused to climb up the bank to the road.

Cruisermen James Kelley and James J. Condon arrived a few minutes later, persuaded Miss Hobell to leave the creek bed.

Several dozen spectators quickly gathered including Police Commissioner James Orr and Detective Robert E. Flynn. Most of the spectators kept staring at the steep bank and the car down below in the creek bed.

Barton, who received a slight bump on the head, and Miss Hobell started for home a few minutes after the accident as did Goldsborough, an employe of the B. and O. railroad who was on his way home from work.
